Safety Council Reality

The Virginia Beach Safety Council is now a reality and has a hundred dollars in the treasury.

The organizational meeting held last week at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center received two $50 checks, one from the Virginia Beach Jaycees and the other from the Virginia Beach Medical Society.

Dr. Robert W. Waddell, who called the meeting of interested persons, introduced S. B. Dunn, who represented the Governor's Highway Safety Committee.

Dunn stressed the need to organize city support and the informing of Virginia Beach citizens regarding problems in highway safety, home safety and water safety.

A film, entitled "Alias, the Killer," was also shown to the audience, which discussed proper education, engineering and enforcement through public support of a safety council.

The newly-formed Virginia Beach Safety Council will work with state and national organizations to promote all types of safety, and will supply educational information to all local groups wishing programs on safety.

City officials have noted their enthusiasm for the project, and a number of police, safety and city officials are represented on the board of directors of the new organization.

Judge George Vakos is the president of the group. Others elected at the organizational meeting were Dr. Robert W. Waddell, first vice president; Morris Wright, second vice president; and Police Lt. C. R. Bailey was elected executive secretary.

A committee was also formed to look into existing safety programs being carried out in Virginia Beach. It will report to the officers at the next scheduled meeting.

Budget Hearing Set for Monday

Monday promises to be a busy day for City Council. That is the day set for the public hearing on the proposed $28,423,732 budget for the coming fiscal year in Virginia Beach.

No serious objections are expected to be raised to any parts of the City Manager's prepared and published budget, but objections may come to major items and expenditures. The budget was presented to City Council several weeks ago by City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, after budget hearings with each department.

The largest single item in the budget is the School Operating Fund, which totals, $14,999,136.

Estimated revenues needed to balance the budget have called for a five per cent hike in utility taxes, which is also expected to be passed. It had been thought prior to the City Manager's disclosure of the budget that a hike in real estate taxes would be sought. But the utility tax rise apparently took the place of any jump in real estate tax.

The Council meeting, which begins at 2 p.m., also has several zoning matters to finalize, as well as a long docket of unfinished business.

Applications are expected to be approved which would call for the construction of 36 motel efficiency apartments at Pacific Ave. and 23rd St. and the construction of 97 motel units at Third St. and Atlantic Ave.

Final approval is also expected on a permit to build a chapel at Sandbridge on Sandbridge Road.

The park, 18 acres, is behind the old Virginia Beach High School on property bounded by Virginia Beach Blvd., the Toll Road and the proposed extension of 22nd St. L. T. Christian Jr., landscape architect, designed the tentative layout for the park.

Three tennis courts are included in the plans along with a "hot lot", a band shell and reflection pool. Underbrush will be cleared. No timetable has been set for the parks' completion.

Maury Riganto, Commission chairman, said he was concerned by the lack of adults at a recent surfing hearing. It was informative, even if some of the Pending final approval by City Council, Virginia Beach will have public transportation on Atlantic Ave. this summer from Fort Story to Rudee Inlet.

Council will hear the application Monday of a firm headed by Herbert Glassman for a permit to run small buses, known as jitneys, here beginning as soon as approval is forthcoming. Council is expected to approve the application. Glassman already has State approval to operate a transportation franchise in the state. The first runs of the new system should be about two weeks away.

Public transportation in high density population areas has also been taken under advisement by a special committee of the Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Commission.

Some sort of bus system to transport surfers and others to Sandbridge was mentioned and could be part of the consideration of the committee.

The committee is made up of Department of Parks and Recreation Director Harold Whitehurst, City Planning Commission Director Mason Gamage and Assistant City Attorney Stanley Phillips.

The Jitneys would stop at any corner where passengers are waiting or to discharge passengers at any corner. Glassman plans to have six of the vehicles in use immediately after approval. Then he will study the situation to see how many more are needed to provide efficient service to as many people as possible.

Glassman has purchased six jitneys, which hold 10 passengers each from a company in Atlantic City, New Jersey. These have been entirely reconditioned and are in excellent condition, according to Glassman. They are 1964 and 1965 models.

Next year Glassman hopes to have larger 15-passenger jitneys on Atlantic Ave. if the operation is successful, but these will have to be especially built and cannot be ready in time for the tourist season this summer.

For one block of the entire route, the fare will be 25 cents. The plan now calls for a jitney to pass a given point along the north-south route every seven minutes.

Jitneys have been operating along the main resort street in Atlantic City for many years, and have been quite successful as a means of rapid transit. They are smaller than regular buses and can maneuver in traffic much easier.

In Atlantic City the jitneys of the past were merely large limousine-type passenger automobiles licensed to carry passengers. A few are owned by companies, but the jitneys, for the most part, were privately-owned and driven by licensed individuals to fill a need for resort transportation in the city. Atlantic City also has a city bus system which operates several blocks away from the resort area.

Jitneys are not new to this area either. During World War I, so many additional people were working in war-oriented and post-war businesses that the streetcars in Norfolk could not handle the needs. Jitneys were licensed at that time and supplemented the city system. As in Atlantic City, private individuals used their own cars for this purpose as a money making enterprise.

Finally large companies realized the importance of the jitneys and that the streetcars could not handle all the needs. They bought out the jitney owners slowly and thus evolved the bus system of Norfolk today.

The private autos in Atlantic City have also evolved into the small buses which Glassman has proposed for Virginia Beach. The fare in Atlantic City has also risen to 25 cents.

Glassman says he plans to use Virginia Beach school bus drivers as the jitney drivers, since they will be on vacation during the summer months.

"If they are good enough to drive for the school children, they are certainly good enough for me," he says.

He plans to dress them in uniforms, similar to those worn by airline hostesses, including the small caps.

Actually the name "jitney" is now a misnomer. The word "jitney" is slang for a nickel, and the name of the small buses came from the original fare of five cents. The slang word comes from the French word, "jeton", meaning taken or small coin, according to the Virginia Beach Library.

But "jitney" or "quarter", if City Council approves, Virginia Beach will finally have public transportation on Atlantic Avenue for everyone this summer.

City Makes Plans For New Park Money,

Virginia Beach has a new park in the planning stages, it was reported at a recent Parks and Recreation Dept. meeting.

The park, 18 acres, is behind the old Virginia Beach High School on property bounded by Virginia Beach Blvd., the Toll Road and the proposed extension of 22nd St. L. T. Christian Jr., landscape architect, designed the tentative layout for the park.

Three tennis courts are included in the plans along with a "hot lot", a band shell and reflection pool. Underbrush will be cleared. No timetable has been set for the parks' completion.

It was announced at the meeting that there will be a tennis clinic at 7:30 p. m. on May 19 in the Princess Anne High School gym.

It was reported that the reading leading into Redwing Park has been oiled. Motorists are reportedly cutting across the center strip of General Booth Blvd. to reach the park. There was still no report on a solution to the problem which the City has been studying for more than two months.

Maury Riganto, Commission chairman, said he was concerned by the lack of adults at a recent surfing hearing. It was informative, even if some of the kids were sore," Riganto said.

Riganto said there were 26 suggestions which the commission is considering. "Some good, some selfish, some instructive. We're trying to do something for the surfers, but they have to realize there are other people on the beach besides them."

Riganto said that the commission will recommend that City Manager W. Russell Hatchett poll the City Council on a plan to allow surfers to surf anywhere on the beach except between Fourth and 40th Streets all day from May 15 to Sept. 10 beginning this year.

Money

Virginia Beach residents have just finished mailing forms to Commissioner of Revenue Ivan Mapp's office regarding their 1966 State income tax. The deadline for filing was May 1.

It has been estimated by Mapp that residents of the city paid more than three million dollars in individual state income taxes during 1966. Most of it in taxes withheld from payroll.

In 1965, Virginia Beach residents paid almost three million dollars, Mapp said, and he expects the 1966 figure to be slightly higher.

No Vacation For Schools

Virginia Beach schools will not be idle this summer.

For the first time, school libraries will be open during the summer. The number is contingent upon the number of available librarians.

Something new in the Virginia Beach schools will be the summer enrichment program. Children will be invited to take part in the program at the discretion of the principals. It will be for academically-talented children in some schools and for children needing special help in others.

Children included will be from the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. Subjects will include language arts and science. A child may be invited to one or both.

Each enrichment class will base its program, including field trips and other special activities and projects, on the particular interests of its pupils and its summer faculty. The six-week courses will run from June 19 through July 28.

Some of the objectives of the program are to stimulate creative thinking, to stimulate the desire to learn and to develop appreciation for cultural advances, a love for beauty and a sense of inquiry into the nature of things around them.

Another program, which the school administration hopes will be expanded this summer is the summer pre-school program—a prelude to future public school kindergartens. The number of schools participating will be announced after first grade pre-registration is completed.

Unlike Headstart, the pre-school program is not for culturally deprived children and is not supported by city, state or federal funds. All salaries and supplies will be paid by student tuition. The program SEE "VACATION", P. 3

Planning Docket Is Long

The Virginia Beach City Planning Commission faces its longest docket in recent months at its public hearing in Municipal Court, Tuesday at 2 p.m.

There are 15 items on the docket, but several have numerous parcels to be considered.

The largest single item involves a petition for closing several streets in the Kempsville-Lynhaven Borough area, located in the Subdivision of East Norfolk. Parts of 23 streets are under application for closure. Detailed information concerning the area is available in the City Planning Commission office at Princess Anne.

Also the commission will consider seven parcels of land in the Acrefield area of Kempsville area for rezoning from single-family residence to multiple-family residence. The land, which would then be available for the building of apartments is located in the Kempsville Road-Indian River Road area.

Use permits for three new gasoline stations are being applied for. One would be built at South Plaza Trail and Rosemont Road, another on Bonney Road, near Hubber Lane and a third on Virginia Beach Blvd. and Fir Avenue.

Carousel, Ltd. is applying for a use permit to construct 30 motel units on Pacific Ave. and 18th St., marking the continued increase in applications for motels in Virginia Beach Borough lately.

There is also an application under consideration that would enlarge and extend an existing borrow pit on Belts Road east of Oceana Blvd.

Time Big Problem for Detectives

By JOSEPH LOWENTHAL, JR.

The Detective Division of Virginia Beach Police Dept. is charged with the responsibility of investigating all felonies and any misdemeanors which offer good concrete leads. There are 12 men, including the commanding officer, Lt. William W. Davis, to handle all those investigations.

Lt. Davis has two sergeants, C. W. Simmons and E. L. Knowles, and nine detectives in his division working four different shifts. Particularly on the night shift, the detectives are in unmarked cars supplementing patrol division men in checking shopping areas or trouble spots. They often drive up to 100 miles a shift.

The detectives are assigned a number of new cases almost daily for investigation, and at times the case load can be "overbearing", according to Davis.

No matter how simple the case, it must be investigated by the detectives, written up in report form then followed through to hearing, Grand Jury and finally to the courtroom.

Detectives must spend much of their time in court.

After an offense is answered by a precinct patrolman, the detectives take over for interviews with witnesses and digging up all evidence. Often they find the offense is false, or the criminal is guilty of a lesser offense or that the case may be related to many others.

Many cases, which are not solved immediately fall into the "pending category" and are still the responsibility of the detectives, when it is possible for them to work on them.

"Time is our biggest problem," said Lt. Davis, "because it often takes real persistence to solve a case."

Detectives are chosen carefully from the ranks of the police department, based on education, experience, personality, appearance, demeanor and a long list of other qualifications. All are experienced police officers, used to hard work, much of it on their own time.

Charles Harris is just one of the detectives of the Division.

I rode with him one evening recently. The night was spent cruising around the entire city at large, being close when we heard an offense report on the radio, checking the circumstances of some of the cases he was working on, riding through trouble spots and areas where investigations were pending.

Harris also spent two hours that night writing reports. But his day had begun early. He had been in court part of the day and in a training class part of the day. He's back on the day shift this week, working on a number of investigations.

He is a dedicated policeman, and just one of those trying to better his knowledge of his work at all times and to keep Virginia Beach safe.

Harris has another profession and could make more money at it, but he is a career police officer and proud of it. He is just one reason why the detective division of Virginia Beach police is so efficient and so successful.

Kellam Students Receive Variety of Financial Aid

The Cavalier Junior Women's Club awarded Hope Wallace $400 a year for four years to the college of her choice. She will be attending Mary Washington.

David March received $2400 for his freshman year at Yale with the possibility of continuing financial aid from the University throughout his college experience.

Bill Sakowich, who will be attending Johns Hopkins University, was awarded an Army ROTC scholarship which covers all of his expenses except room and board for four years.

Other students who have received aid are Diane Bang, who will attend Whittenburg University in Ohio; Sharon Wallace, who has been accepted at Richmond Professional Institute; Dan Swanson, who has selected Hampden-Sydney; Larry Johnson, who will attend Roanoke College; and Lloyd Walker who has chosen King College in Bristol, Tennessee.

At Kellam's graduation ceremony, June 3, the Princess Anne Women's Club will award a four-year $1600 scholarship to a Kellam senior.

Miss Rountree said that a number of scholarships are yet to come in and that when the scholarships and loans received this year are extended over a four-year period they will total over $40,000.

According to Miss Shirley Rountree, senior guidance counselor at Kellam High School, several organizations have made available approximately $40,000 in financial aid for selected Kellam seniors who will be graduating in June.

Sponsoring groups include the Dept. of Economic Opportunity, the National Defense Education Act, the Veteran's Administration and various colleges and club groups.

Three Kellam seniors, Hope Wallace, David March, and Bill Sakowich, received sizable grants.

Craft Elected

Building Takes Upturn

Building in Virginia Beach has finally taken an upswing, and city officials and builders alike are hopeful that the bright outlook will continue.

A total of 171 building permits were applied for in Virginia Beach in April, 1967, with a total value of $3,198,744. Last year only 144 home permits were issued for a total value of $2,631,197. It was in April, 1966 that the beginning of the major decline in home building here began, and by May, 1966, home building permits had reached the lowest ebb in many years.

In April 1966, the total value of all building permits was $3,547,886. This April the total value is much higher, at $4,122,744. Indications for May 1966 are excellent, according to building officials in Virginia Beach.

"It looks like the tide has finally turned," said building official Bob Loehr.

Student Named To Fraternity

Michael J. Keef of Virginia Beach was one of 109 freshmen at Virginia Tech who were recently initiated into Phi Eta Sigma honorary Fraternity.

The initiates were members of the freshman class who had a 3.5 or an 'A' average or better during the first two quarters of their first year at the university.

Firing Range Becomes Reality

VIRGINIA BEACH POLICE CHIEF J. E. MOORE TRIES OUT THE NEARLY COMPLETED OUTDOOR POLICE FIRING RANGE. HOW HE DID WAS NOT REVEALED.

In the near future the police department of the City of Virginia Beach will finally have an outdoor firing range to call its own.

For many years any training taken by Virginia Beach officers has been done at various military installations in the area or in conjunction with other police agencies.

The new range, which is just about completed, is located near the City Garage in Princess Anne Borough. Police Chief Moore was the first to fire a pistol on the new range recently. He was taken there by Capt. R. C. Davis, who will be in charge of training all officers on the range.

"The new range is primarily designed for a nationally recognized law enforcement course, known as the Practical Pistol Course," said Capt. Davis. "But it will also allow preliminary courses for the most inexperienced personnel."

The police department also has an indoor range which employs lead pellets in an air gun which has the look and feel of the regular police weapon.

Combined with the new outdoor range, Capt. Davis and Chief Moore say Virginia Beach will be able to provide progressive training for all members of the department. The new outdoor range will also be expected to be utilized by other Tidewater law enforcement agencies.

Church to Have Revival

Dr. Bob Gray, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church in Jacksonville, Fla., will be guest speaker at a revival May 8-12 at Good News Baptist Church, 1537 Indian River Rd.

Meetings, open to the public, will be held at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. daily.

Having taught public school during the early days of his ministry, Dr. Gray is also well-known in academic circles.

DR. BOB GRAY

Under his leadership, the Trinity Baptist Church has grown from an average attendance in Sunday School of 250 to above 1,000 each Sunday and in Training Union from 68 to more than 700.

Sancilio Optimistic About Area Building

Home building is headed for an upward climb, providing more homes and more employment in the Tidewater Area, Lawrence A. Sancilio, president of the Tidewater Assn. of Home Builders reports.

Sancilio made the prediction shortly after his return from Washington, D. C., where he attended the Spring Meeting and Builders Conference of the Board of Directors of the National Association of Home Builders.

"The tight money conditions of the past year when prospective home buyers could not obtain loans are rapidly disappearing," Sancilio said.

At the meeting, he reported, the results of a survey taken around the country showed that home builders are much more optimistic now than they were last fall and that home starts and sales have perked up.

Last Fall, he said, a national poll showed that home builders expected a drop of 17% in home starts in 1967 from the 1966 level of 1,220,000 units.

Now, however, they expect starts to increase by about 6.6 percent, or 80,000 units.

"There'll be an increase in this city," Sancilio said.

"We're all looking for a continued improvement through the latter part of this year and we should enter 1968 near the final level of 1965 which was at about 1.5 to 1.6 million units.

"Nationally, that's not enough to meet the rising needs and demands of our growing population. But we will be back on the track.

"As a matter of fact, our housing inventory is dropping rapidly and in some areas it may not be too long before actual shortages begin to show up."

Sancilio said the NAHB Board acted to put full support behind a legislative move which would help to ease in the future the tight money situation which so constricted the industry for some 12 months.

The Board threw its support behind a bill introduced in the Senate by Sen. John J. Sparkman, who is chairman of the Senate Banking Committee.

The proposed legislation would expand the functions and operations of the Federal National Mortgage Assn., the government agency which buys and sells FHA and VA mortgages in its secondary market operations.

The measure would enable Fannie Mae, as it is popularly known, to buy and sell conventional mortgages.

Funds Allocated For Roads

Allocations totaling more than $204 million for construction on Virginia's interstate, arterial, regular primary and urban systems were tentatively approved by the State Highway Commission recently.

The funds, for the fiscal year beginning July 1, include $42,000 for a Ft. Story by-pass on Atlantic Ave. and $1,020,000 to widen Princess Anne Rd. to four lanes divided between S. Parliament Dr. and Edwin Dr.

Pembroke Features Art Show

An art show is currently being held at Pembroke Mall Shopping Center.

The works of Virginia Beach elementary and secondary school students has been on display since Sunday on the mall, and will remain as a public exhibit until Saturday.

The paintings and sculpture represent the best works done by Virginia Beach students, as chosen by their teachers and the art supervisor.

Judging of the work has been done and the winners are appropriately marked. The general public is invited to view the display.

It would also add another Assistant Secretary in the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development whose specific responsibility would be financial policy.

"The bill also contains provisions which would require that estimates of the need and availability of money needed for the mortgage market be made each year and if there are disparities there would have to be recommendations for meeting such disparities.

"This is a needed step for sensible planning for needs in the mortgage money market."

Approval Pleases Willis

"I'm really pleased the hospital was accredited on first inspection," W. Earl Willis, administrator of Virginia Beach General Hospital, said of the hospital's recent approval by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals of Chicago.

The inspection, which is voluntary, cannot be made until a hospital has been in operation at least a year. "Usually a hospital is accredited for only one year the first time," Willis said. "Three years is the most you can get.

"They could have disapproved us too."

The Commission is made up of representatives of the American Medical Assn., the American College of Physicians, the American College of Surgeons and the American Hospital Assn.

According to Willis, the inspection and accreditation assures patients of the best in patient care.

Scouts To Invade Pendleton

From 750 to 1,000 Boy Scouts are expected to participate in the Princess Anne-Virginia Beach District Spring Camporee to be held at Camp Pendleton Friday through Sunday.

Patrols will be in competition with each other, and awards will be given to the outstanding units and patrols Sunday.

Each patrol will be in charge of setting up and maintaining their own camping area. Scouts will prepare all their own meals.

Cars will be left at the parking area, and all equipment will be carried about three-fourths of a mile.

Concert Planned At P.A.

The Princess Anne High School Choral Department will present their Annual Spring Concert tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the High School Auditorium.

Taking part in the concert will be the Acappella Choir, Madrigal Singers and Girls Chorus. The program will be conducted by Clark Graves (Choral Director) and accompanists will be Gary Merdith, Kathy Campbell and Ima Mirman.

"Requiem" by Faure will be sung and soloists for this work will be Cindy Herbstberger, soprano, Aubrey Backus, baritone and Eric Parker, baritone.

Agent Earns Company Honor

Shaughnessy will be admitted to the Knight in Armor Club, the company's honorary organization for outstanding agents, at a special conference from June 19-21, at Buck Hill Falls, Pa.

J. Shaughnessy III of 1180 Homestead Dr., will be cited by The Travelers Insurance Co. for outstanding production in individual life, accident, and health insurance.

Demos Are Human, Downing Says

REP. DOWNING SPEAKS TO THE WOMAN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB JEFFERSON DAY LUNCHEON.

"As a party we are just as human as persons themselves," Rep. Thomas M. Downing told the Woman's Democratic Club at a Jefferson's Day luncheon last week. "And we make mistakes occasionally."

"People sometimes leave the Democratic Party, but in times of crisis they turn back to it and time again."

Rep. Downing said that the Democratic Party embraces many political philosophies without being entirely dependent on any of them.

"It's the only party I know of that could hold Harry Byrd Sr. and Hubert H. Humphrey and still keep together," he said.

"We need across the board philosophies so we can merge them when needed," Rep. Downing stated.

Rep. Downing said that women are the greatest source of untapped political strength in America. There are three million more women than men of voting age, he said.

"If a politician has any sense at all, he'll get to the ladies," Rep. Downing said that women work best in organized groups, particularly in a field to which they are not accustomed.

"The political parties' greatest failure is in failing to relate politics to the daily lives of women," Rep. Downing said.

Rep. Downing concluded with a formula for success for women in politics. "You must look like a girl, act like a lady, think like a man and work like a dog."

Mrs. C. E. Upton Jr. was in charge of the program.

It's National Play Tennis Week

Would you believe . . . it's National Play Tennis Week? Well, it certainly is. And both the week and the sport are being promoted here by the Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons Association.

The group itself is relatively new and its purpose is to promote an increased interest in tennis here, especially with children.

Virginia Beach is considered to be a fine place for tennis, because of the climate where tennis can be played all year.

Members of the association are currently working on programs not only to promote an interest in the sport but also to teach youngsters and oldersters alike to play well. They stress that anyone of any age can play and enjoy the game.

Public tennis courts are available to all the high schools in Virginia Beach after school hours and there are other public courts in parks in the city.

The association is currently working in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce to promote an indoor tennis tournament at the Dome next winter.

The officers of the association are: President, Mrs. George Harris; Vice-presidents, Sidney Hughes, Earnest

Road-E-O To Test Teens

Virginia Beach teenagers will have an opportunity to demonstrate their all-round driving knowledge and ability in an Auto Road-E-O to determine the city's safest and most skillful young drivers.

The driving contest will be conducted Sunday, May 21, by the Bayside-Princess Anne Jaycees and co-sponsored by Phillips Brothers Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. This will consist of the top 10 scorers from each of the six high schools. Entry forms and further information about the Road-E-O are available at local Jaycees headquarters at 513 Mango Dr. (340-7450) or at Phillips Brothers dealership, Military Highway.

The high-scoring boy and girl drivers will win savings bonds, plaques and the right to compete against other local contest winners at the state Road-E-O.

finals in Petersburg on June 17. Second, third and fourth place winners in the boys and girls divisions will win trophies and movie passes from the Princess Theater.

State winners will compete at the national contest at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, July 30-Aug. 3. At state will be $14,000 in college scholarships, the use of six 1968 Mercury Cougars for one year and the opportunity to tour the United States as a Youth Safety Spokesman for Lincoln-Mercury Division of Ford Motor Co.

Any boy or girl who has a drivers license and will not be 19-years-old before Aug. 1 is eligible to participate. Contestants must not have committed a traffic violation during the preceding six months or have an offense pending.

Partridge Pioneers

Released at Oceana

Over 100 foreign birds were released this week in the wooded areas of the Oceana Naval Air Station. The birds were turned loose as part of an experiment to determine if they can survive in the Eastern Virginia climate.

Brought to Oceana from the state game farm in Cumberland, the Franklin Partridge is a colorful, warm weather bird imported from India. Dennis Hart, the supervisor of the Foreign Game Program of Virginia, reported that the experiment is being conducted in various southeastern states, with the one at Oceana being the furthest north.

According to Hart, it will be about one year before game biologists are able to determine if the climate is suitable for the birds. It will be two years before the Franklin Partridge may be hunted, the exact date will be determined by the State Game Commission. This rule will be strictly enforced and the fine for hunting them will be as high as $200.

"They should be a good sporting bird," said Hart. "They are strong and extremely fast flyers," he continued, "but if they are bothered they can become very wary."

Oceana Game Warden, Sonny Gregory, explained that next spring the Hybrid Pheasant will be brought to Oceana for an experiment of the same type.

Holds Banquet

The annual Employer-Employee banquet of the Distributive Education Club of Frank W. Cox High School was held at the Bay Harbour Club last week.

Mrs. Louise Knight, head guidance counselor at Cox High School, was the principal speaker. About 25 employers, representing the local businesses of Virginia Beach, were among the 60 persons present.

Big Plans Ready for Parade

Everybody loves a parade, but there just aren't as many of them as there used to be. In Virginia Beach, however, one of the major events of the year is the annual Armed Forces Day parade.

Each year the parade seems to get larger and larger. There are numerous bands and marching units from all of Tidewater's military installations, Virginia Beach high schools, local fraternal organizations and law enforcement agencies.

In addition there are always a large number of floats, many topped with beautiful girls, and the streets are always lined from early morning by youngsters and oldersters alike to view the spectacle, long before the 10 a.m. start.

This year's parade will take place on Saturday, May 20, and will cap the annual Armed Forces Week celebration here. Other festivities will also take place, including open house at numerous military installations.

On Friday night, May 19, a formal military ball will be held at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center, it has been announced by Edward P. Brogan chairman of the Armed Forces Committee of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce.

The ball is a departure from past celebrations and will replace a reception and luncheon formerly held following the parade. Music for the dance will be furnished by the Warren Covington Orchestra. Attendance is by invitation only.

On Saturday morning military and city officials will be in the reviewing stand at 25th St. and Atlantic Avenue. Judging of the best floats, bands and marching units will also be done there.

The parade route will extend from 19th St. to Laskin Road on Atlantic Ave. Virginia Beach Fire Chief E. B. Bayne is parade chairman. Any group desiring to enter a float is asked to contact him.

Bah, Bah....No Sheep

The morning meetings held each and every morning by the Administration team and its workers feature coffee, pastries and conversation.

The candidates themselves are always there, drinking coffee and making themselves available. Apparently they have been drinking so much coffee that one of the supporters colored mug with his very own brightly drops in for the first time one of these mornings and is not acquainted with candidates, they are the ones with those fluorescent yellow and orange coffee mugs.

Political Potpourri

Jack Etheridge called city employees "sheep" recently and said they can be led in any direction regardless of what their views may be or how they feel about any of the candidates. Somehow this would seem to be a comment designed to insure all City employee votes for his opponent, newcomer Howard Merrill.

The City of Virginia Beach necessarily employs a large work force, to carry out the day-to-day operation of municipal affairs. It is doubtful that they can all be swayed to follow any man or principle blindly. If this is really so, it would go against every law of human nature ever known.

The Administration candidates who first answered Etheridge on this matter was Kenneth Whitehurst, candidate for the House of Delegates. He used such words as "amazed", "surprised" and even "shocked" at Etheridge's remarks, and immediately came to the defense of the City employees.

Whitehurst said the loyalties of city employees lie first to the City which employs them and to the citizens of that city. He added that the personal attack made upon them is resented not only by the employees but also by the taxpayers they serve.

Whitehurst may be a newcomer, but he reacted well to the situation, and capitalizing on the ire of some city employees said he hopes the city employees will vote for the members of the Administration team.

In other quarters the battle of the bumper stickers is on. United officials are saying privately that a survey they have been making shows more of their bumper stickers. And Administration officials are saying that they see more of their bumper stickers. No such claims are being made by Bill Phillips and John Marr, but occasionally one does see a bumper sticker or two for one of them.

In trying to settle the thing once and for all we tried to take a survey of bumper stickers. Granted there are a lot of them for everybody, and we are not sure just who has the edge. But we did see quite a few for Luray Caverns, Rock City, Parrot Jungle, Disneyland and Natural Bridge. We stopped the survey when we saw a bumper sticker which read, "If you can read this, you're too damned close."

Meanwhile personal appearances at rallies, coffees and meetings continue for all the candidates. Some of the larger forums are now being announced as the day of judgement gets closer. The Princess Anne-Bayside Jaycees, for instance will have representatives of all the candidates and tickets on the same platform next week, and will allow questions and answers from the floor. That should prove to be an interesting meeting.

Civic clubs are also clamoring to get in on the act. The calendars of both tickets are getting fuller and fuller with personal appearance dates. This is a good situation, and is as it should be.

The people of Virginia Beach should avail themselves of every opportunity they have to see and hear the candidates, instead of relying on whispers, and campaign mud-slinging.

Candidates At Political Rally

Monday, May 15, will be political night for the Bayside-Princess Anne Jaycees at the Lake Wright Motor Hotel.

The program, which begins at 7:30 p.m., will feature the views of all political candidates running for constitutional and legislative offices in the July 11 Democratic Primary. A question and answer period will follow the speeches.

Representatives of both the Administration ticket and the United ticket have noted their intention to attend, as well as some of the independents.

The general public is invited to attend the meeting and to ask questions of the candidates.

Frank Adkins, president of the Jaycee chapter, will be chief moderator of the program, with the assistance of several other members.

Each organized ticket will have 20 minutes to present its views and each independent candidate will have five minutes.

Then questions will be sent in writing to a Jaycee screening panel and passed along to the individual candidates or ticket involved. The question and answer period is expected to last about 20 minutes also.

This meeting is expected to draw the largest number of candidates of any meeting of the campaign so far. The Jaycees are hopeful that a large turnout of interested citizens will greet the candidates and that they will come with questions.

will be administered by principals with inservice training and supervisory help from the school administration.

The program should give the children a wholesome introduction to school routine and help them to increase their language skills. Another six-week program, it will last from June 19-July 28 also.

The Headstart program for culturally deprived children will be expanded this summer. Schools in the program will be Arapago, Cooke, John B. Dey, Hermitage, Kempville Meadows, Lynnhaven, Seaboard, Seacock, Shelton Park, Thoroughgood, Bettie Williams and Woodstock.

There will also be enrichment classes for first and seventh graders to prepare them for next fall. According to Dr. Robert Kelly, director of elementary education, children that are doing poorly in first grade cannot hope to do well in the second. Likewise children behind in the seventh cannot adjust to high school. This is another six-week session.

In addition there will be special bank programs in six schools. Band teachers have complained there is not enough time for individual instruction to build up bands during the school year.

There will also be a program for teachers, also June 19-July 28 at the Norfolk Division of Virginia State College. It is a Humanities Institute and Follow-up Program with the title of "Theory and Problems of Changing Undesirable Attitudes of Teachers and Pupils Toward School Desegregation Through a Study of the Contributions of Minority Groups, Particularly the American Negro, to American Culture."

Dr. Theresa R. Love will be director. Teachers participating will receive a stipend of $450.

AS LONG AS THERE ARE PARADES AND PARADERS WITH AMERICAN FLAGS THERE WILL BE LITTLE BOYS TO STAND ON THE CURB, LISTEN TO THE MUSIC, WATCH THE MARCHERS GO BY AND DREAM OF BEING OUT THERE HIMSELF. THIS PICTURE WAS TAKEN LAST YEAR ON ATLANTIC AVENUE DURING THE ANNUAL ARMED FORCES DAY PARADE. THIS YEAR'S PARADE IS MAY 20.

Project Petunia--Again

The process of beautifying a city is a long and arduous one. Just in the past two years the changes that have been made to add to the beauty of Virginia Beach have been fantastic.

It has not been an easy task, nor has it been the work of only a few people. The Virginia Beach Beautification, the Council of Garden Clubs, individual garden clubs, women's clubs, City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, other city officials and many, many private citizens have all had a hand in the beautification of our city. All have played large roles in making Virginia Beach even more beautiful than it already was.

The planting of trees and shrubbery on city property along major roadways, such as Shore Drive, Virginia Beach Blvd. and Northampton Blvd. has increased the natural beauty. The planting of flowers on city-owned property near roadways and in median strips has certainly added much color to otherwise drab places.

Federal funds are available for beautification of cities, and Virginia Beach wisely applied for part of the money. With the head start that we already have here, Virginia Beach in the years to come can be one of the most beautiful cities in America. The climate is perfect also for some of the most beautiful trees, flowers and shrubs.

And one of the more important beautification projects in Virginia Beach takes place every year in May. It is an outgrowth of many other beautification programs and is known as Project Petunia.

The city has again taken the lead in this project. The triangle where Atlantic and Pacific Avenues come together is a fine example. It is ablaze with color at petunia time. Businessmen along the oceanfront have also followed and have planted petunias in front of hotels, motels and restaurants. Petunias have also been planted along highways and city streets by businessmen and private citizens.

Project Petunia is underway again now. It is a simple project to join, and not very costly at all. But the return on the small investment is manifold.

Not only are the petunia planters doing their part by joining in a worthy civic project, but they are adding to the overall beauty of the city of Virginia Beach.

Virginia Beach gets the majority of its visitors in the spring and summer months here. Let them see the beauty our citizens have provided. Join Project Petunia this year.

The Death of a Citizen

Virginia Beach has lost one of its most dedicated public servants. Lewis E. Smith served his city in many important positions, and at the time of his death filled probably the most important one of his career.

He was first appointed Treasurer of the City of Virginia Beach to fill a vacancy, then re-elected on his own. He served with the loyalty and respect of the community until the merger of Princess Anne County and the old city of Virginia Beach. In the four years since merger, Lewis Smith was Director of the Department of Public Utilities.

No job could have been more demanding; yet Lewis Smith was a man used to responsibility and continued to meet the challenges and needs for new water and sewer lines all over the city almost until the day of his death.

Lewis Smith was also an unassuming man and a public servant in the finest sense of the term. His death at such an early age has not only created a vacancy in an important position, but has taken from our midst a fine man known by many and liked by all.

Support for MS Society

Multiple Sclerosis is called the "Great Crippler of young adults". It is a long term disease of the brain and spinal cord in which nerve messages are blocked or scrambled. About a half-million Americans between the ages of 20 and 40 are afflicted with MS and related diseases at present.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society is currently conducting its annual Hope Chest campaign, and it needs the help of everyone. The cause of MS remains unknown, but the Society's research program is delving into the mysteries of the disease here and abroad. With the help of all our citizens, somewhere, someday the answers will be found.

During the 20 years in which the Society has been in operation, more has been learned about the disease than ever before in history. Since its founding in 1946, the Society has expended approximately seven million dollars in research and research fellowships. An additional million dollars has been budgeted for research during the current fiscal year.

In 1966 the International Federation of Multiple Sclerosis Societies was formed. The federation will coordinate and accelerate medical research seeking the cause and cure of MS and will help individuals disabled by the diseases and related neurological disorders.

In addition to its tragic effects, it is estimated that the disease creates a $2 billion annual loss to business, because two out of three victims of the disease are trained members of the work force in the peak years.

The people of Virginia Beach have always responded to charitable appeals in the past. The MS Society has a worth cause. We urge your usual fine support to help wipe out this dread disease.

Letters to the editor

First Letter On Politics

Dear Editor:

As an interested citizen-voter, I have watched, read and listened to the current political campaign until I feel compelled to write my first letter I ever wrote to an editor. Since 1951 Mr. Jack Etheridge has been, at least on the surface, an integral part of, and has enjoyed the benefits of, and has found no fault with, the Virginia Beach administration. Suddenly, in this campaign, everything that was proper in Mr. Etheridge's eyes for 16 years becomes improper. Never once did he criticize the leadership of Mr. Sidney Kellam or find fault with our city employees or our Police Dept. Suddenly all these things that he has supported are wrong and improper. As a confused citizen-voter, all I can do is conclude that Mr. Etheridge has switched and has changed his views.

I can only suggest to Mr. Etheridge that if everything is wrong with our community, its leaders and government, there is no requirement that he live in Virginia Beach, and I am sure he could find other communities which would be to his liking.

Harmless(?) Drugs

Dear Editor:

Reading in the February 1967 issue of the "Readers Digest" I was appalled to read to what extent a combination of seemingly harmless drugs like aspirin, antihistamines, tranquilizers etc. combined with a small amount of alcoholic beverages, like cocktails etc can do to the reflexes of automobile drivers in slowing up and impairing driving judgments.

Few of us realize these dangers and I feel that wide publicity should be given, so that the driving public may be made aware of these dangers and it may well be that these have caused some of our serious motor vehicle accidents and does seem to account for some of the erratic driving behavior noticed on our highways.

I sincerely recommend that all drivers read this account in the "Readers Digest" and seriously consider its serious implications.

James H. Parron, Jr.
Observations From New England

Dear Editor:

Where would you take your family for a vacation if you lived in New England and had to go in mid-April, when the schools were out? We're a family of four, and that was our problem.

It's still snowing in Vermont, but not enough to keep the ski areas operating. The world's fair in Montreal, Expo '67, is not open yet. It's barely above freezing on Cape Cod. New England's usual favorite, Atlantic City is busy on the boardwalk only, and Ocean City looks like a ghost town.

But Virginia Beach is within reach. There should be at least two warm days here in a week's time, and there are enough residents to support an interesting collection of sport shops, book shops, and indoor movies for cold and cloudy days. And there must be a choice of over 125 places to stay.

But it's not easy for a stranger to find just the right place to stay in a hurry without any help. We arrived in town on Sunday, when the Chamber of Commerce is closed. We wanted at least three of the following features: 1) oceanfront location, 2) two adjoining rooms, 3) apartment-type kitchen facilities, and 4) heated pool. Lesser considerations were cost, friendliness, and privacy.

Local residents and motel owners should be proud of the avenue's desk clerks. They treated us to some outstanding examples of genuine and professional salesmanship. But we couldn't seem to discover a place with more than two of our four desired features. We drove up and down for three hours, checking signs, asking questions, taking tours, re-evaluating our wants.

We could have used an accommodations directory, but none of the restaurants, drug stores, or gas stations we asked had one, either new or old. There was an understandable reluctance from the desk clerks to recommend other establishments, but some went so far as to flatter say there were no heated pools in operation, or there were no efficiencies on the oceanfront. I attribute this more to lack of information about competitors than deceit.

We settled happily for a cool pool in a fabulous oceanfront apartment, but just for fun, visited the Chamber office on Monday. We found it in a dark corner of a little, cluttered shopping center. At first it looked like no one was home because of the old papers, cigarette butts, and rubbish nestled against the building and packed into the shrubs out front. There was an oily rag and a smashed milk carton on the walk. But it is nice and clean inside, and no one will bother you with any unnecessary chit-chat like "Good morning," or "May I help you." I was not surprised to see that only four visitors had signed the Chamber's guest book in April, and that only about 50 visitors had registered since mid-September.

The folder racks had plenty of out-of-state and out-of-town information and old March movie schedules. We eagerly grabbed a copy of the Virginia Beach Recreation Bulletin. Unfortunately this contained nothing more interesting than the dates of various commission committee meetings, knitting classes and grade school volleyball contests.

We picked up one of the accommodations directories. We wouldn't have saved time by having one Sunday; it's a dizzying collection of ads. It would take you an uninterrupted hour at a desk with a red pencil and a pad of lined paper to catalogue all the establishments and their facilities. And you'd still have to drive up and down checking on availabilities, pool temperatures, exact rates, and what was meant by "luxurious appointments" (it means the rooms are furnished like all the other rooms up and down the beach).

Although the ladies in the Chamber office are presumably permitted to say "Good morning," they are not allowed to make recommendations about which places would be better for families, which for older couples, which for swingers. They aren't even allowed to hint.

Members make a chambergo around. Don't hold the chamber employees responsible for policies the members set. But the members might want to consider an inexpensive, outside folder rack for information when the office is closed.

They might also want to consider having impartial and well-informed Chamber employees giving out good information about their places, rather than forcing floundering strangers to run the risk of getting some bad information about their places from a competitor.

If unleashed, I think these Chamber employees would be as good salesmen for the whole area as your hospitable desk clerks are for the individual members they serve.

Sincerely,
Alden Horton, Jr.
Ed. Note: Mr. Horton and his family own and operate a ski lodge in Vermont. He also told us he enjoyed his vacation here and was favorably impressed with people here, especially the younger set and teenagers.

The fellow who first said, "A man's home is his castle..." obviously did not have a working wife. Or if he did, he was de-lousing himself badly.

For the past four years, my wife has filled out all those applications for credit with the word "housewife" where employment was called for. Unless I wanted an icy stare and three days of stony silence, I learned long ago never to say in front of her, "No, she doesn't work. She's just a housewife."

While she got dishpan hands, housemaid's knee and all those housewife's maladies, I did my dead level best to stave off her every effort to get me to do any work around the house. What I did do, was partially appease her by buying her a brand new work-saving household device. I figured how could anyone complain of so much to do with a washer, dryer, dishwasher, waxer, garbage disposer, vacuum cleaner, sewing machine and a new television set to watch while she had nothing to do during the day.

When even the appliances and devices failed, I tried lectures on male superiority and told her that I had much more important things to worry about, like the Common Market, Vietnam and the National League pennant race.

Finally she decided the only way to change her situation was to go to work. She has now been working one month, and I'm a nervous wreck. She immediately prepared for me a list of chores that are downright embarrassing to the male ego.

Make the beds; clear the table after dinner; tidy up the family room after the kids have been in there all day; get one child ready for bed; and vacuum the entire house are just a few of the new duties I have.

No longer can I sit down after dinner and read the paper or watch TV. No longer can I spend the weekends bowling, or watching the news and sports programs on TV. I have to do woman's work. Imagine That!

The house has never been cleaner, though. She spends her entire weekend and nine cleaning up, dusting, scrubbing, waxing, ironing, doing the laundry and tidying up so the maid won't think we keep a dirty or messy house.

The most horrible part of the day comes in the early morning. My wife has never been an early riser, and has rarely spoken three words before her coffee. But now, she is grumpier than ever, as she tries to elbow her way to the mirror to apply her eye makeup while I'm trying to shave.

And when I get home at night ready to unburden myself and all my problems of the office on her, she beats me to the punch and unburdens herself and all the problems of her work on me. It just isn't fair. What are women coming to? Next thing you know, they'll want to vote.

Now that her mind is "challenged again" by working outside the home, she also seems to have opinions on just about everything. The other day she even told me she predicts that St. Louis will win the National League pennant. I think that's going too far in her invasion of the male spectrum. And besides I was just about to predict that St. Louis would win the National League pennant.

All this jazz about children suffering when the mother goes to work is a lot of baloney too. They love it. They get to do all the things they want during the day while the maid is there. Then when Mother comes home, she brings them presents from her own money and spends the time between supper and their bedtime playing with them while I do the housewife's duties.

This bit about her own money is amusing too. How come if she has her own money now, I have to pay the maid, the baby sitters, for her lunches and the gas for the car which I bought?

Those first few weeks were hard to take. My male superiority had been threatened severely. My male ego had suffered miserably. And I had to do a lot more work around the house than I have ever done before. It was downright unnerving. But then her paychecks started to roll in.

How nice it is to be able to live in the style to which we had already been accustomed. How nice it is to be able to pay the bills on time again.

Maybe it's all worth it after all. But then I've been thinking of retiring and letting her support me. Maybe this is my chance. It wouldn't work out though. I'd get dishpan hands, houseman's knee and all those other stay-at-home diseases. I'd start to consider myself a "drudge". And I'd probably cry a lot at the lack of challenge my new position had. Then I'd just have to go out and get a job.

Don't get me wrong. My home is still my castle, no matter what the situation. But now, the Queen gives the orders.

Nominations Limited

High school juniors who are interested in entering the United States Air Force Academy upon graduation are reminded to apply for a nomination this spring, said Maj. Robert C. Hudson, the Academy liaison officer in the Virginia Beach area.

Members of Congress will soon begin to consider candidates to the class entering the Academy in June 1968. Since nominating quotas are limited for each member of Congress, the student should not delay making his application.

Senators and Representatives are interested in nominating successful high school students to be considered for Academy appointments from their states and congressional districts. A good scholastic standing, participation in extracurricular activities, and physical fitness are the most important factors considered by Congressmen in choosing their nominees.

Maj. Hudson is a member of the Air Force Reserve, not on active duty, who represents the Academy in high schools in this area. He urges students who are interested in the Academy to get in touch with him for information concerning the application procedures and entrance examinations.

Marlins Top Cox, Face Cradock Fri.

Steve Stanley of Bayside pitched a four-hitter to dash the hopes of the Cox Falcons for a leading position in the Eastern District standings.

Stanley's pitching and the hitting of the Bayside team in the seventh inning enabled the Marlins to defeat the stunned Falcons, 6-4. The loss dropped Cox to a third-place tie in the district.

Stanley's pitching made the game for Bayside until the seventh inning, when the Marlins exploded for five runs. Others contributing to the Bayside win were David Defoe, whose early double scored two runs, Stanley, who singled for 1 RBI, and Lefty Barba, also accounting for one RBI.

The Falcons made three runs in the ninth, but relief pitcher George Thomas got the last man to clinch the upset.

Cox to Host Meet

The 1967 Annual City Wide Track meet will be held at Cox High School tomorrow night. Runners from five high schools in the city will begin at 8.

Cox won the team title last year, but will be up against stiff competition tomorrow night. Princess Anne, Kellam, and Bayside are all strong this year. Favored runners in their events include: two mile-Magoon (C) West (PA); mile-Keene (PA) Gregory (B); 800-Taft (K) Gregory (B); 440-Taft (K); high hurdles-Binder (C) Wilkins (PA); low hurdles-Binder (C) Delacruz (PA); high jump-German (PA) Platt (B); triple jump-Platt (B) Binder (C).

Other events are wide open in competition.

Last week Brian Magoon of Cox was named the Outstanding Athlete at the Eastern District Relays. Magoon came from behind and narrowly beat West from PA in the most exciting race of the day.

Knights Only Team to Defeat Cradock

SLIDE--KELLAM CATCHER, DAVID PACE, TAGS OUT HIS PRINCESS ANNE OPPONENT IN A CLOSE PLAY AT HOME PLATE. KELLAM WON 6-1.

In what has been an erratic Eastern District season, the Kellam Varsity baseball team has posted a 6-4 record.

The Knights, coached by Tom McCauley, have nine returning lettermen from last year. In last season's play Kellam just missed the tournament with a 9-8 record. So far this season the Knights are in fifth place. However, Kellam is the only team to beat first place Cradock.

At the start of the season pitching was thought to be a question mark. However, the pitchers have come through well in eight complete games. Kellam's main problem has been a lack of timely hits.

The pitching staff consists of Steve Thompson, Warren Dixon, Mike Futrell and Ray Bazemore. Thompson and Futrell have 2-1 records.

Sophomore Alan Clements has been the leading hitter the entire season. Clements is currently hitting .378. He has already set a school record with three triples.

Joe Scripture is hitting .324, Mike Tucker .317, and David Pace .312.

Young Show Judge Offers Farm

At the age of 24, Jimmy Cantwell Jr. is one of the youngest American Horse Shows Assn. judges recognized.

Cantwell operates Hillcrest Farms where the Lions Club Second Annual Horse Show will be held Saturday and Sunday. The farm is off Indian River Rd. between Kempville Rd. and North Landing Rd.

Cantwell, who is an instructor and trainer at Hillcrest, has been invited to represent this area on a professional horseman's delegation to Europe in October. The group will visit riding schools, race farms and breeding farms.

Cantwell came by his horsemanship honestly. Hillcrest Farms is a family enterprise which began as a hobby about 14 years ago. Through the combined efforts of Pam and Jimmy Cantwell, sister and brother, and their parents, Jamie and Jim Cantwell, Hillcrest has now become the largest farm of its kind in the state.

A member of the Lions Club,

Sgt. Gay Competes

Master Sgt. James A. Gay of 433 Dorset Ave., is one of 66 top Army Reserve marksmen who represented the XXI U. S. Army Corps during the Rifle and Pistol Championship Matches at Ft. George G. Meade, Md.

The annual championship is part of the Army's program to increase the proficiency of military personnel with individual weapons. It is also designed to further interest among personnel of First Army's 15-state and District of Columbia area in competitive marksmanship activities.

Cantwell has donated the grounds for the show at no charge.

The Princess Anne Lions Club Horse Show is a member of the Virginia Horse Shows Assn., Inc. and is rated "D" in the following divisions: small and large pony hunters, green hunters, open jumpers and V.H.S.A. equitation.

Miscellaneous divisions on Sunday are not recognized. They are: student, pleasure, western, and roadster pony.

Alton M. Butler will be ringmaster. The show is a member of the Virginia Horse Shows Assn.

Records Expected to Fall

The speed record at North Carolina Motor Speedway will be broken during qualifying for the June 18 Carolina 500 at Rockingham, rival tire manufacturer representatives agreed recently.

Both Chuck Blanchard, Goodyear's southern stock car racing chief, and Al Clark, Firestone's senior racing engineer, concurred that the current mark of 116,959 m.p.h. will be exceeded. Their observations came after each company had completed a week of tests at the mile, high-banked super-speedway.

"We completed 900 miles of testing here," Clark said, "and we are very pleased. I predict the track record will be lowered two-tenths of a second."

This would raise the average speed to 117.8 m.p.h.

Petty's fast lap during the tests was 116,05 m.p.h. while Baker's fastest was 115.23 m.p.h.

Plymouth's Jim Paschal, however, cut a fast lap of 116.58 m.p.h. during the Goodyear tests while Dodge-driving Bobby Isaac's best mile speed was 116 flat.

"After running 1,000 miles of test here," Goodyear's Blanchard said, "I see no reason why the qualifying speed should not reach 118 m.p.h. And on the basis of information we've gained from this test, the speed could increase as much as two miles an hour."

That would put the Carolina 500 qualifying speed right at 119 m.p.h.

Bayside Pharmacy

A Family Business Fits Into Modern Trend

George William Detterman opened the store as manager in 1953 when it was owned by Burrow Martin.

Now he has bought it and manages it with his pharmacist son, G.W. Detterman Jr. as Bayside Pharmacy at Shore Dr., and Pleasure House Rd.

There have been some changes made,

For one thing the store is nearly double the size it was when the Dettermans bought it in 1962. For another, the store has just been extensively re-decorated.

There is an immediate feeling of luxury as you enter. The cosmetic department is carpeted and has a modern chandelier. The prescription department, in a separate section of the store, is panelled.

Dr. Detterman says that he clipped ideas as he saw them and filed them away for the time when he would need them. It paid off in an attractive store designed by Flair Designs of Norfolk.

"There's a lot of them and a lot of us in it," says Dr. Detterman.

Detterman Sr. has been in the drug business more than 30 years. Dr. Detterman worked in drug stores "off and on" before graduating from college in 1956. A third member of the business is Robert L. Detterman, another son, who is a nuclear engineer in California. He will be here for the festivities, however.

The store has grown to more than 30 employees and three pharmacists.

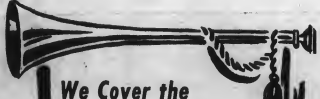

The grand opening sale will include souvenirs for the ladies and a Loft's candy party. The store will close early on Sunday when an invitation-only open house is planned for city officials and persons who have taken part in the remodeling.

Detterman Sr. lives at Chesapeake Beach and his son in Baylake Pines.

Best wishes to a private business which is large enough to be modern, and still small enough to remember the individual customer.

Meet the Press...

The name is the same.

The newspaper is not. The staff, presses, style and offices are new. The "oldtimers" are the ones who have been with the newspaper more than three years.

The city is changing too. The newspaper has changed to keep pace, to make the citizens proud of having a newspaper of their own, a newspaper worthy of one of the fastest growing cities in the state.

The present Sun is owned by a group of 27 stockholders made up of Virginia Beach and Norfolk businessmen. No one stockholder owns controlling interest of the stock.

The forerunner of the Sun was begun as the Virginia Beach Weekly in 1924 by Amos Johnson, who was later bought out by Congressman Joseph Deal who changed the name to the Virginia Beach News. Thus it remained until 1952 when it was acquired by the Sun which had been established in 1949.

The original presses for the Sun were brought from Ohio. Unfortunately it took two more weeks than planned to get the presses running. The paper was called Sun-News after the consolidation, but the News was later dropped from the title—despite the fact that the Sun still gets mail addressed to the Sun-News.

Last fall a series of changes began. First more space was acquired, and the newsroom moved into a modern, panelled office along with WVAB radio.

Then in October the Sun acquired a hole in the composing room—a reminder of the letter press that had taken up floor space there. Early in November the Sun's new offset press arrived, and on the 17th of that month the first issue was printed on the new press in spite of the fact that the copy had to be set in Franklin and transported back to Virginia Beach by station wagon for the first week.

Offset produces much clearer photographs and permits more use of color in the paper.

JIM COATES, GENERAL MANAGER

Jim Coates is the man responsible for generating the Sun's rays... the man behind the staff in the Sun operation.

A businessman long associated with the automobile business in Tidewater, James P. Coates has put his knowledge of finances and business management to work turning the Sun into a lively, informative and entertaining community paper. He has assembled the professional newsmen who now make up the Sun staff.

Mr. and Mrs. Coates, their one daughter and one son live in Bay Colony.

JEANNE TUCKER, WOMEN'S EDITOR

Women's editor Jeanne Magee Tucker brings to the Sun news staff the necessary woman's touch.

That touch has been recognized throughout the state as a very professional one. Her women's pages recently received a first place prize among weekly and semi-weekly papers in Virginia.

Mrs. Tucker will be remembered by Tidewater readers as women's editor on a Norfolk paper, a position she held for some seven years. She retired to devote more time to her family, which consists of a husband and seven youngsters. They live in London Bridge.

The excitement of a growing community and the challenge of helping a paper grow with its community prompted her decision to hang her women's editor shingle in the Sun newsroom.

Carolyn McAllen returned to the newspaper business six months ago after a six-year retirement to raise three children.

Now serving as reporter and copy editor, her previous experience was as a police and city hall reporter in Teakana, Texas, and as an intern for two summers on newspapers in Houston and El Paso, Texas.

Although a native of Memphis, Tenn., she received her journalism degree from the University of Mo., where she was a member of Theta Sigma Phi journalism fraternity.

In between trips from one end of Virginia Beach to the other in search of news, Carolyn lives with her husband, three children and two dogs in Kings Grant.

CAROLYN McALLEN, REPORTER, COPY EDITOR

James E. "Jimmy" Simmons is the man in the Sun office with a perpetual furrow between his brows.

He is a friendly man, but his continual drive to make the Sun an even more successful newspaper is a responsibility the advertising director takes to heart.

A native of Norfolk, he attended William and Mary College and took advanced courses at Columbia University and Rutgers University. He spent 30 years with Norfolk Newspapers before joining the Sun.

He received the Virginia Beach Sports Club 1966 award as Sportsman of the Year for his many efforts for youth including serving as chairman of the fund-raising committee which built a field for the Princess Anne Little League and organizing the Lynnhaven Pony and Colt League plus serving as chairman for its fund-raising committee too.

JIMMY SIMMONS, ADVERTISING DIRECTOR

The Newsroom...

OLGA EDWARDS, ADVERTISING SALES

Advertising gal Olga Edwards needs no introduction to Sun readers.

She has lived at the Beach for the past 38 years, has, for the past four, worn two Sun bonnets; one as a Sun advertising saleswoman, the other as a Party Line personality whose social column appeared weekly on the Sun women's pages.

At present, she is concentrating only on increasing her advertising lineage.

Mrs. Edwards, the mother of two children: a son attending Hampden-Sidney, and a married daughter who lives in Richmond.

Mrs. Edwards lives in Virginia Beach Borough.

Artist-illustrator Meredith Sembler rules her corner of the newsroom with a beautifully-manicured but firm hand... a hand as capable at the drawing board as it is at keeping intruders out.

Out.... being outside her walled-in corner where she surrounds herself with an assortment of artsy-craftsy supplies she uses to turn her ideas into imaginative layouts and illustrations for ads... when time permits, sketches for the news pages.

Robert Earl "Bob" Whitley is an ambitious young man who, in a little over seven months at the Sun, has progressed to assistant advertising director.

Besides selling advertising, Bob dummies in the pages—that is, he decides what ads are going where.

A native of Norfolk and a graduate of Maury High School, he attended Old Dominion College. Before coming to the Sun he was employed by Norfolk Newspapers for four years.

A newly-wed (married less than a year), he and his wife live in Pembroke. He is a member of the Norfolk Exchange Club and First Presbyterian Church.

BOB WHITLEY, ADVERTISING

MEREDITH SEMBLER, ART DIRECTOR

She learned it all at Richmond Polytechnical Institute, acquired her on-the-job experience with an ad agency in Newport News.

When she's away from it all she surfs and sails... a young sophisticate and career woman who shares a Beach apartment with three other young careerists.

She's the Sun staff's "Now" girl, with Now ideas for a Now paper.

...the Office Staff...

One title just won't describe Betty Boss.

She's receptionist—and proof reader—and takes classified ads and legal notices—and is in charge of taking subscriptions. She's been with the paper more than two years.

A native of New York, she has lived in this area since 1959 and now makes her home at Hilltop. She likes to swim.

It's her friendly smile that greets everyone who stops for information, and her voice that remains cheerful no matter how hurried she may be.

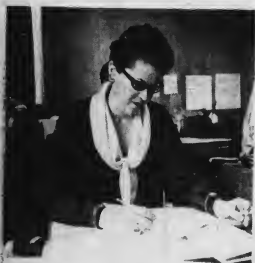

Chief cook and bottle washer for the business office is Hazel Ware, whose official titles include bookkeeper and office manager.

She cracks the whip (not really) over the girls under her to see that the work gets done on time. Another big job for which she receives no salary and too little credit is maintaining the office's supply of coffee.

A native of Watsonville, Calif., she has lived at the Beach 10 years, now at Colonial Arms Apts., and has worked for the Sun two years. She has a daughter and a son.

HAZEL WARE, OFFICE MANAGER

BETTY BOSS, RECEPTIONIST

A real go-go girl always on the go is Rene Michaels, who is the youngest and probably most energetic staff member.

As ad composer she assists in laying out ads, setting type and most anything else that needs to be done in the composing room except run the presses.

RENE MICHAELS, AD COMPOSITOR

Sally Palmer is another member of the busy single-set around the office.

As a Justwriter operator she is in charge of setting stories in type. She also operates the headline machine which she affectionately calls "Morris."

SALLY PALMER, JUSTWRITER OPERATOR

CALVIN LEE PHILLIPS, MAINTENANCE

Bo and Calvin Lee Phillips are included in the same story because they are also included in the same family—as brothers.

Bo is the older and has been with the Sun longer—almost a year. Calvin Lee began work around the first of the year after his brother recommended

CLYDE "BO" PHILLIPS, PRESS ASSISTANT

Bo, as press assistant, is more settled in his ways. He's married and the proud father of a new son.

Calvin Lee, maintenance superintendent, is still looking—for a wife that is.

BOB SMITH, PRODUCTION SUPERINTENDENT

Bob Smith is the man who claims the presses as "his."

He's the production superintendent, and thanks to him the newspaper is printed. The composing room is also "his," but he allows some of the rest of the staff in to assist him.

A native of the area—old South Norfolk, that is—he graduated from Maury High School. Before coming to the Sun four and a half years ago, he worked for Norfolk Newspapers three years.

He and his wife (three kids too) live in Princess Anne Plaza. Bob is president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, his main interest besides bowling.

D. C. Raper, better known as "Doug" is the man who makes up for the mistakes of the news staff.

His 21 years in the graphic arts field did not quite prepare him for the enthusiastic photographic efforts of the newspaper staff. But he's caught on fast in two months.

He is a cameraman and a stripper. A stripper, by the way, in offset language is responsible for fitting the negatives into pages.

Before coming to the Sun in March, Doug was employed by Danville Commercial Appeal in Danville. His wife and son, will be joining him here as soon as school ends.

Fairer Fair Is Fair Prediction

If there is fair weather, fair officials have given fair warning that the Greater Tidewater Fair Assn. fair in Virginia Beach this year will be far better than fair.

Plans for the 1967 fair, which will be held again at Hilltop this fall, were unveiled at a press conference at the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel in Norfolk.

The dates for the fair this year are Sept. 25-30, one week earlier than last year, according to John Shand, who is working with the fair again this year.

Virginia Beach Elks Lodge 2268 is again sponsoring the fair, and will again donate all proceeds to charity. Shand was president of the Virginia Beach Elks Lodge last year.

The first edition of the fair last year was plagued with problems that Shand says General Manager Steve Rose has solved this year.

The worst problems last October, however, centered around the weather. Shand admitted that Rose could do nothing about that, but said Rose "is making sure everything else works in our favor".

Rose engaged an architect to lay out the plan of the fair this year. He says the architect designed a large parking area to be covered with oyster shells and walkways throughout the fair which will be covered with sand or macadam.

In addition huge quartz lights will provide needed illumination at all places on the grounds.

"We learned a lot last year," said Shand, "and we are attempting to solve all the problems this year."

New attractions will include a grandstand show with Joey Chitwood's thrill show and possibly the California Derby. There will also be livestock displays and shows, being sponsored by local 4-H clubs. There will also be additional displays and exhibits of interest to the farmer.

Shand hinted that Rose is hopeful by next year of having his own grounds for the fair and much of his own equipment. Rose just smiled.

On the midway this year, a large number of additional rides will be added. The rides will be provided by the Degler Shows, and will include a $275,000 triple ferris wheel that takes two days to set up.

Fireworks displays will be held every night as another attraction for the anticipated 100 to 135 thousand people who will visit the fair.

Rose and Shand will be keeping a wary eye on the skies, hoping that the rains stay away this year.

Last year was the first time Tidewater had a large fair in many years. The Greater Tidewater Fair is also one of the first fairs in the country to be started in recent years and become successful almost overnight.

"So this year, we are going to have the second biggest fair Tidewater has ever seen," said Shand.

JOHN SHAND REVEALS PLANS FOR THE 1967 GREATER TIDEWATER FAIR TO BE HELD IN VIRGINIA BEACH IN SEPTEMBER.

Senior Gets Naval Academy Appointment

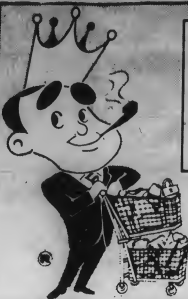

Ernest L. Morris Jr., vice president of the senior class at Princess Anne High School, has been selected by the Secretary of the Navy as one of 85 Naval and Marine Corps Reservists for appointment to the Naval Academy.

Morris, who lives at 5213 Castle Rd., is a member of the reserve crew of the destroyer Willard Keith (DD-775). His father is also a Naval Reservist and was recently appointed a chief warrant officer with Military Sea Transportation Service Division 5-1 at the reserve training center here.

Jr. Civitans Pick Two

Two First Colonial High School students were elected officers of the Chesapeake District of Junior Civitan at a meeting in Hampton recently.

Tom Eagar, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Eagar of 613 Berkeley Pl., was elected governor. He will be the leader of all Junior Civitan Clubs in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia. Also elected at the convention to the office of treasurer was Pam Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Council D. Garrett of 3368 Eagle Nest Pt.

Art Show Shaping Up

BY JEANNE MAGEE TUCKER
Women's Editor

If the ocean breezes, the exhibitors and the lost children stay as calm as the show's general chairman, the Beach's annual Boardwalk Art Show will again this year break its previous year's record... as it has for the past several seasons.

It's that time again, and general chairman Patty Masterson, who served in the same capacity last year and as co-chairman the year before that, appears again to be taking calmly in her stride the prospects of lost children (last year some 22 in one day alone), confused shoppers (a caller with an enormous piece of sculpture under her arm, woke the Mastersons at 7:30 a.m. last year to ask how she should get her purchase back to Boston), and overwrought exhibitors (one artist missed a chance at a top prize because she didn't recognize the tag as the sign of a winning artist), a few of the upsets that would drive a not-so-calm chairman into the pounding surf, art show notwithstanding.

As chairman, Mrs. Masterson presided over the general meeting Wednesday night in Gallilee Episcopal Church, the meeting that actually set the wheels in motion for the upcoming show.

"We work from July to July making basic plans and laying the groundwork... lining up judges, soliciting prizes, planning the out-of-town publicity, but the Wednesday meeting is when we really begin the work of staging the show."

This year's show will be staged from July 13 through 17.

Begun some 12 years ago, the annual art show for years produced more headaches than profits. In more recent years, though, it has brightened the boardwalk scene, at the same time brightening the summer for the exhibiting artists who last year took home some $61,790.16 from art sales alone. Unfortunately for the show sponsors, the Virginia Beach Art Association, none of this amount stays with the association.

Their share of the boardwalk bounty amounts only to that money which is derived from patrons and the exhibitors' entry fees... and however large or small that amount, it is stashed away for the cultural center the art association hopes some day will be part of the Beach scene.

If a not-so-calm chairman were one year to take over the show, she'd probably blow the whole amount on a huge party for all the people who contribute to the show's success.

In addition to the art association members who work from July to July fitting the pieces together, Mrs. Masterson said the list of civic groups and city officials (without whose cooperation and assistance the show could probably be staged in the Norwegian Lady's front yard instead of on the boardwalk) who turn to where needed while the show is on as long as is the show itself.

Her Beat's On The Bandstand Circuit

'Tis said that music hath charm... and Jeep Bennett's combo proves it.

Drummer girl Polly Bennett swings nightly with her husband's orchestra; the woman in Jeep Bennett's life for the past 29 years, the man on his drums for the past 15.

Polly Bennett, mother of four, joined the downbeat set in order to spend more time with her husband; she took two of the little Bennetts along on the circuit, left the other two at home with grandma.

The four are now grown, launched on their own individual careers, and while their musical parents are still playing engagements nightly, the tempo of their lives has slowed to a nice easy pace that includes local engagements only, a home at Sandbridge, and a chance for Jeep to paint the sand dunes which he has come to love.

The tempo was not always as slow as it is now.

During the big band era, Jeep traveled extensively with bands such as Tommy Dorsey, Glenn Miller, Will Bradley, Bob Chester... but as the big band sounds gradually gave way to the more intimate sounds of the small combo, Jeep formed his own six-man group, handed Polly the drumsticks and signed her on.

The slim, blonde and lively lady drummer has been a star attraction ever since, a situation that could, conceivably, lead to all types of nightclub nonsense, But it hasn't.

The lady drummer has never had to bring her drumstick down on a tipsy two-stepper's head, but her husband had to... just once. He cracked a man on the head with his clarinet... the only time the problem ever came up.

Their circuit, then as now, includes cocktail lounges, officers' clubs, country clubs, hotels.

It requires few of the smashing clothes often thought to be the trademark of the woman on the bandstand, and of the demands generally made on the bandmen's time between sets, Polly said she learned to cope with this situation very early in the game.

"I like people, very much. I really do. I couldn't do this if I didn't. But when I first began, I was very naive. You have to be sophisticated. After you've been in the business this long, you learn how long to stay at a table with the guests. It's really no problem.

"Clothes are not really a problem, either. I'm very conservative, and since I'm not a vocalist, I don't feel that I have to be too dressed up, unless it's a very formal dance. I try to sort of blend in with the men."

The Bennetts' day begins around noon... and winds up around 1:30 or 2 a.m.

"Jeep practices every day, but since our combo plays together every night, we don't really have to have rehearsals. Jeep's also an artist... he Bayside Junior Woman's Club, who chose the late, late hour of 10:30 and the New Now fashion find, paper dresses, for a gimmick to liven their informal get-together with delegates to the recent clubwomen's convention in Norfolk, one recent Saturday night chose the respectable hour of 9 p.m. and the conservative look of black tie formality for their annual spring dance in the Cavalier Hotel.

It was all very prim and proper until that same late, late hour...but instead of paper-mates, this time it was play-mates....an invasion of bunny girls who hopped from table to table with a basket full of chances...all for funds for the children's book section of the new Bayside Library. Area Students

They'll Join Drive

For Funds

American Cancer Society's annual crusade has, here at the Beach, attracted the attention of area high school students who've turned their free time into fund time for the cause.

Crusade chairman Jerome Hostetler has reported that 1,000 juniors and seniors, over age 17, are actively participating in the '67 campaign. Representatives of Kellam, Kempsville, Bayside, Cox and First Colonial will solicit funds throughout their areas.

It marks the first time that area young people have been encouraged to participate in the city's campaign, Hostetler said.

"Their enthusiasm reflects their interest in the city's civic projects and development," he added.

UNICEF works in over 100 countries and spends no more annually than one of our average large cities spends, in a month or so, on its welfare services.

Often, after the ball is over, they'll grab a sandwich somewhere before going home. But the day of the late, late jam sessions, are, like the big band era, a thing of the past, Polly said.

"That was the best era of music. We think it will be reborn. We feel that something better has to come out of today's music. Maybe it's even begun. In New York, Dixieland is replacing rock and roll. This seems to be an indication of sorts."

But while the big bands were topping, the little band of Bennetts was growing. Their 29-year marriage, admittedly a rare thing in show business, has produced two girls and two boys: one son, now a seminarian studying for the priesthood; the other son, their baby, scheduled for Vietnam next month; one daughter, living in Manila, married, and in medical school; the other daughter married and living in Alabama.

Of the group, only the son studying for the priesthood feels the musical beat. He plays classical guitar.

Polly was 15 and Richmond's city champion tennis player when she met her husband. He organized his first band at the University of North Carolina; she joined the group as a vocalist.

"When I married him, Jeep was supposed to be a chemist; that lasted only for about three years," Polly said, but while Jeep the musician is a far cry from Jeep the chemist, Polly the drummer and Jeep the clarinetist apparently are seldom if ever out of tune.

She Has An Eye For Needling

A Princess Anne High School student proficient in the art of needling has decided on a cooling off period rather than a career when she graduates this June. Right now college and/or a career to her are unknown quantities so undecided is she about her future.

But whatever she decides to do, it will no doubt involve fabrics or fashions or a little of both.

Carolyn Davis, 18, caught the eye of the judges who last week chose the winners of Princess Anne's annual sewing class contest.

Some 50 or more sewing students presented a showing of their year's accomplishments. Among the group were several who displayed in every category. Carolyn showed three garments, took awards for two of them. Her choice of styles reflected her good taste as well as her good workmanship.

"My styles depend on my moods. Sometimes I like sporty clothes... mostly, I guess I like sporty clothes... but certainly not anything real dressy."

She works with Simplicity patterns, "mostly I look at everything... all the pattern books, but when it comes to buying, I usually buy Simplicity designer patterns."

Carolyn, au courant with styles, nonetheless shies from the mini-skirt. "They're great for people who can wear them, but I don't think everyone should wear them just because it's the thing. Mine are usually just Kempville Women's Club last week sponsored its annual sewing contest for members of Home Economic classes at Princess Anne High School. The luncheon-fashion show was held in Pine Tree Inn.

First place winners were Carolyn Davis for school wear and formal wear; Sheryl Wiseman for dressy clothes; and Daphne Via, sportswear.

The group installed its new officers for the '67-'68 season.

Mrs. W. M. Newbern was installed president. Serving with her will be Mrs. J. G. Williams, Mrs. R. F. Humphries and Mrs. Maurice D. Casey Jr., vice-presidents; Mrs. W. D. Maroulis and Mrs. G. N. Whaley Jr., secretaries; Mrs. E. G. Middleton Jr., treasurer; Mrs. C. A. Bamforth, parliamentarian; Mrs. R. M. Whitfield, historian.

above the knee. I hate to feel when I sit down half my leg is showing. Twiggys look great in them... "This year I haven't done as much sewing as I'd like. I'm president of a Tri-Hi-Y at school and this is taking a lot of my time... but for special occasions, I'll usually make something new."

One of the dresses Carolyn made and wore in the fashion show was a plaid woolskimmer. This is one of her favorites.

"I made it just because I wanted to, then I covered shoes for it and made a pocketbook. I feel like the whole thing is mine."

She often improvises... "I had a shirtwaist pattern but it didn't have tucks so I put tucks in it. Often I'll put two different patterns together... and she's impatient. "I often wish I didn't have to cut out... when I buy I feel that I should be able to sew right away. And I have to keep sewing until it's done. I can't put it down."

"I began sewing when I was about 10, making doll clothes... but soon I began sewing for myself. I've been sewing ever since."

"When I go to buy things, it feels like they don't fit as I want them to. When I sew it's what I want exactly... and I save money."

A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Davis of Lampl Avenue, Birchwood Gardens, Carolyn has a job in a fabric shop waiting for her when she graduates.

She'll work for a year to see how she feels then about her future.

"Maybe I'll go into merchandising... maybe be a buyer... but probably be in the fashion field, somewhere."

Installations, Reviews Mark Year-End Activities

Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Woman's Club wrapped up their club year with an installation of officers and a review of the club's accomplishments for the year.

Among the accomplishments was the club's annual antiques show and sale, reported by the treasurer to have resulted in a profit of $8,593.85. Of this amount, $4,900 will enrich the building fund of the Mental Health Center of Virginia Beach; $1,600 will go for a scholarship; the remainder to club charities and other scholarships.

Mrs. Erma T. Mott, general chairman of the '66 show, announced that the '67 show will be held Oct. 26 through 29 in the Civic Center. Already, some 32 exhibitors have contracted for spaces for the upcoming show, leaving only nine available spaces left. Mrs. R. H. Owen was elected to serve as honorary chairman of the show.

The club's large Heart Fund fund raiser, the Round-the-World fashion show, brought in some $1,144.45, which was presented to James R. McKenry, chairman of the Virginia Beach Heart Fund Drive. To this amount, the clubwomen added an additional $100.

The new slate of officers, headed by Mrs. M. B. Zoll, was installed by Mrs. Walter L. Thomas of Newport News, first vice president of the Tidewater District, Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs. Serving also will be Mrs. Edward Simiele, Mrs. Earl DuVal and Mrs. R. W. Whitehurst, vice presidents; Mrs. C. A. Miller, treasurer; Mrs. L. M. Robeson and Mrs. F. B. Wilhoit, secretaries.

Elizabeth River Shores Garden Club met April 6 in the home of Mrs. W. M. Newbern with Mrs. L.B. Adams as co-hostess. A report was given on the Annual Spring Beautification Drive. Every family in the area has been contacted and urged to cooperate by cleaning-up their yards. Members of the garden club have worked in the parkway between the entrance ways to the area. Spring flowers are now being planted.

The list includes the Council of Garden Clubs, The King's Daughters, firemen and policemen, the Navy and their wives' clubs, the city manager and numerous others who have seen the Boardwalk Art Show grow in country-wide recognition and size each year.

And as the show grows, so do the plans for the cultural center and the art collection which will be an important part of the center.

The association acquires the best in show work of art... the only purchased prize in the show. The winning artist receives $1,000, a portion of the total $2,700, which is doled out to the winning exhibitors. The best in show works eventually will become permanent collection to be hung in the cultural center. Area artist A. B. Jackson last year won this top award.

It's an open show. Any artist over 18 with the price of the small entry fee may exhibit.

"We're getting lots and lots of professionals," Mrs. Masterson said, "but it is still an open show. This is the way we want it."

It's Volunteer Fire Dept. Month Here

By official proclamation of Virginia Beach Mayor Frank A. Dusch, the month of May has been set aside as Volunteer Fire Dept. Month. During the period the 13 volunteer fire departments and rescue squads which serve the city of Virginia Beach will be conducting their fund-raising campaigns.

The men who protect the city and who are on call 24 hours of every day will visit houses in their own particular areas seeking contributions to guarantee the continuation of the fine protection the residents of Virginia Beach have known in the past.

They do not seek much. They ask the minimum contribution of $3.65 per household, or one penny per day for an entire year. And it is a proven fact that because of the excellent protection they have given, homeowners pay as much as $25 less in fire insurance than they would if the volunteers were not on the job. The donation they seek is far less than that.

Each department has highly trained men assigned at all times, no matter what the weather or the time of day. They are all volunteers with full-time jobs other than their fire and rescue duties. But they give a few hours every week to insure the safety of the citizens of Virginia Beach.

The men are all dedicated to their responsibility, and continue to train themselves to be even better qualified in fire-fighting methods and in first aid and rescue work. They must pass rigid tests of high standards before they are allowed to become members of a volunteer fire department. It is hard work to become a member and hard work once they become members.

Many of the departments operate under real handicaps. They have often lacked equipment and their buildings are often inadequate. But this does not stop them. Never has there ever been a complaint that the volunteers did not do their job, but the praise heaped upon them has been great and richly deserved.

In recent months nearly every department has purchased new and needed equipment, partly on loans from the City. The equipment now in service can honestly be called efficient and modern in every way.

But the operation of the volunteer units on a day-to-day basis is strictly up to the residents of the areas served. Only through the generosity of the people of Virginia Beach can the departments do the best possible job.

The next time you hear the low mournful whistle in the deep of night or the siren of a fire engine or ambulance passing your door, think about the security all of us have because of the men and equipment of the volunteer fire departments of Virginia Beach.

This is their month. You can help make it a successful month for them.

New Folder Describes Attractions

A variety of interesting and exciting adventures are listed in "Ocean Hiway Tours", a newly-published folder compiled by the Ocean Hiway Assn. with home office here.

The folder provides a brief description of 28 local tours and lists the organizations that can furnish additional detailed information, tour guides and folders.

The special tour attractions for visitors have been developed by cities, chambers of commerce and other organizations in the historic seven-state vacationland that embraces the coastal sections of New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

A free copy of the coastal tour folder may be obtained from Ocean Hiway Association, P. O. Box 167, Virginia Beach, Va. 23458. Also available is a color map-folder, a 40-page motorists' guide, an events folder, rules for the $5,000 Ocean Hiway Photo Contest, and information on the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel and the Ocean Hiway's "choice of routes".

In addition to Dr. Oglesby's address, there will be an opportunity for discussion and for asking questions of the speaker.

Family Life Conference Set Sunday

When there is a fire in your community, you call the fire department. When there's a bad accident, you're the rescue squad. When there's sickness, you go to the doctor.

Every large community provides for these crises in life. But there's one crisis that often goes unattended. It is the crisis of family life. In this age of busy-ness, anxiety and speed, families often find themselves up against a variety of problems—finances, parent-child relations, husband-wife tensions, single parent homes, working mothers, and many others.

What do we do about these problems? Usually we don't do anything until something explodes. Then it is often too late to make repairs.

The Churches of the Princess Anne Plaza area are concerned about the mounting problems in family life today. They want to do something about it. As a start they are planning to have an afternoon conference on Sunday for all the residents of the Plaza and surrounding community.

This conference, which will begin at 3:00 p.m. at the Bow Creek Presbyterian Church, will present the theme: "The Crises of Family Life Today." The speaker will be Dr. William Oglesby of the Union Theological Seminary in Richmond. Dr. Oglesby is an outstanding authority in the field of family life.

This conference is being sponsored by the Protestant and Catholic churches in the Plaza and surrounding community. It is open to all persons.

One of the sponsoring ministers said, "Who among us does not know something of the crises that modern living produces in our homes. Our problems may seem small, but that's where the big problems get their start."

Churches sponsoring the conference are: Bow Creek Presbyterian, Emmanuel Lutheran, Plaza Baptist, Princess Anne Plaza Methodist, St. Francis Episcopal and St. Nicholas Roman Catholic Church.

Outdoor Show Displays Equipment

The perfect place to give in to spring fever this weekend will be the Pembroke Mall Shopping Center. It will be the ideal location to visit for six days, beginning Sunday, to daydream a little bit and maybe even make those dreams come true.

The great outdoors will be the theme of it all, and there will be on display every facet of outdoor life. No matter what one may enjoy about the summer and summer sports, he will find it exhibited before his very eyes on the mall.

A group of boating and camping business establishments have formed a beautifully planned show and have worked with Mrs. Barbara Leitman, promotion director of the shopping center to create the outdoors indoors on the mall.

Camping is not what it used to be. No longer does "camping out" necessarily mean "roughing it" in the woods. The days of the pup tent and the hard bed roll are gone forever. They can still be enjoyed by the rugged individualists, but for those who want the thrill of camping in new and exciting places away from the beaten path, there is now a new and exciting way to camp.

All the conveniences of home can belong to the camper if he wishes today, and the Pembroke Mall show will prove it. The casual observer will be able to examine closely all the camping trailers and equipment of today. And who knows, he may find himself caught up in a brand new world and join the thousands of new campers this summer.

Boats and boating are not new to Virginia Beach, but there are new boats and boating equipment this year. They too will be on display on the mall for the dreamer, the experienced boater or the fellow who is just about ready to buy that first small boat.

Surprisingly enough boating and camping are not nearly as expensive as they used to be as will be seen by the visitors to the show. The equipment is now easily within the reach of nearly everyone.

State Seashore Park in Virginia Beach is a good example. In recent years, the camping facilities there have been expanded tremendously, but there are still not enough places for the large number of campers who arrive each day in the summer season.

And if there is someone who has not seen the large number of large and small boats on the Chesapeake Bay, Long Creek, the Atlantic Ocean, the Lynnhaven River and all the little creeks and canals around Virginia Beach, he is in for a big surprise. Boat traffic around our city is extremely heavy, in fact there is even a police officer cruising around all summer to enforce the laws.

Perhaps it's time to stop dreaming. Perhaps it is time to do something about those dreams. Dreaming of buying or buying to fulfill those dreams, the place to see it all is at Pembroke Mall Shopping Center starting Sunday at noon.

The camping and boat show will be open until 5 p.m. Sunday and from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday. It closes on May 13 at 6 p.m. Prizes of all kinds will be given away during the show, and entries into several national contests with boating and camping prizes will be available at the individual exhibits on the mall.

The exhibitors will be manning their displays at all times, ready to help you enjoy your spring fever.

PIRATE'S SPOT... Flatts Inlet is one of Bermuda's finest small harbors, a narrow but deep ribbon of gin-clear water where raskish privateers once hid out, whereas clipper ships later were built and where today many a yacht finds shelter from the worst weather.

Boats to Get Free Safety Checks

United States Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotillas of the 5th Division will conduct a two-day courtesy motorboat examination program May 6 and 7, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. at various marinas and boat clubs as well as boat ramps of Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach and Elizabeth City, N.C.

This free boat inspection will afford the boatmen the opportunity to have their boats inspected by qualified examiners of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary. When the boat meets Auxiliary requirements, the boat owner is awarded a decal which is placed in a prominent position on the boat.

When the courtesy motorboat examination decal is displayed, it is generally accepted by the Coast Guard, and the boat would only be boarded if a violation was obvious. However, anyboat, at any time is subject to be boarded by the Coast Guard.

The main purpose of the program is to instill in the minds of boat owners the necessity for and the promotion of "Safety afloat".

The Coast Guard Auxiliary is a voluntary civilian group of individuals banded together for the sole purpose of promoting and teaching boating safety. The United States Coast Guard urges all boaters to take advantage of this free examination.

Examinations will be conducted at the following stations:

Flotilla 52... Tidewater Boat Club, 45th & Colley, Boat Ramp.

Flotilla 54... Gutermuth's Marina, Willoughby, Norfolk, Delaware Avenue Boat Ramp, Holiday Harbor Marina.

Flotilla 55... Elizabeth City Shipyard, Elizabeth City, N.C.

Flotilla 57... Beach Bay Marina, Long Creek Marina, Lynnhaven Waterway Marina, D & M Sports Marina, Barco's Marina, Bay Harbor Club, Cavalier Yacht Club, Shore Drive Marina.

Flotilla 58... City Park Boat Ramp, Holiday Harbor Marina.

Car Bash a Smash?

A way to use pent-up collegiate energy this spring to benefit charity has been found by students at the College of William and Mary.

They'll wreck a car, at a price.

For a quarter, they will get two whacks at a car with a sledgehammer. The "car bash" is taking place today.

The car, owned by a student, hasn't been in running condition anyway and it was donated to the Student Assn. provided the organization will get rid of it for him.

The "car bash" is something new in the annual Campus Chest drive, which benefits a number of local and national charitable programs.

The Campus Chest has a goal of $2,000.

Among the other fundraising techniques being used are "penny lates" which permit students to stay out an extra hour or two Friday nights, at one cent per minute past the usual midnight check-in time. Students will also choose a Miss Unresistible and Mister Snowman by placing contributions in containers set aside for various candidates, and the Greek-letter organizations will produce a Skit Night to raise Marine Sgt. John B. Lowman, son of Mr. & Mrs. Theodore R. Lowman of 5012 Mosby Rd., stationed at Camp Lejeune, N.C., was promoted to his present rank while serving with the Second Marine Division.

Woodstock Revives May Day

May Day programs, once standard celebrations in most schools, are almost a lost art in our modern world.

But not forgotten--at least not by Woodstock Elementary School which plans a May Day program for May 12 and a carnival for the 13th.

School Supt. Frank Cox will crown the king and queen at 12:15 p.m. on the 12th. They will be John McCracken and Pattie McCullough. School Board members have been invited to sit in the reviewing stand.

In the spirit of the celebration a picnic lunch for all the children to eat outside has been planned by the school dietitian. The program includes music and a May pole.

On the 13th the carnival, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. will feature, among other things, a country store, midway, go-go groups and skits, plus some 60 jesters. There will be a drawing for a television set, a bicycle and a blender.

New Pets and Blessed Animals

A police dog glared from a church pew at a yapping puppy. Two young girls wanted kittens, but didn't dare get them. It all happened as this "Be Kind to Animals Week" started in Virginia Beach.

At Pembroke Mall Shopping Center, the Virginia Beach SPCA offered 14 kittens and a Siamese cat for adoption, in exchange for donations to the organization's building fund. (A shelter is planned at Booth and Oceana Boulevards.) Those offered are now pets.

As the new week started, the Rev. B. Sidney Sanders, rector, and the Rev. Ben R. Duffey, curate, conducted a "Blessing of the Animals" at Eastern Shore Chapel at Laskin Road and Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Adults and youngsters brought nearly 100 dogs, cats, hamsters, rabbits and what-have-you for the blessing.

Contrary to what some might suppose, the animals sat through the half-hour service or fidgeted through it - as well as any group of first grade youngsters. The pets brought by their masters apparently respected the peace of the sanctuary, with only a few exceptions which sparked chuckles.

Mrs. Liz Sills, one of the founders of the local SPCA, said she had "hoped to have puppies" to offer at the Mall last Saturday, "but the city animal control shelter didn't have any."

More than a dozen persons stopped by a cage of kittens to ask if she had any puppies.

FAYE AND CAROL

grinned or shrugged and walked off when told "No."

L. Terry Clark, who lives on Horace Avenue in Aragona, was happy to settle for a black kitten.

His mother, Mrs. Dudley Clark, said: "I wanted him to get the yellow kitten, but he wanted the black one."

Why? "I liked that one the best," three-year-old Clark said shyly. No more questions.

Faye Belvin, 12, of Crown Point Lane in Pembroke, and a chum of the same age, Carol Rucka of Minute Men Road, fondled a couple of kittens.

Carol said she didn't bring a "donation," so she couldn't get a kitten. Besides, her mother's permission was lacking. Faye said she also hadn't asked her mother, so thought it would be wise to look and touch, but not take.

As animals in arms, on leash or in baskets began streaming from Eastern Shore Chapel after Sunday's blessing, three choir girls caught the eye.

All carried members of the feline family. Marjorie Andersen had "Moosey." Laurie Pollie had kittens in a basket and her sister, Julie, had the gray tabby "Boris." The Police family of Lynn Shores Circle had more pets present at the "Blessing."

Charles Alderman of 55th Street walked proudly out of the Episcopal chapel with his Chesapeake Bay retriever, "Taffy," on a leash.

Eleven-year-old Bill Cole of the William H. Cole family had "Shep" blessed by the Rev. Sanders.

While some got new pets and others had theirs blessed, 10-year-old Lesley Dane of John Alden Road and 8-year-old Cheryl Underwood of Decoration Road had a lot of pets for a day.

Asked why the youngster said after hesitating: "I guess because he needed it." His mother smiled.

They helped Mrs. Sills at the SPCA event, which also included a Norfolk SPCA exhibit of tamed wild animals. "I never had helpers so dependable," Mrs. Sills said, noting their concern for the animals.

His wife, the former Barbara Ross of Norfolk, is well-known in garden club circles and has won various awards in area and state flower shows.

They moved to Thalia Manor with their two children about two years ago. Their daughter, Debbie, is a student at Kempsville High School and their son, Gary, attends Thalia Elementary.

Frank Cressy has been appointed to head the Ledger-Star's Beach bureau.

Newsman Becomes Editor

Chet Paschang is now managing editor of the Virginia Beach Sun.

Formerly head of the Ledger-Star's Virginia Beach bureau, his experience in writing began while he was serving in the Navy as a journalist aboard the USS Midway and later at NAS Jacksonville, Fla., and NAS Norfolk.

He returned to Norfolk and began working on the Ledger-Star. After graduation from the University of Missouri with a Bachelor of Journalism degree.

Paschang said he hopes to improve the newspaper and "give Virginia Beach and its people a newspaper with a community voice."

"In coming weeks I will be building on the newspaper's policies aimed at fairness, accuracy and decency."

Active in the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, Paschang served last year on the education committee and is currently representing Virginia Beach as a member of the State Legislative Committee of the Tidewater Area Chambers of Commerce.

Youth 'Good Group' Says Officer

By JOSEPH LOWENTHAL, JR.

About one-third of the population of Virginia Beach is under the age of 18, and it is the responsibility of the Juvenile Division of the police department to cope with them.

"I don't think the youths of today are any worse than they used to be," said Lt. George K. Bryan, commanding officer of the juvenile division. "Maybe they are growing up a little faster and become a little too 'sophisticated' too soon, but on the whole we have a pretty good group of youngsters in Virginia Beach."

And that's an excellent recommendation from the man charged with the responsibility of overseeing the problems of youth. Lt. Bryan has one sergeant, Leonard Capps, in his division and seven detectives.

The nine men work staggered shifts from 8 a.m. to 3 a.m.

The juvenile division works a little differently from other divisions. Although a precinct patrolman may still answer a call, then call in a juvenile officer, a large number of calls to the juvenile bureau come directly from citizens, schools or probation officers.

"But over half of the calls that we handle are cleared up unofficially," said Bryan. "The complaints are taken care of with a warning, a talk with the juvenile offender and perhaps with his parents."

Records of the incident are still kept, however, in the event the same juvenile comes to attention of the division later.

The division handles all cases, felonies and misdemeanors, involving persons under 18, but also becomes involved in child abuse, assault or child molester cases.

Bryan said that there are so many more children in Virginia Beach today than in years past living in concentrated areas that a large amount of the juvenile bureau's work must be crime prevention.

The juvenile officers gladly work with civic groups, youth groups and schools to make all aware of such offenders as child molesters. They also spend much of their time trying to keep the youth of our city from getting into trouble.

Vandalism is high on the list of juvenile offenses, but Bryan admits it is difficult to apprehend the guilty ones unless someone tells on him or they later arrest the child on another offense. Bryan is also greatly concerned with disorderly juveniles, especially those that have been drinking. He has a filing cabinet full of partially filled liquor bottles taken from juveniles.

Other offenses for which his division has been successful in apprehending juveniles regularly include burglary, larceny and auto theft.

Bryan also blames parents for much of the trouble that juveniles get into. He says too often the parents just don't even know where the child is or what he is doing.

"People usually think of the Juvenile Division and the juvenile court in terms of punishment," said Bryan. "But what we care about are the 'whys' involved and what we can do to help."

City Council Revamps Beach and Water Laws

City Council has taken the initial step toward overhauling city laws on surfing, boating, swimming and water-skiing.

Council at a meeting this week approved on first reading an ordinance which covers all such water activities along the Atlantic oceanfront, the Chesapeake Bay shoreline and on bays and other waterways here.

The main change in the surfing part of the law is to permit surfboard action in the developed oceanfront areas during daylight hours from Sept. 10 to May 15, a little longer than in the past. An exception is between 4th and 42nd Streets, where all-day surfing cannot begin before Oct. 1 each year.

According to the ordinance, which requires another vote by council to become fully effective, surfing will be allowed up to 10 a.m. and after 6 p.m. south of Rudee Inlet and north 42nd Street, up to 9 a.m. and after 6 p.m. between 4th and 42nd Streets, all day south of Little Island Park and up to 11 a.m. and after 5 p.m. at Sandbridge. Night surfing is prohibited.

The ordinance provides for a court fine of at least $5 and not more than $50, or up to 10 days in jail, or both fine and jail time for surfing violations.

Boating aspects of the new ordinance must be cleared by the U. S. Coast Guard and the Virginia Commission on Game and Inland Fisheries. City officials expect the clearance because those agencies have approved a similar ordinance for Norfolk.

On various water activities, the ordinance:

Authorizes the city manager to make public swimming areas with buoys, and prohibits motor boating, skiing or surfboarding within such areas.

Requires a second person in a boat towing a skier, unless the skier is wearing a life preserver or ski belt, outlaws "reckless or negligent" boating and limits skiing between one hour before sunset and one hour after sunset.

Prohibits operating a motor boat or other vessel, water skis, surfboard or similar device in the city while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, or self-administered drugs, and provides for a fine up to $500, or up to 12 months in jail for violations of the prohibition, or both.

Provides for the same penalty for anyone convicted of reckless motor boating.

Makes it unlawful for a motor boat towing a skier or surfboard to pass within 50 feet of any pier, shore line, bulkhead, bridge or anchored or drifting vessel, unless the towing boat is in a marked channel, or the skier is "taking off" or "landed" from private property with the owner's consent.

Prohibits any motor boat, whether towing a skier or not, from passing within 100 feet of a bather or swimmer, unless the boat is in a marked channel or is on a rescue mission.

Makes it unlawful for a motor boat to follow a water skier or towed surfboard closer than 100 feet, or to pass within 100 feet of any capsized craft unless on a rescue effort or in a marked channel.

Limits the speed of motor boats in marked channels and passing swimmers, and capsized craft to 6 miles an hour.

Persons can obtain permission from the city manager for regattas, races or exhibitions which are properly supervised, and they are not prohibited by the ordinance.

The ordinance requires bail bonds for persons who refuse to give a written promise to appear in court on summonses, and makes it a misdemeanor to fail to appear in court when summoned.

Sparks on Budget

A hearing at City Hall caused some political sparks, but brought no immediate changes in a $28.4-million budget which City Manager W. Russell Hatchett has proposed for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Council tentatively approved the budget by a 10-0 vote this week, and councilmen gave no indication whether they plan any major changes before final action, presumably in two weeks.

SEE PAGE 2 FOR COUNCIL CAPSULES

Councilman D. Murray Mathis abstained from voting on the budget and an accompanying increase in the city consumers' utility tax. It is now 10 per cent and is proposed at 15 per cent to help balance a $4.2-million boost in city spending.

Malbon said council should study proposals by his brother-in-law, City Treasurer V. A. Etheridge, who claimed at the hearing that the city could find money to balance the budget without boosting utility taxes. The treasurer also said council should raise all city employees' pay 10 per cent across the board.

He said council should anticipate some increased income from realty and personal property taxes not reflected in the budget.

Hatchett said he would rather the city receive more money than the budget anticipates instead of less, or depending on loans to go to a bank for short-term loans. He said the city "can always run into reverses," it is difficult to project federal and state aid with certainty, and he had recommended interim pay raise for city employees, if the revenue picture improves.

School Supt. Frank W. Cox thanked council for continued support of public school improvements and said a proposed $2.3-million rise in school spending (now over half of the city's total budget) "probably" will mean less cost to parents for next year's summer school program.

He said the budget also allows four new positions in art, music and elementary supervision, two added secondary school supervisors, 18 more remedial reading teachers, 14 new classroom teachers (14 in special education), elimination of elementary fees, the highest minimum and maximum teacher salaries in Hampton Roads, a "summer enrichment" program, three elementary assistant principals and three more physical education teachers.

Vocational Grant Approved

Plans for a vocational technical education school in Virginia Beach received a green light this week with approval of a $32,000 grant from the state, according to E. E. Brickell, director of secondary administration.

Word was received from the director of state vocational education that the study grant was approved. A total of $64,000 had been requested.

Brickell said that the money will allow the city school administration to go ahead with plans for the vocational school which should be in operation by September, 1969.

Brickell said the funds would be used primarily for salaries of a director of the program, a curriculum development specialist, a vocational guidance director, possibly a consultant (all new to the school system) plus to help pay expenses of setting up and staffing an office.

Sun Interview

City Manager Looks Ahead

City Manager W. Russell Hatchett has been the subject of speculation in recent days because he is nearing his 65th birthday and giving at least some thought to retirement. The SUN put six questions to him by phone. Here are his answers:

Question: What are some of your plans for the future, if you retire within the next year?

Answer: "I haven't given that much thought. When I retire I'm going to take a rest and do a little traveling."

Question: What, above all else, would you like to accomplish for Virginia Beach before you retire?

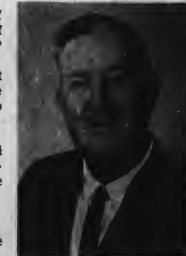

Answer: "I'd like to get a good water contract with the City of Norfolk worked out, and our city in its own water business. Also leave the people working for the city better compensated than they are now."

Question: What has been the most significant change in the city's governmental structure since Virginia Beach became a huge city in 1963?

Answer: "The transition from a rural county and small city government to a big city government in a growing city while extending needed services. I feel most people think it was a very good accomplishment, and no city manager has had a more harmonious working council."

Question: What do you consider the greatest problem in the city government?

Answer: "I think one of our biggest problems, with all the communications we have, has been to coordinate all the departments. Some are physically separated. Eventually we won't be divided as we are now. Our new building program will help coordination.

Answer: "I see Virginia Beach's future to be that it will be one of the greatest recreation and resort cities of the world, and more of our people will be working in the city because of our commercial and industrial growth."

Question: Has the city government caught up with the fast pace of suburban growth?

Answer: "That would be hard to answer. I doubt that we will ever catch up with growth as it is. We're trying to do in a new city what old cities have had years to do—build schools, build roads and put in water and sewer mains. That doesn't mean I'm satisfied with everything we've done. We can always improve."

Question: What do you see in the future for Virginia Beach as a city?

Red Cross Honors Champ

Tomorrow at 4:30 p. m., the Tidewater Chapter of the American National Red Cross will have the honor of presenting Mrs. Sarah Washburn Tuptich, Oceana resident and veteran post office employee with the gold 10 gallon donor pin.

The presentation will be made by Rep. Thomas N. Downing during ceremonies honoring Mrs. Tuptich at the Virginia Beach Fire Station.

On the day of the visit the ladies of the Ocean Park Women's Club will take over the many volunteer duties for this Bloodmobile. For the past year they have worked as trained Red Cross Volunteers and their efforts have done much to add new spark to the program. The hours of the visit will be noon until 6:00 p. m.

Keep Campaign Fresh

The Democratic Primary campaign for Constitutional Officers and representatives to the Virginia General Assembly began in Virginia Beach shortly after the year 1967 dawned. It began with the usual announcements and alignments. There were some surprises, but for the most part, the slates were composed as expected.

A few independents joined in the race, and in some cases, attempted to muddy the waters. They received strong publicity for a short time, but it soon became clear that the race was definitely between the full eight-man slate of the Administration Team and the not so full six-man United Candidates.

Political Bypourri

The next three months were full of bombardments, barrages of personal attacks, charges, counter-charges and all the things that make up a war.

Then last month either the campaigns settled down to the issues a little more or the candidates began to run out of steam. There was only an occasional volley here and there between a few of the candidates.

While most of the candidates are plugging away at coffees and meetings, the newsmakers are still Del. Edward T. Caton III and incumbent State Sen. William P. Kellam, running against each other.

Kellam charged that Caton, while a member of City Council voted to approve a zoning change, on a piece of property of which he was the Secretary, Treasurer, Registered Agent, Director and stockholder, and on which his firm ultimately made a large profit.

Caton said his colleagues on council and Kellam were aware of his interest in the matter at the time, before the ordinance was adopted. It requires councilmen to declare their interest in zoning matters at the time of public action.

It's That Time of Year Again

Get your nickels and dimes ready. Police will begin checking parking meters May 15. Violators will be fined.

Incidentally, the old excuse that the meter just changed doesn't work here, according to Reeves Johnson, director of public safety. The meters all have two flags which can give motorists a break or convict them depending on how long they park.

First, a red flag pops up with an overtime parking sign on it. A warning ticket is issued for that. Then, after a short interval, another flag pops up stating "Parking Violation." That one will cost you, unless you're from out of town. Then you receive a friendly note asking you to be more considerate of other drivers and give them a chance to park too.

That is the main purpose of parking meters, Johnson said, to allow a greater turnover in parking places in front of businesses and to prevent people from taking up one place all day.

"We're not after the money," Johnson hastened to explain, we just want to help the shopper and the businessman." He did say that fine money is used to help in meter maintenance.

Until the 15th Johnson's department will be busy in checking, repairing and installing meters. New ones will be installed on 32nd Street, on the South end of the beach and possibly on other side streets near the beach.

Ground Will Be Broken

Ground will be broken for the Princess Anne Plaza Volunteer Fire Dept. and Rescue Squad at 2 p.m. Saturday at the corner of Rosemont Road and Plaza Trail.

The building, the first permanent home for the department which was organized almost five years ago, will be completed in about five months, according to Ray Robbins of the department.

The building will eventually house all dispatchers, and fire inspectors in addition to the Civil Defense Dept.

Marina Fees Low

City Council's meeting at Princess Anne Court House this week brought the following actions by council:

Approval of rezoning requested by the North Bay Development Corp. (headed by W. W. Lamond Jr.) on 1785 acres along the west side of developed Sandbridge for the development of a resort-type community. Council approved a Planning Commission recommendation that development plans conform to a Sandbridge area study the city made earlier this year.

Approval of leasing fees for a city marina on Long Creek. Rental rates will be $150 for 10-foot-beam slips and $200 for 14-foot-beam slips, lower than commercial rates in eastern Norfolk, but higher than Virginia Beach commercial rates, according to city officials.

Authorization for the issuance of $1 million in water and sewer bonds without a referendum, as allowed by the City Charter, to continue financing extension of water and sewer mains.

Granting of a "temporary permit" to Herbert Glassman for the operation of "jitneys" along Atlantic Avenue from Ft. Story to Rudee Inlet at 15 to 20 minute intervals. Council turned aside objections from Joseph M. New, manager of Beach Taxi, who claimed the "jitneys" would be unfair to the cab company and should be routed on Pacific Avenue).

Granting of use permits to Virginia Electric & Power Company for power substations planned at Providence Road and Interstate 64, and on Old Street west of Atlantic Avenue.

Approval of plans by the Diocese of Southern Virginia Episcopal Church to build a chapel on Sandbridge Road near the oceanfront.

Granting of use permits for a 38-unit motel at the corner of 29th Street and Pacific Avenue, and a 97-unit motel on the northeast corner of Atlantic Avenue and Third Street.

Authorization to the Virginia Beach Dredge Commission to hold a public hearing soon on the proposed route for a large canal from North Bay to Rudee Inlet. (Councilman Kenneth Whitehurst said he wants the hearing "as soon as possible," so work can resume on the canal, started and later stopped in 1966 when it became controversial.)

Adoption of a resolution expressing sympathy to Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, wife of the late Lewis E. Smith, public utilities director, and memorializing the city's gratitude to Smith "for his excellent services..."

"Maid" Finally Gets Stage Role

"That's all anybody ever wanted me to play—a maid's role," is the regretful cry of "Annie Miller," retired actress, now maid/dresser to actress "Jane Kimball," the central character in Norman Krasna's comedy "Kind Sir" which opens at the Courtyard Playhouse on May 19.

The part of "Annie" is being portrayed by Floss Lawson who is production chairman for the Virginia Beach Little Theatre and a member of the Board of Directors.

A 95-lb. bundle of energy and enthusiasm, Floss has become something of a maid-of-all-work for the theatre group during her three years with them.

Usually one of the first to volunteer (or be volunteered) for extra chores, she has served as producer, stage manager and general assistant to many of the play directors, and her name turns up regularly on the crew list in the programs indicating her interest in all phases of theatre work.

The Lawson family first came to Virginia Beach three years ago when husband Bill, a Naval aviator, was transferred from duty in Michigan. The whole family enjoyed Beach living so much that they purchased a permanent home here after Bill's retirement last year.

Three sons and a dog complete the family. "Chuck, the eldest boy, is a sophomore at Villanova University and a midshipman in the NROTC program. Mike, 19, is a freshman at Old Dominion, and 11-year-old John attends Linkhorn Park School. Ralph is the basset hound.

The Little Theatre group is proud to have its maid-of-all-work in front of the footlights for a change in "Kind Sir", the final show of this season. Performances are scheduled for May 19-21, 26 and 27. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $2.50, and reservations may be made in advance by contacting Mrs. Jesse B. Drew of the 100 block of Linkhorn Drive.

Student To Direct Production

Hunter Spence of Virginia Beach is the musical director for the Richmond Professional Institute production of "John Brown's Body" by Stephen Vincent Benet.

In this capacity, Spence directs the chorus of 15 voices which sing the love songs and battle songs of the Civil War and speak in unison in the background for the dramatic adaptation of the famous Benet poem about the south and the Civil War.

Spence, an assistant technical director with the RPI drama department, has been in charge of building sets for three of this year's major production at RPI. He also is in charge of constructing the set for "John Brown's Body." His major at RPI is technical theatre.

"John Brown's Body" will be presented at RPI's Gaslight Theatre, May 24-27.

Theatre Names Season's Plays

Music, comedy and drama are on the bill for the 1967-68 season of the Norfolk Little Theatre. The theatre, oldest community theatre in Tidewater, has announced its forthcoming season and opened its annual season ticket drive.

The five plays planned for the main stage next year, all to be directed by Stan Fedysyn, the theatre's managing director, are:

"West Side Story," "Pygmalion," "Owl and the Pussycat," "Billy Budd," and "Country Wife."

Light, Lane, Should Improve Intersection

The new traffic lights at Princess Anne Plaza are ready for use as soon as an "island" is built to control traffic entering the shopping center and keep cars from tripping traffic treadles in opposing lanes.

Equipment has been ordered to control the lights in conjunction with the light at Virginia Beach Boulevard and Plaza Trail. Reeves Johnson, director of Public Safety, said, He said that often takes 60 or more days to arrive, though. The light can be put into operation before then, but it will not be synchronized with the Plaza Trail light.

Another improvement of traffic at the busy intersection is in the planning stage. Johnson said a left turn lane for east-bound traffic headed toward the beach. That should help alleviate the problem of motorists turning into Miller's Dept. Store.

Stores in France will feature canned wines.

Tots in the Street

One of the greatest dangers faced by motorists today is children in the streets and highways. Because of their age and inexperience, as well as their immaturity, they cannot be blamed and cannot be called entirely responsible. But we are forced to wonder just what kind of parents they have.

In the past few days we have witnessed several incidents that are downright appalling. Imagine the fear of the motorist who was barely able to stop in time when two pre-teen boys appeared in front of her car on skateboards from a blind inclined driveway entering a feeder road of Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Imagine the fear of another motorist who was forced to stop and coax a kicking toddler out of the street after he threw himself down in the street and refused to move.

Imagine the fear of the driver who met a group of teenagers holding hands after getting off a school bus and were stretched across the street, refusing to let any car pass. And also imagine the fear of the driver who saw other teenagers make indecent gestures to her when she blew the horn at them and they would not break up their baseball game so she could drive through.

And let us not forget to imagine the fear of the motorist who must face little ones and big ones alike playing on tricycles, in wagons and just running around in the street as he tries to get to and from his home.

These are not isolated incidents; nor are they made up. They are cases we see all too often in all areas, and they did happen, every one of them.

Add to this the lack of safety of bike riders, and the motorist faces a dangerous situation. Yet if he should accidentally hit one of these youngsters, even while obeying every rule of traffic and common sense, it would be all his fault.

Where are the parents when these incidents are occurring? What kind of upbringing have the children had? Or have they had any? Don't the parents care about the danger to their own children? Don't houses have yards to play in any more?

It's bad enough for the driver as it is, without having to contend with this type of problem.

Between Now and July 11

The Democratic Primary in Virginia Beach on July 11 is an important election. Besides the two organized tickets seeking nomination to the Constitutional offices and the Virginia General Assembly, there are several independents in the running.

It is up to the voters to pick the best qualified men to represent the Democratic party in the November General election.

There are three prerequisites that must be met to insure this. Everyone who is qualified to vote must be registered. Everyone who is registered must inform himself of the issues and the men offering their candidacies. Then everyone who is registered and informed must vote on election day.

The registration books are open until 30 days before an election day; thus there is still plenty of time left to register. For those who must transfer their registration, it is suggested that the process should be taken care of in the near future.

Then between now and July 11, civic leagues, fraternal organizations and interested private groups will be holding coffees and meetings where candidates on all sides of the political spectrum will appear, make speeches and answer questions. In many cases candidates of both major tickets will be on the same platform to present opposing views and to back them up in the question-and-answer period.

There is no excuse for every interested citizen not attending one or more of these political gatherings between now and July in order to acquaint himself with all the issues and the exact stand of all the candidates and the organized tickets.

On election day there remains only one thing left to do . . . pull the levers of one's choice on the new voting machines, confident that the best man for the job and the best man for the future progress of Virginia Beach has been chosen. We urge you to register, listen and decide, then exercise your right to vote on July 11.

Oil Slick Pollution

Recent oil slick pollution of the world's waterways have been tragic to fish, wildlife, resort business and to the beaches. Some of the pollution has been accidental, but much has not.

Every once in a while in Virginia some oil washes ashore, spoiling fun and business, even if for a few days. In most cases the slick comes from ships which drop oil illegally near shore. But even the ones who drop the oil legally are sometimes responsible if the wind and tides are right.

Fortunately Virginia Beach has not had any major problems in many years, and never any like those being experienced in other parts of the world.

Our Congressman, Thomas N. Downing has introduced a bill that would call for the establishment of an international research program to study oil pollution on the high seas. We support this program and urge all residents of the area to do the same.

The waterways of Virginia Beach are a large part of our economy, and we cannot afford to have them spoiled either by accident or on purpose. Passage of this bill could be a preventive measure, although it is only a first step. Next technical advances must be made to control pollution from oil, so that such tragic results never happen again in Virginia or anywhere in the world.

Spotlight on Youth

Which is the Brightest?

SUN SPOTS

By Joseph Lowenthal Jr.

Whistler's Mother does not live in Virginia Beach. In fact, the sweet, saintly-faced, rocking-chair bound, contented mother of Mr. Whistler hardly exists anywhere anymore.

Mom is too busy learning the frug, the monkey and the jerk (not Dad) these days or getting to the garden club or political rally on time. If not, the bridge game awaits or the shopping spree can't wait. Mrs. Stay-at-Home with the sewing basket and rock in pure ecstasy in the high-backed chair has disappeared from the American scene. Whistler's Mother is merely another bit of Americana that has all but disappeared from the scene.

Today's Mom

Rocks - But

Not in

A Chair

Sunday and Father's Day is not until next month, I'll let it go at that.

I am around two mothers quite a bit. First there's my own mother whom I have been around for a number of years. She would not consider it part of her Mother's Day present if I said exactly how many years.

My mother is my own personal worry bird. If I have a problem I call her and tell her all about it. She immediately takes over all the worrying for me, thus saving my energy for solving the problem. Lest you think I do this only to worry her, please understand that all mothers are really alike. If they don't have something to worry about where their children are concerned, they'll worry because they have nothing to worry about.

But in my mother's eyes I have never grown up and never will. No child, even one my age, ever can to his mother. And thank goodness for that. Because when all else fails . . . when the world has gone entirely sour . . . when life is at its blackest . . . a fellow can always turn to his mother for comfort. That's when mothers become the towers of protective strength. Bless 'em all.

The other mother that I am around quite a bit is the mother of my children. Both my angelic, cherubic mischievous monsters are girls, and they became phobias, exactly like my wife. And she is just as fiercely protective of our children as my mother is of me. The game's the same. Only the generations have been changed, but always to protect the innocent.

The image of all motherhood has indeed changed in the last generation or two. No longer is Mom expected to sit at home night after night and darn the family's socks, mend the rent of the clothes or do the laundry, ironing and cleaning. No longer is she expected to retreat to the background while the men talk about all those important subjects like religion, politics and sex. No longer is she expected to be only a housemaid. The mother of today is the young-looking chick with the blonde wig who competes in the man's world and who dares not be left out of any conversation, except with fear and trepidation.

Of course, how the mending, darning, laundry, ironing, etc. get done, is known only to fathers. And we aren't telling. That would spoil it all for those who are considering marriage and parenthood.

Mothers really belong, however, to the children. They are there to feed, clothe, change and comfort when they are desperately needed. And they are there to scold and spank when necessary too. How many times have you heard that stupid question . . . "I'm only spanking you because I love you?" I never have figured that one out.

Mothers are the guidance counselors of the young, and the protectors of their own no matter what. And when all other type of love fails, Mother love remains . . . love by, and love for one's mother.

Sunday is the day that belongs to mother, whether she is akin to Mr. Whistler or to the whistling swinger. (I have to be careful to say that, particularly since the mother of my children last week had one of those birthdays that women like to forget.)

On a serious note, there is no greater tribute than the tribute all of us can pay to our mothers on their day, May 14. The memory of all that has gone before added to the hopes and fears of things to come should mean a special homage to a special person on a special day.

Mitch Miller once had a theme song which sums it up nicely. In effect it told of the little bit of good even in the worst of us, and sought kindness. At least, that's what I got out of the words . . . "Be kind to your web-footed friends" for a duck may be somebody's mother . . .

Happy Mother's Day, gals. You too, Mrs. Whistler.

Thalhimer's Express Thanks

Dear Editor:

With each passing day we are more enthusiastic about our forthcoming entry into the Virginia Beach-Norfolk area. All of us continue to be thrilled and delighted at the overwhelming response we have received since this announcement was made.

We want to express our thanks to you for your presence at the press conference and for the excellent coverage you gave this news story. More on Surfing

Dear Editor:

I read, with interest, your editorial on the surfing problem and feel compelled to make a few additional statements.

The meeting called at Virginia Beach Junior High can only be called a fiasco if there falls to come from it some understanding between surfers and the powers that be.

I attended this meeting with my children because I am concerned. I fear a tragedy that the "powers that be" will be unable to erase from their minds and hearts if the warnings of the young people, life guards and interested parents are not heeded.

I spend all of my last summer gathering facts and figures that were both astounding and frightening. I presented these facts and figures to the City Council with a plea that they not let another summer come before they had taken steps to alleviate some of the problems. Well, summer is upon us and more surf boards in the same area seem to be inevitable. May the Lord protect our children who go to the steel pier area. A life guard, highly respected by surfers and parents, said at the meeting that the Rescue Squad was called almost every day into that area last summer.

The Commission said to go to Little Island to surf. Well I have driven down there--with no summer congestion on the road--and it took me a minimum of 35 minutes. Now tell me, if the Commission can--what will be the situation when they have some tragic injuries and must have the trained men of the Rescue Squad?

Two of the accidents last summer--both involving kidney injuries--would have been in terrible straits without prompt attention. Our children can't possibly get it so promptly away down on the North Carolina line so far from any hospital.

I have spoken up for our surfers because on a whole they are very wonderful teenagers and need our support. I can't cause any action to be taken, but I can keep speaking until the right person or persons hear and answer their plea. Maybe the Jaycees who sponsor the East Coast Surfing Championships will eventually make their voices heard. I hope so--I pray so.

Life and Death

Dear Editor:

I am writing to express my appreciation to you and your staff for publicizing our meeting in Virginia Beach this past weekend.

Millions of people today know and recognize that the world situation cannot continue to exist as it is, for, if it goes on this way, mankind will destroy itself.

Millions are also recognizing a sharp division occurring among professing Christians. On one hand there are those who label the Bible a book of myths and now teach that "God is dead." On the other hand there are those who advertise God's long promised Kingdom as mankind's only hope for survival.

The Witnesses of Jehovah want to tell everyone they can to know what the Bible has to say on the vital subjects of life and death in order to help men to choose life.

Each bit of publicity encourages someone else to ask questions about the Bible when our ministers call at their door, and for these opportunities, we thank you.

Enthusiasm

Dear Editor,

I would like to say a few words in support of one of the Administration candidates -- Sen. Bill Kellam.

I moved to this area in February, 1966. One of the first families I met was that of the Senator. They impressed me so much with their outstanding hospitality and friendliness that I am sure that I will never meet their equal.

Of course, since I have moved here, I have had occasion to meet many of the other Kellam brothers. Every single one of them has gone out of his way to help me, no matter what my problem seems to be. It appears to me, after talking to the people in the area, that the Kellams are one of the most loved and respected people in the community. They helped to make this community the place that it is today -- a most enjoyable place to live.

Thank you for the opportunity to support such a fine person.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Robert Glass

From the Heart

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Tidewater Heart Assn., I would like to extend our sincere gratitude for the excellent service that your newspaper performed during our February Heart Fund, and for the interest you have shown during the past year in our educational programs.

Thank you so very much.

Cox-P.A.H.S. Game May Tie Standings

The Cox High baseball team faces Princess Anne tomorrow in a battle of long time city rivals. Princess Anne is just above Cox in the standings, and a Cox win would tie them up.

Cox dropped down into tie for third place last week after they were defeated by Norview 8-0 on a two hitter. Holding the highest batting averages, second baseman John Knight and pitcher Jim Cherwa, were unable to collect a hit.

The Falcon trackmen were edged out of second place in the City Wide Track Meet by eight points by Bayside. Princess Anne won the meet, with Kellam fourth, and First Colonial fifth.

Brian Magoon, who was named Outstanding Athlete at the Eastern District Relays, repeated as two-mile champion. Rick Binder was the meet's high scorer with 161-3 points. Binder placed first in the high jump, tied for first in the high hurdles, second in the low hurdles, fifth in the triple jump, and fifth in the high jump.

The Cox golf team was defeated by Norview in a play-off for the District golf title. The Falcons, undefeated in regular season play, were tied with Norview at the end of the 36-hole play. Norview narrowly beat Cox by one stroke in the play-off. Bill Calfee shot a 73-74-147 for second honors in the tournament.

Happy Birthday, Mom

Last week may be the first time in history that a son bought his mother a racing trophy for her birthday.

But that's just about what happened. After Richard Petty of Randleman, N. C., won the Virginia 500 at Martinsville Speedway, he received a grandfather clock as his trophy. Several years ago, speedway president H. Clay Earles decided to present the drivers something useful rather than a dust gatherer, hence the clock.

An engraved plaque goes inside the clock to mark the win so it's still a trophy but one that will be of use.

Richard's mother admired the clock so much that Petty decided to buy her one for her birthday last weekend. "I plan to win me another clock in the Old Dominion 500 in September," Petty laughed, "but I can't wait that long with her birthday coming up this weekend."

With Petty winning the Virginia 500 and Sonny Hutchins of Richmond, taking the 100-lap modified and sportsman race, it's two down and four to go for the half-mile track this season.

Next race on the schedule is the first annual Dogwood 300, a 300-lap national championship event for modified and sportsman cars on Sunday, June 11.

The race carries $11,000 in posted awards and should attract the top drivers in the NASCAR modified and sportsman ranks. Already the entry list totals 40 cars and the number should rise to between 60 and 70.

Only the fastest 40 cars will start the race. Practice opens on Thursday, June 8 while qualifying begins on Friday, June 9 with the first starting positions up for grabs. Ten more cars will qualify in time trials on Saturday, June 10 while a 20-lap qualifying race will complete the field. The Dogwood 300 starts at 1 p.m. on Sunday, June 11.

Now Is the Time to Enter Junior Tennis Tournament

This year's Virginia Beach Jaycee Junior Tennis tournament to be held June 3 and 4 at the Bay Harbor Club will be open to all residents 18 and over.

The tournament is divided into two divisions with each division having separate trophies for boys and girls. The first division is for boys and girls 18 and under, the second for 16 and under.

The eight finalists will go to the state tournament in Richmond on June 12-14. There will be trophies and medals issued to all semifinalists and finalists in both divisions.

The tournament is sanctioned by the Mid-Atlantic Lawn Tennis Assn. and will have Sidney Hughes, regional vice president, as umpire for the finals.

Car Club To Meet

The Virginia Beach Sports Car Club will present its NOVICE auto rally Sunday.

Registration will begin at 1:00 p. m. in the Pembroke Mall shopping center parking lot with a drivers meeting at 1:30 p. m. Particular provision has been made for novice entrants, and all interested persons are invited to compete for several prizes.

Go fly a kite....and see if you can break the world altitude record for kites of 23,800 feet. The record was set in May 1910 at Mt. Weather, Va.

In addition to the trophies and medals for the finalists, the Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons Assn. will give a sportsmanship trophy to a boy and girl.

There is no entry fee, but all applications must be in by May 27. For entry forms contact Dr. Jan Nibelink at 497-2323.

Who Has A T-Bird?

Do you own an old T-Bird?

If you do it's almost a collectors item today. For the un-informed, the original Thunderbird sports car was a two-door front-seat-only variety. Later models were enlarged.

Owners of the originals have formed a club, the Classic Thunderbird Club, International, which is planning its first annual spring meeting at the Americana Motel from June 9-11. For further information contact Robert Rossen of 205 20th St.

Miss Hendrix Earns Award

Miss Christine Hendrix, a freshman at Frederick College, has received Gamma Zeta social sorority's outstanding pledge award.

Miss Hendrix, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Hendrix of Arctic Avenue, is a graduate of Virginia Beach High School.

WHAT PRICE GROWTH?

In an editorial published in THE VIRGINIAN PILOT on March 29, 1967, the editor began, quote:

"The wonder is not that Virginia Beach City Manager W. Russell Hatchett has proposed to raise the present 10 per cent utility tax by 5 per cent to support a record $28.4 million budget, but that he didn't have to do it sooner. Other Tidewater cities already impose a 15 per cent levy on utilities."

This "wonder" is just another tribute to the efficiency and good government of the Administration Team!

The leadership of the Administration Team has proven that it can bring to the people of Virginia Beach the greatest return in quality education and other services for the lowest possible cost.

The same editorial points out:

The ordinary Virginia locality considers itself pressed if it has to employ a dozen extra teachers and build a new school. Virginia Beach annually recruits 100 new teachers and has been building three new schools a year. "... the increasing population also will be asking for an expansion of such fundamental services as sewage lines and fire protection."

Yes, Virginia Beach has to do more, because it is growing faster. And we mean for this growth, which has taken place under the leadership of the Administration Team, to continue!

The secret of our growth is TEAMWORK!

Back the team that is dedicated to PROGRESS THROUGH TEAMWORK

Back the team that has the know-how to get things done at the lowest cost to the taxpayer.

Middleton Seeks A Chance For Teachers

"My two sons attend Virginia Beach Public schools," B. R. Middleton, United Candidate for the House of Delegates asserted recently, "because some of the best teachers in the State are right here in our own schools and my sons are being taught by some of them."

"However," Middleton continued, "these teachers, despite their own high talents and qualifications, cannot give quality instruction under the present adverse conditions which prevail. Overcrowded classrooms, split sessions and other conditions, imposed upon these fine teachers by the present Administration, prevent them from giving the quality instruction of which these teachers are capable."

"Under the plan which my fellow United Candidates and I offer," Middleton said, "the teachers will be relieved of unnecessary paperwork, collection of fees, sale of books and other duties which now detract from their main educational purpose. Also, a staff of specialists including speech therapists and remedial reading experts should be provided to help the teachers with special problems which arise in every classroom."

"We want to give the teachers," Middleton concluded, "quality conditions and buildings so that they can achieve full quality from their own knowledgeable efforts. Our teachers should be given a chance to show what they can do."

Caton Asks Revision Of Constitution

"Virginia's constitution must be modernized," Edward
T. (Ned) Caton III, United
Candidate for Senate from the 3rd District, told a group of Citizens. "Pay-as-you-go financing must be eliminated to use Virginia's credit and to relieve local governments, commissions and authorities of the burden of high interest costs."

"In the meantime," Caton said, "Joseph A. Gawrys and B. Middleton, United Candidates for the House of Delegates, and I propose to use a provision of the present State Constitution to submit to the people the question of issuing $70 million in bonds to move forward now in vital areas such as Quality Education."

"Such a defendant," Evans continued, "if he can't post bond, must give up his right to a grand jury, or stay in jail until his case came to trial during the next term of Court--probably in September or October--after a four or five month's wait."

"This problem concerning delay in trial for those in jail," Evans said, "was presented to the Attorney General of Virginia last year. He is quoted as saying that the only way to change the procedure
in Virginia Beach is at the ballot box. I agree. When elected, I will ask the Circuit Court to convene a grand jury each month. This will insure speedy trials and will save expenses at the City jail."

"For instance," Gawrys said, "look at what they sponsored in 1964, Bill Kellam, present Organization candidate for the State Senate, and the Organization delegate to the House--who is not a candidate this time--were patron-sponsors of House Joint Resolution No. 67. This is better known as the reactionary, ill-conceived LIBERTY

"This LIBERTY AMEND-MENT," Gawrys pointed out,
"called upon the Congress to make certain drastic changes in the Constitution of the United States by eliminating the power of the Federal Government to levy an income tax."

and Virginia Beach would be without an income tax. There would be no Aircraft and Overhaul facilities at Norfolk; there would be no Shipyard at Portsmouth; there would be no Public Works Departments at our various bases; there would be, if the Liberty Amendment were enacted, no commissary stores and various other functions of our government.
If the Liberty Amendment had prevailed, there would have been no FDIC, which insures our bank deposits, and no FHA which guarantees our home mortgage."

"Such reactionary thinking," Gawrys concluded, "is dangerous."

How could we possibly support an Army, Navy and Air Force and protect ourselves from aggressors if we didn't have an income tax?"

Etheridge Enabled Better Bond Rating

The excellent collection record of Virginia Beach City Treasurer, V. Alfred (Jack) Etheridge, United Candidate for re-election, enabled the City to earn a better bond rating. Etheridge has compiled a better than 98 per cent collection record for the past three years.

When the City sold $4 million dollars in bonds recently, they were bought at the lowest rate of interest in many months, despite the prevailing, so called "tight money market." This low rate of interest, which will be paid on this bond issue, was a direct result of a change in rating on the City's bonds from BAA to A.

This change of rating and resultant low interest rate will save taxpayers of Virginia Beach thousands and thousands of dollars in interest payments over the life of the bond issue. If the City's bond rating is to continue high and its interest rates low, Etheridge should be re-elected to the office of City Treasurer.

Evans Wants Grand Jury Each Month

"The laws of the United States and the Commonwealth of Virginia request positive action by a Grand Jury before a person can be tried for a serious crime," emphasized Andre Evans, United Candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney of Virginia Beach.

"Another important provision of law is that which entitles an accused to a speedy trial," Evans said. "Unfortunately, this right is often denied here in our City of Virginia Beach, because we have a grand jury scheduled only once every two months. If a person is arrested in May, and misses the grand jury this month, his case will not come up before a grand jury until the end of July."

"If he can't post
bond, must give up his right
to a grand jury, or stay in jail until his case came to trial during the next term of Court--probably in September or October--after a four or five month's wait."

"This problem concerning delay in trial for those in jail," Evans said, "was presented to the Attorney General
of Virginia last year. He is quoted as saying that the only way to change the procedure
in Virginia Beach is at the ballot box. I agree. When elected, I will ask the Circuit Court to convene a grand jury
each month. This will insure speedy trials and will save expenses at the City jail."

Absalom Says People Want A Change

"The results of the last year's Senatorial campaign," Richard R. Absalom, candidate for Clerk of Circuit Court, told supporters at a meeting at United Candidates' Headquarters, "proved beyond a doubt that the people of our city want to break away from the blind loyalty of an outmoded past. New hope and new enthusiasm were evidenced in Senator Spong's victory."

"When the voters in Virginia Beach nominated Senator Spong by a majority of more than 2,000," Absalom remarked, "they voted for a change. In July these same voters will vote for a change again. A change for Virginia Beach."

"I urge all citizens of Virginia Beach who have not already done so," Absalom stated, "to explore the opportunities offered in this campaign. In just a few short months my fellow candidates and I have come to be recognized as United Democrats, free Democrats, willing to accept responsibilities for the betterment of our City's government, even at the risk of personal hardships."

Dear Mother.....

ART BY GREG JEFFERS.

Happiness is a warm day in May....a homemade chocolate cake...the last day of school.

And happiness is a mother.....a person of wisdom, warmth and wonder.

To fifth graders at Trantwood School, she's all these things and many more.

My mother is nice, pretty, and smart. She likes bowling. My mother has five trophies. My mother is the captain of the team.

Billy E. Coleman

My mother is sweet and loveable. She is a good cook and pretty. She doesn't believe in spoiling children. Sometimes she is mean when we are mean - cleans the house and pays a lot of attention to me. And what more could I ask for.

Sandra Cardone

Mom looks very pretty except in the mornings. She cooks very well. I like her fried chicken the best. She's very kind. So please buy your Mom a Mother's Day present. Like I am.

James Carl Thrash

She will take you places and she has been real nice to the Girl Scouts. I like her and I think if you had her you would too.

Sara Luce

She is very understanding when it's in the morning because instead of waking me up in the morning to take the dog out she'll do it. She lets me go to 7/11 and buy a slurpey when I have the money.

Paula Scoggins

My mother has a good sense of talent. She paints a lot, she sews, and she cleans the house all the time. She cooks very well and works outside in the garden. How could a mother be so sweet after all this?

Cynthia Tamburino

My mother fits in the picture like the Scout law. She is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean, reverent.

Ben Moore

My mother helps me with problems, keeps up with her health, doesn't get headaches when she goes to the zoo.

Her Future's Up In the Air

This Mother Wears Wings

BRUNEL BRADLEY PREPARES TO LEAVE ON A FLIGHT WITH A STUDENT.

There was a time when Brunel Bradley's life revolved around the earth; today it revolves around the sky.

The first, once so firmly planted on the ground, have taken wings. She's cloud-hopping, a winged woman determined to become an active member of the jet set. "I want to be an executive (executive pilot) but it's almost impossible today to convince a company that a woman is as good and often a better pilot than a man. Her sex should have nothing to do with it; if she's a qualified pilot, she should be considered for such a job. I have settled for instructing--about the only thing I can do if I want to continue flying."

Brunel Bradley, a member of the fast-growing Norfolk Naval Flying Club and one of its five instructors, set her sights on a career in aviation when she joined Pan-American Airlines as a stewardess in 1954. She was a German fraulein who, in 1950, won a Fulbright scholarship for a year's study at Kansas State College; a farmer's daughter whose home in Black Forest, Germany, looked bleak indeed after a year in this country.

"After I attended that year at Kansas State, I realized that this country was for me. I returned to Germany, graduated with a degree in agriculture--I was interested especially in animal husbandry--but in 1954

I returned to the States, intending to enroll that fall in Kansas State for further study.

"But that summer, a friend told me that Pan-American was interviewing for stewardesses. I was always fascinated with airplanes, so I applied for stewardess training and was accepted."

Once air-borne, she soon took to the controls, enrolled in the airlines flight training program.

She also took to one of the pilots, Ken Bradley, whom she married in 1957. They're first bit of housekeeping was with their own plane, one which they still have and which Brunel describes as a great plane. Unlike cars, she said, it really doesn't age if properly cared for.

She also acquired a private pilot's license, followed it up with a commercial license, and finally an instructor's license. Of the three, the instructor's license has become the most dog-eared, though admittedly, she yearns for a more daring career than instructing in the Cessnas the flying club uses.

Ken and Brunel, with their two children, have a home at Sandbridge. When she's running late (which her club cohorts say is most frequent), she commutes by plane from home to club headquarters near Municipal Airport.

School Clean-Up Winners

Committee members have announced the results of the school beautification contest sponsored by the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs and the city's Beautification Commission.

Mrs. Joseph Toth, Princess Anne Garden Club, and Mrs. Lawrence Tucker, Virginia Beach Garden Club, made the survey.

The first prize, $15., is a joint award to adjoining schools; John B. Dey and Cox High School.

Second prize, $10., went to Windsor Woods; the third prize, $5., to Seaboard Elementary.

In addition, the judges have awarded honorable mentions to the following: Cooke, Seatack, Kempville Elementary, Arrowhead Elementary, Bettie Williams, Hermitage Elementary, King's Grant and Thalia Elementary.

Mrs. Tucker, in announcing the awards, said the women visited some 42 area schools.

"We were very pleased with the cooperation we received in this first school beautification contest. All the grounds were absolutely beautiful, but if we saw one can or one scrap of paper, we had to disqualify them. The school grounds have improved so much; we are very happy with what we saw."

A Little Bit Of Color

Women's Editor

Kosygin's wife has joined Stalin's wife in repose. Both are in the same burial ground.... a natural course of events, I suppose, since both, no doubt, led the same old-world type existence.

That Stalin's wife's grave suddenly and mysteriously sprouted colored Easter eggs and a few other bits of gaudy frou-frou (as has been reported) that the Iron Curtain will sweep away with a mighty swoosh cheered my day immeasurably. Maybe my line of feminine thinking is more imaginative than logical, but it's my bet that that little nest of colored eggs is the most color that's ever touched the woman's life.

Anything as deadly dull as a cemetery needs every bit of brightening that can be planted among the tombstones. I hope by the time I settle down there, they'll have progressed to high rises with piped-in music and pink grave markers with orange names.

A friend of mine made a remark to me recently that showed me, first of all, just how deeply implanted in Southern soil are his roots; secondly, it amused me greatly, stirring a few delightful old memories.

He said, "Don't go there; that's a Yankee custom."

He was referring to my intended visit to the funeral home where a mutual friend was "laid out".

My immediate thought was, By Gum! Carrying the Yankee bit to the grave is a bit much; but my next thought... the rush of memories... irreverent as it may seem, is to me as giggable as the colored eggs on Mrs. Stalin's grave.

Sharon Harris of Maryland Is Bride of Thomas Painter

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Harris of Glen Burnie, Md., announce the marriage of their daughter, Sharon, to Thomas Wealey

Painter, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Robert C. Painter, Virginia Beach. The wedding was solemnized at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, April 22, in St. John's Lutheran Church, Brooklyn, Md. The Rev. John Eastley, pastor, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Miss Pamela Harris served her sister as maid-of-honor.

Members of the immediate families and close friends attended. A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents.

The couple will live in Norfolk.

Latch It

Use ordinary gate latches for storage closet doors in garage or carport. Resawn tongue-and-groove siding boards applied over Z-braces make excellent doors.

Poems of the two top winners have been entered in the statewide competition, the winning entry then being eligible for a national award.

Miss Andrea Benda of St. Nicholas will be sponsored by the Catholic Daughters of Court Stella Maris and the Knights of Columbus, Father Nicholas J. Habets Council, as a candidate for Lotus Queen.

....A Showing

That the city is fairly overflowing with artistic talent was evidenced last week by the great expanse of art on display in the Mall. Each area school sent a collection for the exhibit which grew and grew and grew. Shown is a small sampling of the art, a portion of the exhibit that was on display near the Powers School.

As a child in a fairly large city, calling at the funeral home was as natural as the funeral director hoped the corpse would be.

To boot, I was enrolled in a church-affiliated school; one where church service took precedence over all else. For a funeral or a wedding, the blackboard was erased and the entire school trooped off to attend. We went to funerals like there was no tomorrow.

If luck was with us, we even went to the cemetery. Once there, and being small, we could often worm our way into a choice front and center vantage point to watch the proceedings. If it was heavily dramatic, as it generally seemed to be back then, we really felt that we'd been to a first-run movie.

Always the men whose wives had walked two paces behind them from the day of the wedding until the day of the funeral were the ones we learned to watch especially closely. Inevitably, they had to be restrained from flinging themselves into the earthy cavity.

These excursions to the cemetery weren't easily manipulated. It meant finagling a place in the rear of the line when the church emptied and the pupils dispatched back to classrooms. The end-of-the-line lagers would fix an eye on the end of the line of cars. If there were any cars to be filled, the funeral director might tag us for the trip.

It was a lark, an outing, a chance to ride in a 'machine,' then a family status symbol not unlike the twin-engine airplane is today.

Back in school, we were the center of attention the rest of the day...every last grim detail wrung out of us...the entire trip described down to the last morbid minute.

Wakes were a way of life. Failure to call at the home...to look in on the deceased and to stay around socializing was like staying away from an Irish Day picnic.

It was a social event, a place where men sat in one room puffing cigars, women in another, and the kids somewhere in between. There was always a table full of food, the kids were always up too late and the local clergy (of whom we were stark-frozen terrified) friendly to the point of seeming almost human.

That these were somber occasions I don't believe ever crossed our curious, young minds. They were events, happenings that reeked of roses...now memories that make me smile as I did when I heard of Mrs. Stalin's egg-laden grave.

My mother is the one that sweeps,
She's the one that goes and sleeps.
She does not look into our bedroom,
Just inside my brother's bedroom.

Judy R.

My mother is so dear to me. She has a strong faith in the Lord. I am quite sure that I love her very much.

Morris White Jr.

My mother is kind, sweet and patient. She is a real worker. Sometimes she is over worked. When she gets tired she gets cross, but she keeps going. That's my mother!

Beth Dowdy

My mom (the woman who married my dad) is kind, but not that kind, sweet, but not that sweet, happy, but not that happy. So there is only one thing I can say, "nobody's perfect."

H. P. H. Hinton

And from Trantwood's third grade:

My mother is very nice
Because she is made of sugar and spice.
Of course she hates mice
She does not think they are very nice.
I think my mother is very nice
Even if she throws away our dice.

Donald G. Robinson

Mothers are nice because they help you with arithmetic and help you spell electricity and all sorts of things. Mothers have everything but boys names. They are smart but not as smart as Albert Einstein. But Einstein would never win a house cleaning contest.

I love my mother,
My mother loves me.
I love my mother

Bruni

"If I have errands to do or shopping to do before I go home, it's not very convenient to fly our plane to the field. But when I'm in a hurry, I'll fly in."

While Bruni's always in a hurry to get to the flying field, her husband's always in a hurry to get away from one.

A First Pilot with Pan-American, he flies home from New York as often as possible, and when he's home, he doesn't want to go near an airport. Bruni, then arranges her schedule to coincide with his.

If the Bradleys have a trip in the offing, it's usually Bruni at the controls. "He sleeps," Bruni said. Their two children, aged 7 and 2 1/2, go with them everywhere they go.

Right now her sister is here on her first visit to the States. For her, as for her husband, Bruni has put aside her flying club log book.

"I love to fly. There's nothing like it in the world. If I didn't have people to instruct, I'd fly anyway... just to be in the air."

Of her agricultural talent, she feels that like most things today, specialization has taken over.

"I've just about given up on agriculture. You have to have a very large farm to be a successful farmer. I've seeded our couple of acres in grass, but that's all."

"Like everything today, you must be specialized."

Bruni Bradley's specialty is anything but earthy.

Norfolk Theatre Has O'Neill Play

One of Eugene O'Neill's finest dramatic efforts, "Ah Wilderness," is being presented at the Norfolk Little Theatre through May 14, with an extra run May 18-21.

This warmly humorous story of a young boy's first head-on encounter with life and love was a Broadway hit in the early thirties and has enjoyed undiminished popularity.

Stan Fedszyn is the director of the play, and the cast includes Dennis Stephens as Richard, Jack and Caroline O'Keefe as his father and mother, Thea Blair as the aunt, Jerry Rove as the uncle, Dean Butrico as Arthur, Sheryl Hamlett as Mildred, Sandy McGaw as Belle, Jeff Barkan as Wint Shelby, Deanne O'Connor as Muriel McComber, Eli Chertoff as the bartender, Cassandra Drake as Nora and Newton Rector as the salesman. The action takes place in a small town in Connecticut in 1906.

Tickets are available at the box office after 3 p.m. daily, through May 14, and again May 17-21.

Phone reservations are welcome and reduced rates are available for students and enlisted military personnel. The theatre is located at the corner of Raleigh and Claremont Avenues near the entrance to the midtown Portsmouth tunnel. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Father Must Be Convincing

For Commander S. J. Hall, who has recruited hundreds of young men into the Naval Reserve, a recent letter from the Fifth Naval District headquarters contained especially welcome news about one of his recruits.

It notified him that his son, Stephen James Hall, 20, a sophomore at East Carolina College, had been accepted into the reserve Officer Candidate Program.

Under the program, young Hall will be eligible for a commission in the Naval Reserve by the time he receives his college degree. He will attend weekend drills at the reserve training center at Little Creek and participate in extended summer training cruises.

His father is the commanding officer of the local training center, and he was the first recruit the center had when it opened in 1964. The Halls live at 4626 Lee Ave.

Further information on the ROC program is available at any Naval Reserve Training Center.

Local Students Earn Honors at U. of Va.

A record number of students -- more than 24 per cent -- have been named to the dean's list in the University of Virginia's College of Arts and Sciences.

A total of 751 students were placed on the dean's list for work done in the fall semester, compared to 597 (21.4 per cent) cited at this time last year. To be named to the list, a student must have earned a "B" average while taking an approved course load, and have failed no courses.

The College also recognized 78 students in its honors program for independent work done under the guidance of a tutor. Those in the honors program are superior third and fourth-year students who are not enrolled in regular courses and receive no grades.

Thirteen local students were

Don't Be Bugged By Sprays

Are the bugs eating up your garden?

Most insects can be knocked out with sprays, powders and other poisons, but the unwary gardener sometimes can suffer from the effects of bug sprays too.

Some tips on use of insecticides are offered in Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association.

Read the directions on the container carefully and follow them. The manufacturer spells out the proper usage and safety precautions.

If the directions call for rubber gloves, protective clothing or goggles, leave this alone, unless you are an expert.

Store the insecticide in its original container, with original label, in a safe, locked compartment, away from children and pets.

Destroy empty containers immediately.

Apply downward, to avoid inhaling sprays and dusts. Stay out of freshly sprayed areas.

Do not smoke while spraying or dusting. Some of the chemicals are flammable.

If chemicals are spilled on skin, wash immediately and thoroughly.

Cover bird baths, dog dishes, and fish pools before spraying. Pour left over spray down a drain or into the soil. Don't leave it around in pans or pails.

In case of accident, follow the directions on the container. If in doubt, call your physician.

Airman Shaun M. Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kelley of 509 Seaman Road, has been selected for training at Goodfellow AFB, Tex., as an Air Force Intelligence specialist. The airman, a 1965 graduate of Princess Anne High School, recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex.

New Numbers Replace Old

The Department of Defense recently announced a new policy of replacing the military serial number system with the Social Security number, effective July 1, 1967.

On that date, all branches of the Armed Forces of the United States will begin substituting Social Security numbers for the military serial numbers which have traditionally been given to men as they enter military service.

The Dept. of Defense officials have said that the system will be more compatible as a pay system that will rely on computers. It will be recalled that the Veterans Administration began using Social Security numbers for VA hospital admissions on January 1, 1966, replacing the old Register Number system that had been in effect for many years.

How About Seven Million & One?

The one they made the big fuss over was a Virginia Blue two-door Galaxie 500 with just about every optional piece of equipment Ford offers, and one that is still experimental, a safety seatbelt.

Pictures of it were taken from every angle. The governor of Virginia, Mills E. Godwin, Jr., drove it away and the number three man from Ford, the Executive Vice President, Charles H. Patterson, stood by proudly. It was all quite grand and the ceremony was entirely deserving. It was Ford's 70 millionth vehicle, and the Norfolk Ford Assembly plant had been chosen to build it because of the high quality of work done there.

It rolled off the assembly line and while everyone was still making a big fuss over it, they missed the 70 millionth and one vehicle. It was light green and white four-door model with lots of extras. It rolled unobtrusively past the crowds and to the outside of the assembly plant for shipment. Production never stopped, regardless of the pomp. No. 70 million and two, incidentally, was a pickup truck.

Dignitaries and Ford dealers from all over Virginia were on hand, and each left with a replica of the Virginia Blue 70 millionth vehicle to display on his showroom floor. In most cases the dealers graciously allowed newsmen to drive the cars for a few days. Rhea Adams of Embarcadero, Inc., in Virginia Beach turned his keys over to newsmen from the Virginia Beach Sun and

Over a hundred of the replicas left the lot at once, all bearing dealer's tags. One newsmen who had to wait quite awhile to get his car, suggested an interesting practical joke.

"Wouldn't it be funny," he said, "if somebody called the police and told them his 1967 Galaxie 500 two-door Virginia Blue Ford with dealer's license plates had just been stolen?"

As far as could be determined, there were no takers to the practical joke.

Jamestown Landing To Be Celebrated

The arrival of 144 travel-weary but hopeful men at Jamestown 360 years ago, destined to be Sunday with simple but fitting ceremonies.

The occasion is Jamestown Day, the annual celebration of the first enduring settlement by the English in the new world.

It was on May 13, 1607, after two weeks of search in the lower Chesapeake Bay and James River following a four-month ocean voyage, that Capt. Christopher Newport anchored his fleet of three small ships here and led the settlers ashore. The observances are traditionally held on the Sunday nearest the anniversary date under the sponsorship of the Assn. for Preservation of Virginia Antiquities (A.P.V.A.).

Pageantry and thanksgiving will characterize the day's events, starting at 3 p.m. with the principal address by Gordon Gray, chairman of the National Trust for Historical Preservation and noted government leader and businessman. Jamestown Island will be open free of charge after 2 p.m., enabling visitors to tour this historic site and participate in the founding ceremonies.

Leading up to the address the Continental Army Band of Episcopal Choir of Williamsburg will be an added attraction and the colorful halberdiers of Jamestown Festival Park will lead a procession from the old Church Tower to the Robert Hunt Shrine, providing more pageantry to the celebration.

Following the address at the Shrine, A.P.V.A. officials will place a wreath at the Memorial Cross which honors the Virginians who lie in the first known English burial ground in this country.

Visitors will have an opportunity to see the three reconstructed ships of the voyage of over three and one-half centuries ago. One, the Susan Constant, may be boarded for a closer view.

That's A Lot Of Dirt

How many different kinds of soil do you think there are in Virginia?

Well, there are about 1500. On that you can take the word of Tom F. McGourin, State Conservationist of the U.S.D.A. Soil Conservation Service with headquarters in Richmond, in the U. S. as a whole there are 70,000 different kinds, he says.

"Each soil has its own distinctive traits or characteristics," McGourin said. "To make wise and intelligent use of the land, it's best to know what kind of soil we are working with. Some soils, for example, can be used safely and productively for cultivated crops. Some can't.

"Some soils will support a housing development or an airport. Others won't. On some suburban lots, the soil will filter sewage from a septic tank. On others the soil won't."

To find out about proper uses of soil for both rural and urban residents, SCS soil scientists survey 50 million acres a year. Their reports are used by farmers. They're also used by planning commissions, zoning boards, architects, builders, developers, school boards, health departments, tax assessors and highway departments.

Professional land developers use an SCS publication, "Know Your Soil" (AIB 267). For homeowners, there's "Soil Conservation At Home" (AIB 244). Single copies may be obtained free at any Soil Conservation Service office.

The Virginia Beach office is located at Princess Anne Courthouse.

4 Programs Aid Students

High school juniors and seniors were reminded today that there are four Federally supported programs that could financially help them go to college.

Dr. M. Howard Bryant, Director of High Education for Region II of the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, especially urged college-bound seniors to find out about the aid for which they may apply.

"Frequently," Bryant said, "we get last-minute requests for aid from students who don't realize that their college may have several Federal and other assistance programs that could help them." Since the aid is distributed by the college, the student should immediately contact the financial aid officer of the college.

"Only a few years ago, a college education was largely a youth who had affluent parents, or for youth who were extremely bright, or outstanding in athletics," said Bryant. "Fortunately, this situation has changed." The current trend in many institutions is toward giving financial "package plans."

These are combinations of funds from several sources, both government and private, that are tailor-made by the college to fit each student's particular financial needs.

Dr. Bryant urged citizens throughout Virginia to keep an eye out for talented youth who might not know about the many sources of help for them in higher education, and to encourage them to finish high school and go on to college.

The four major Federal student financial aid programs are the National Defense Student Loan Program, the College Work-Study Program, the Educational Opportunity Grants Program, and the Guaranteed Loan Program.

Practically all U. S. colleges and universities are in the National Defense Student Loan program. Borrowing directly from the college, the undergraduate may borrow up to $1,000 each academic year, to a total of $5,000. The graduate student may borrow up to $2,500 a year, to a maximum of $10,000. Interest and repayment begin when the student has finished, for a period up to ten years. Borrowers who become teachers may have part of the loan cancelled. Next year in Virginia, 7,022 students in 40 colleges and universities will borrow about $3,082,384.

The College Work-Study program provides jobs for students who need employment to help pay their expenses. Generally, students work 15 hours a week while attending classes full-time, and work 40 hours a week during summer and other vacations.

At present, the average salary earned in the Work-Study program is about $700 a year. About 1,700 students in 20 Virginia colleges work in the program at a Federal cost of about $1,438,860.

"Educational Opportunity Grants," Bryant said, "is a

Missionaries Come to Area

Two young missionaries from Utah are now knocking on doors in the area with the question, "What do you know about the Mormon church?"

The two, Elder William D. Anderson and Elder John R. Wessman, are serving a two-year mission in the Central Atlantic states telling people about the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, or Mormons for short.

Elder Anderson left Utah more than a year ago and Elder Wessman has been here about two months. It is their full-time work.

The Mormon church in this area is on Greendale Ave. just off Little Creek Road in Norfolk. Services are at 9:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Sundays.

Marine Sgt. Daniel H. Kappers, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Kappers of 424 Bamboo Lane, was awarded the Purple Heart Medal while serving as a member of Third Battalion, First Marine Regiment in Vietnam. The regiment is a subordinate unit of the First Marine Division.

You May Help A Bank Robber

Want to help rob a bank?

You can -- Innocently, says Aetna Life & Casualty, a leading writer of criminal loss insurance protection.

If chance places you at a bank when a robber strikes, panic could make you an unwitting "accomplice." It may reduce your effectiveness as an observer, thereby helping the criminal. Aetna points out that although modern protective systems are aiding banks and police in their battle against bandits, alert witnesses can still play a key role.

The insurance company notes that over 2,000 Americans will witness bank holdups this year. In case you're one of them, Aetna suggests you follow this advice:

Don't take chances. Obey the bandit, but do it slowly. Time works against him.

Mentally record an accurate description of the robber. Compare his height to a person near him or to an object such as the teller's window.

Look especially for notable physical characteristics--scars, tattoos, build, hair, ears, facial features, manner of walking, and clothing. If there is more than one robber, concentrate on describing one, rather than all.

If the robber is armed, notice the type of weapon. Is it a revolver or an automatic? Nickel-plated or steel?

Call the attention of bank officials to anything you see the bandit touch, so that possible fingerprints are not disturbed until they are checked.

If possible, observe the direction of his getaway and memorize the registration number and description of his car.

Once the bandit leaves, don't discuss the robbery before police arrive. It may confuse you. Instead, try to relax and write down what you saw. When you do talk to investigators, tell them all the details. What may seem unimportant to you may be a significant clue to them.

Navy Needs Engineers

R. Adm. Harry N. Wallin, Civil Engineer Corps, United States Navy, Commander, Atlantic Division, Naval Facilities Engineering Command, Norfolk, has announced that the Navy's increasing military and construction requirements coupled with a continuing shortage of experienced middle grade Civil Engineer Corps officers on active duty has made it necessary to provide a means for direct input of experienced personnel at the Lieutenant and Lieutenant Commander grade level.

Criteria for such appointments are outlined below:

Sex - Male only.

Age - Applicants for appointment as Lieutenant must be at least 26 but under 38. Applicants for appointment as Lieutenant Commander must be at least 32 but under 38.

Citizenship - Must be a citizen of the United States.

Education - Must be a graduate of an accredited college or university with a baccalaureate degree in civil, mechanical, electrical, mining, petroleum or architectural engineering, or in architecture. Graduates with a degree in other engineering disciplines will be considered on an individual basis. Preference will be given to applicants with graduate degrees in engineering.

Experience - Applicants for appointment as Lieutenant must have at least five years of suitable professional experience in the appropriate field; applicants for appointment as Lieutenant Commander must have at least 12 years.

Training and Obligation. Selected applicants will be appointed in the Civil Engineer Corps, U. S. Naval Reserve. They subsequently will be ordered to attend the Officer Indoctrination Class at Newport, Rhode Island, for nine weeks, upon completion of which they will be ordered to attend the Basic Civil Engineer Course at CECOS, Port Hueneme, California for eight weeks. Appointees will be obligated to serve on active duty for two years following completion of all training at Newport, Rhode Island and Port Hueneme, California, and to retain their commissions for six years.

Further information on this program can be obtained through the local Navy Recruiting Office or by writing Commander, Atlantic Division, Naval Facilities Engineering Command, Norfolk, Va. 23511, attention Code OOA, phone 444-7612.

This year is the 100th anniversary of the United States Navy Civil Engineer Corps.... an honored profession.

Today's Investor

Q. Can you give me some advice on how I can buy or sell property which would involve the least amount of taxes, particularly income, to be paid? What type of property would be best for this?

A. These questions are out of my field. I suggest you talk to an attorney or an accountant who specializes in tax matters. However, I would say from my experience that it is not wise to make tax saving your prime objective in any investment program.

Too much emphasis on tax savings can cloud your judgment as to the quality of the item in which you are investing.

The object of investing always is to make money. Once you have accomplished this, the burden of taxes can be met--even though you don't enjoy it.

One man told me a story of how he let fear of taxes color his thinking to the point where he actually lost money.

He owned some RCA stock which he had held many years and he showed a substantial profit. All his studies indicated to him that the stock was overpriced a year ago when it sold at 62 and that he should sell.

However, he looked only at the tax he would have to pay if he sold the stock--and decided to hang onto it.

Later the stock went down considerably. He could have paid his taxes and bought quite a bit more of the stock back than he originally owned at the levels it later reached.

Q. In January, 1962, we invested $2,500 in a mutual fund and have since put $100 to $150 into it each month. Considering growth, earnings and commissions, do you think we could do better with another mutual fund?

A. I have always felt that diversification was a good principle to follow in investing, and I would be inclined either to put the $150 a month into another fund or to buy directly shares in two or three of our major corporations.

This is not to say you should sell the mutual fund shares you now hold. You have already paid your commission for them, and would pay a second sizeable commission if you switched to another fund. Besides, the one you bought has a respectable record, even though many others may have done somewhat better.

Have you a question about investing? Mr. O'Hara, editor of the monthly magazine, "Better Investing", and one of the nation's recognized authorities, will answer as many as possible in his column or by personal mail, but must limit questions to those of more general interest. Correspondents will receive a free copy of "Better Investing". Write to T. D. O'Hara, National Association of Investment Clubs, Dept. S, Box 1056, Detroit, Michigan, 48231.

Pembroke West Set to Start

The developers of Pembroke Mall are strengthening their bid to turn the relatively new commercial area into the "central business district" of Virginia Beach.

Principals in the Pembroke development, Horace Cistola, Frederick Napolitano and Emilio Olivieri, announced this week they plan a construction start in the fall on the first high-rise office building for Pembroke West.

That is the name given an area west of the present shopping center on Virginia Beach Boulevard and earmarked for professional and financial offices, shops, a restaurant and

Jaycees, CCO Plan Forum

A "Meet the Candidates" forum will be co-sponsored by the Virginia Beach Jaycees and the Council of Civic Organizations at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 23, at Princess Anne High School.

All Administration, United and Independent candidates have been invited. Joel Carlson will moderate the forum. It will not be a debate but an opportunity to see and hear each candidate and learn about his qualifications for the office he seeks.

a motor hotel for regional-size conventions.

Horace Cistola, speaking of the overall concept for the Pembroke "central business district," said that when it is completed in future years, there will be some form of mass transportation to more persons from one part to another of the three-phase complex.

What was planned as a five-story office building will have at least six stories and 60,000 square feet of floor space, Cistola said. Evan J. McCorkle is architect, and S. L. Nushbaum & Co., Inc., is leasing agent.

The new building will mean about 250 employees, according to the principals. Some of a dozen other buildings proposed at Pembroke West include such features as parking decks, a medical office with apartments. Construction costs for Pembroke West over the years are estimated near $25 million, and total square footage will be near 1,412,600, the principals said.

Negotiations are underway with the city government for putting government offices in Pembroke West.

Parade Heads Armed Forces Day

R. Adm. Bell

The highlight of Armed Forces Day Saturday, May 20, will be the annual parade which begins at 10 a.m. An added attraction will be the 50th anniversary open house at Ft. Story the same day and one at Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

The parade route will extend from Ninth Street to Laskin Road on Atlantic Avenue. The reviewing stand will be at 25th Street.

R. Adm. C. Edwin Bell Jr., deputy director for inspection services in the office of the Secretary of Defense, has been named military marshal. He has been awarded the Legion of Merit for his work in the Defense Department.

Leading off Armed Forces Day activities will be a formal military ball Friday night at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center. Warren Covington and his orchestra will supply the music.

Miss Lynn Prangley, reigning Miss Virginia Beach, plans to fly home from the University of Colorado to ride the Virginia Beach Jaycee float in the parade.

Little Creek will have open house from 1-4:30 p.m. and will feature tours of ships, UDT and free-fall parachute demonstrations and various exhibits. Visitors should enter through Gates 4 and 5, where brochures will be available.

The open house at Ft. Story will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Throughout the day there will be conducted tours of the post which will include visits to the Nike-Hercules launcher area and the Fire Control area. The Navy's Seal Team will perform twice at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. in free-fall jumps from helicopters.

The Ft. Story Honor Guard will drill and go through the manual of arms. Jeep rides will be offered for children, and the Post Theatre will run a series of cartoons hourly.

There will be Armed Forces Day display at Pembroke Mall Shopping Center through Sunday.

The theme of Armed Forces Day, unchanged since 1953, is "Power for Peace." Edward P. Brogan, chairman of the Armed Forces Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, is in charge of the parade and ball.

Twenty Vie for Queen

Twelfth Virginia Beach girls have started campaigning for votes with the title Queen Lotus XIII as their goal.

The queen will be chosen at the 13th annual Lotus Festival coronation ball July 19, and the festival will last until July 26.

Each of the girls aspiring to succeed Miss Cathy Holland, crowned Queen Lotus XII last summer, are soliciting contributions for projects of the various groups sponsoring them. Each penny counts as a vote, and the girl with the most wins.

The Cape Henry Woman's Club sponsors the Lotus Festival each year in cooperation with the Virginia Department of Conservation and Economic Development. It focuses attention on the Lotus Gardens in Tabernacle Creek near Sandbridge.

Miss Holland, who will relinquish her crown at the start of the festival, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Holland of Thoroughgood.

Contestants this year and their ages, sponsors and high schools they attend are:

Indian Due Monday

T. T. Singh, a 43-year-old agricultural officer in Manipur, India, will arrive in Virginia Beach on Monday, May 22, for a weeks study of methods used by Virginia extension agents.

Singh's visit was announced this week by E. R. Cockrell Jr., Virginia Beach agricultural agent. He said the beach visitor is among 20 men in an Indian mission which is studying agriculture in the United States for six months.

The mission has been at Virginia Polytechnic Institute since May 3 and uses the university as its base, making field tours around Virginia.

New Ideas This Week

The Sun is bursting forth with new ideas designed to help you lead a more relaxed, thoughtful and pleasant life in the suburbs, along the beaches and bay shores, on the farms or at work.

"Near As Your Phone" on page 4B is to put at your fingertips some of the phone numbers which can mean life or death, happiness or frustration.

On this week's editorial page, the political cartoon has given way to an outdoor scene, one of millions which you can see in Virginia Beach, if you have the time. More are coming in the Sun.

"Passing Thought" on this week's front page will be a regular feature to help you pause for a while in today's fast pace to ponder the world around you.

Church Has Anniversary

The Princess Anne Plaza Baptist Church will celebrate its fourth anniversary Sunday with a special service at 11 a.m. and a dinner.

The Rev. Melvin J. Hughes, pastor, said the Rev. Bonnie Costen, a student at Old Dominion College, will be guest speaker. The Plaza church has 550 church members.

Outlook Brightens For Fishing Center

A bid opening scheduled for June 13 on the long-awaited construction to open Rudee Inlet to boats south of the boardwalk has brightened prospects for developing a sports fishing center there.

designed as part of a sand trap to keep the inlet open. At the end of the groin, a stone jetty will angle to the northeast 280 feet.

The north jetty at Rudee will be extended 600 feet eastward with stone.

George Langley, consulting engineer on the inlet project being coordinated by L. Dean Curtis, the city's industrial development director, has sent out invitations for bids to various contractors.

The entrance at the channel's bottom will be 10 feet below mean sea level and 88 feet wide. Sides will slope at a 2-to-1 ratio, making the channel 122 feet wide a foot below mean sea level.

The job is scheduled for a July start and completion by next April, Langley said. Cost is estimated near $500,000 for jetties and slope protection.

The existing south jetty will be extended oceanward in the form of a 492-foot-long groin, Langley said the contract involved in June 13 bidding is for construction of the groin and jetties, plus shoreline slope protection inside the inlet. The Virginia Beach Erosion Commission has agreed to dredge the inlet channel, he added, and the city will reimburse the commission.

Gawrys Wants Military Retired Tax Equality

"When elected", Joseph A. Gawrys, Candidate for the House of Delegates, told a recent meeting of supporters, "Edward T. (Ned) Caton III, B. R. Middleton and I, as United Candidates to the State Legislature, will work to obtain passage of a state income tax law to parallel Public Law 89-385 of the Federal Statutes".

"Such a Law", Gawrys said, "would permit our retired military personnel to obtain a refund of state income tax paid in prior years on money not received and to exclude from gross income in the future the deferred compensation which each serviceman has set aside for his widow or other survivors".

Evans Says Opponent Won't Reply

"Criticism of the present Commonwealth's Attorney in Virginia Beach has come from all quarters", said Andre Evans, United Candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney. This is not surprising, when the public learned about criminal cases being dismissed because the prosecutor either wasn't prepared or didn't even show up in court for the trial.

Etheridge Budget Help Refused

"Fortunately", Evans continued, "all of these deplorable conditions can be things of the past when I am elected. I feel that I have the training, ability and experience to perform properly the duties of Commonwealth's Attorney. Years in the Courtroom have taught me how to cope with the trial strategy and tactics of the other experienced, well-prepared attorneys who will be representing the defendants".

"My opponent does not have these qualifications", Evans said. He is an office lawyer with his interest centered on real estate and zoning transactions, an entirely different field of law".

"The real issue in this race is how the office of Commonwealth's Attorney should be conducted", Evans concluded. "What has happened in the past cannot be undone; but we can assure an improvement in the future. I have repeatedly called upon my opponent to say whether or not he approves of the way in which the people have been represented by the present Commonwealth's Attorney. I have had no reply to this question. Nor will there be a reply until the voters nominate and elect an independent Commonwealth's Attorney, who will not be afraid to pursue the ends of justice without regard to political obligation or favoritism".

Absalom Against Secret Talk

Richard R. Absalom, United Candidate for Clerk of Circuit Court, has called for enactment of laws which would prohibit the Virginia Beach City Council from meeting in secret session on matters referred from the Planning Commission.

"There have been instances in the past", Absalom said, "where Council discussed zoning matters in private before they were voted upon in an open council meeting. My fellow United Candidates and I will work for a law to prohibit this procedure. Debate on these highly controversial matters should be open and above board".

"The heritage of the town meeting", Absalom stated, "is a valued one. The very heart of this heritage lies in open sessions which the public may attend."

Caton Talks on Tuition Grants

"There are many fine private schools in this area", commented Edward T. (Ned) Caton III, United Candidate for the Senate from the 3rd Senatorial District, "and we are proud of their contribution to our educational system".

"However, in the last General Assembly at the request of the Virginia Beach City Council," Caton said, "I proposed legislation to abolish or put on a local option basis the payment of tuition grants. I did this because my experience as a Virginia Beach City Councilman taught me that most parents applying for tuition grants would send their children to private schools whether or not these funds were paid to them."

"It is for that reason", Caton said, "that I believe, if tuition grants are continued, the public schools would be deprived of money unnecessarily. When elected I will introduce my bill again in the Senate".

Barbecue

A free-to-the-Public Barbecue and rally will be held at the Princess Anne High School Athletic Field Saturday afternoon, June 3, at 4 o'clock.

"Also", Gawrys continued, "my fellow United Candidates and I will work to correct an inequity which arose in the General Assembly in the 1966 session. A statute was passed then permitting Federal Civil Service employees to exclude the first $2,000 of retirement benefits. However, through oversight, this same privilege was not given to retired military personnel. When we are elected we will work to correct this and to obtain a similar exemption for our citizens who are drawing military retirement benefits".

Etheridge Budget Help Refused

City Treasurer, V. Alfred (Jack) Etheridge, seeking reelection as a United Candidate, appeared before the Virginia Beach City Council at last week's budget hearing and advocated a 10% increase in salaries for city employees.

Etheridge stated that this increase would not affect him or his employees because their salaries had been fixed until June, 1968, by the Compensation Board in Richmond. He told Council that salaries now being paid city employees were not in line with salaries paid by private industry in this area.

Etheridge presented facts and figures to show the City Council that money for these raises was available from current revenues and that taxes would not have to be raised to give salary raises to city employees.

Absalom Against Secret Talk

Richard R. Absalom, United Candidate for Clerk of Circuit Court, has called for enactment of laws which would prohibit the Virginia Beach City Council from meeting in secret session on matters referred from the Planning Commission.

"There have been instances in the past", Absalom said, "where Council discussed zoning matters in private before they were voted upon in an open council meeting. The Sigma Y-Teens of Cox High School have received a trophy after being chosen the Best Y-Teen Club among eight in Virginia Beach's high schools.

which will become an annual one, was presented at a Mother-Daughter Banquet recently at the Ocean Heath Restaurant, North Virginia Beach.

Another trophy went to the Kempsville Y-Teens for having the best service project. The Y-Teens, sponsored by the YWCA, have nearly 400 members in the city.

About 60 of them attended last Saturday's luncheon, where Miss Sharon Vanderploeg reported on her trip to Boston for the National YWCA convention.

Cox High has two Y-Teen clubs. There is one each at Kempsville, Kellam, First Colonial, Bayside, Union Kempsville and Princess Anne high schools.

Powell Wins

George Powell, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Powell of Pungo, had the Grand Champion steer at the annual Junior Steer Show and Sale sponsored by the Virginia Beach and Chesapeake Chambers of Commerce.

The Angus steer, which weighed 905 lb., sold for $1.02 per pound.

Survey Planned

Farmers in Virginia Beach will be surveyed on livestock by the Virginia Crop Reporting Service.

Joseph T. Crosswhite Jr., postmaster, said rural mail carriers and star route contractors will begin distributing the survey cards on their routes Monday, May 22.

Information gathered will be used to establish estimates of this year's production of calves, spring pigs, and determine the number of milk cows and chickens on local farms.

Plaza Breaks Ground

Fire Chief B. E. Todd (on rostrum above) was among those who spoke Saturday when about 200 persons ignored a drizzle and attended the groundbreaking for the Princess Anne Plaza fire station at Rosemont Road and S. Plaza Trail. Mayor Frank A. Dusch turned the first shovel of earth for the station, which will house the Princess Anne Plaza Volunteer Fire Company, now in a small wooden building.

Downing, Kellam Tell Future of Education

Rep. Thomas N. Downing told students at Bayside High School recently that the United States should not permit the world situation to cut back or diminish efforts for improved education.

at which he and State Sen. William Kellam spoke on the future of education in the U. S. and in Virginia.

"Education and training are vital keys to maintaining modern technology," Rep. Downing said to social studies students at a special assembly made by the federal government, including vocational education grants, grants for higher education, the Library Act for construction of new libraries, the National Defense Education Act, Economic Opportunities Act and the Manpower Development Training Act.

"These reflect the growing concern of the federal government for quality education of our youth," Rep. Downing said. "The program will be broadened and improved."

"Whatever we have done for education, we have not done enough," Sen. Kellam said. "We are not a leader in education."

Sen. Kellam said that the greatest stride in the history of education today is community colleges.

"They are a part of the positive program Virginia has initiated to see that every girl and boy have the opportunity of quality education," he said.

Sen. Kellam also cited teachers' raises, the public day-care program, state support for summer schools, educational television and improved retired teacher benefits.

Grade Depends On Play

Students in the Drama II class at Bayside High School will entertain children while earning a grade for their class.

The students, taught by Hugh Copeland, were given the assignment of producing a play by themselves for their final grade. They chose a fairy-tale plot in a book and added music to it.

The result is "Wonders of Storybook Land" which will be presented at 10 a.m. May 27 (a repeat performance at 2 p.m. if attendance warrants it) in the school auditorium. Posters will be placed in elementary schools.

According to Diane Bellamy, who is in charge of publicity, the play is suitable for children from kindergarten age through the fifth grade. Tickets will be 10 cents. Refreshments will be served.

Characters in the play include Capt. Hook, played by Tom Byers; Betty Howard as the white rabbit; Mindy Martin as the good fairy and Alice in Wonderland; Laurie Martin as Pinocchio; Bruce McHenry as the Big Bad Wolf; Jeanie Kelly as Smee and Happy; Betty Anderson as Little Red Riding Hood and Snow White; Linda Dexter as the witch and Tiger Lily; Eddie Mazzanti as Billy; Laura Swenson as Betty and Diane Bellamy as Peter Pan.

Seniors Receive Scholarships

Two scholarships have been awarded to Cox High School seniors by the Shelton Park Elementary School PTA.

The $100 scholarships were given to Kathleen E. Lewis, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Earl H. Lewis of 1725 Jack Frost Rd., and John S. Addison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Addison of 5053 Lord Felton La.

The scholarships are awarded annually in the name of Gladys H. Marshall, a former teacher at the school, to high school seniors who have attended Shelton Park.

Jaycees To Install

New Virginia Beach Jaycee officers will be installed at a banquet and dance May 26 at Shore Drive Inn beginning at 6 p.m.

Bob Stanton was recently elected president for 1967-68. Other new officers are Mickey Hayes, first vice president; Don Kern, second vice president; L. D. Finley III, secretary; Dale Blinson, treasurer.

Bayne Named To Study Group

Fire Chief E. B. Bayne of Virginia Beach Borough was recently appointed to the state committee studying Fire Service Training.

The committee was requested by Gov. Mills Godwin to study the need and advisability for creating a Fire Service Training Division under a State department in facilities owned and controlled by the State.

Boy Collects Bugs for Bird

When 11-year-old Ted Fellowes found a ground-bound crow in a wooded area, he did what almost any boy would do—hunted for bugs to feed it, then tamed it.

In Ted's case, he ran across the crow in the woods near his home on Kirkwood Lane in Virginia Beach. His father, Cmdr. Robert E. Fellowes, is a Navy pilot who soon will be going aboard the USS Randolph.

"I thought it was a hawk at first," the boy said as he explained seeing the crow in a ditch, flopping about. "Then he started going away from me, and hawks aren't afraid."

Although Ted was not aware of it, he lives in, or near one of the residential areas here designated as state bird sanctuaries.

Newfound Friends

After quieting the flopping crow with the shirt off his back, the boy "looked for bugs to feed him, but all I could find was a worm." The crow now eats lots of "froly polys," Ted said.

"He could fly just a few feet when I found him, and now he flies 20 feet and likes to pick up shiny things."

Last weekend, Ted was a hit with boys around his age in the neighborhood, and one of them arranged a school debut for the crow at Thalia Elementary this week.

What happens if the crow wants to fly away when it is well?

"If he stays with me, I'll be glad. If he doesn't, I hope he finds food for himself," Ted said resolutely.

Hospitality House Reopens

Hospitality House opened this week at a new location at 27th Street and Ocean Front.

Hospitality House, a place for service men to relax away from home, is sponsored by the Virginia Beach Ministerial Association and supported by the United Fund. Last summer it operated at the old Virginia Beach Hospital which has since been reopened.

A large crowd is expected this summer because of the good location. Rev. Dickson Taylor, president of the Ministerial Association, said. Also at the informal opening were Chaplain Gordon Griffin, Algy Cohen who helped organize the house last summer and State Sen. William Kellam.

Facilities include lockers for the men. The building will be used for this summer only, then torn down.

League Elects New Officers

The newly formed LakeSmith Terrace Civic Association elected officers at the monthly meeting held recently at Bay-side Presbyterian Church.

The officers elected to serve the initial year are J. W. King, president; W. H. Towers, vice president; W. R. Barnes, treasurer; and Mrs. W. B. Wood, secretary.

Batchelder Named Scholar

Tom, a senior at Norfolk Academy, plans on majoring in philosophy at Princeton and intends on a career as a college professor.

His many honors and activities include four years on the honor roll, president of Ars Medica Society, co-captain of the varsity track team, All-

Conference award as best line-man on football team, co-editor of school literary magazine, honor court member, class officer and student council member.

All National Merit Scholars and appreciable numbers of sponsored Merit Scholars are chosen by a selection committee formed of college and school officials skilled in academic selection.

Thomas H. Batchelder, son of Mr. and Mrs. David H. Batchelder of 1161 Cedar Point Dr., has won a Marshall Field-Wood Book Year Book Merit Scholarship in nationwide competition.

Afghan for Mayor

Mrs. Beverly Hicks and Mrs. Julius W. Lamm, representing the Virginia Beach Borough Volunteer Fire Department's Ladies Auxiliary, formally presented a colorful afghan to Mayor Frank A. Dusch at the fire station recently. The auxiliary presented the gift in memory of Virginia H. Bayne, late wife of Fire Chief E. B. Bayne.

Grads

The two graduations on June 9 will be Bayside and Cox.

School Supt. Frank Cox will be the principal speaker at Bayside. The program, for about 200 graduates, will begin at 8 p. m. in the gymnasium. Kathy Kerr is valedictorian and Tonya Carter, salutatorian.

The baccalaureate program will be at 7 p. m. in the auditorium.

Cox graduation, with 344 candidates for diplomas, will be held at 8 p. m. in Cox Stadium. Dr. Bernard Boyd, professor of religion at the University of North Carolina, will be the speaker. Resa Gury is valedictorian and Susanna Athey, salutatorian. A reception for parents and graduates will follow.

Rev. Roland Melody of St. Pius X Catholic Church in Norfolk will speak at the 4:30 p. m. baccalaureate ceremonies in the stadium.

Operatta To Play May 18-20

Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, "The Yeoman of the Guard," will be presented by the Norfolk Savoyards May 18, 19 and 20 at the Blair Junior High School auditorium.

The local group, organized in the summer of 1964, is devoted to the presentation and perpetuation of the works of Sir William Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan. "The Yeomen," reputed to be the personal favorite of the famed British team, was written by Gilbert in an attempt to pacify Sullivan who was tired of composing music for operettas dealing with topsy-turvydom and fairies.

The Savoyards' annual spring production is directed by Charles Oliver and produced by Charles Bell. The show will begin at 8:30 p. m., accompanied by a full orchestra. Tickets are available at the door at $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for young people under 18.

Our City's Future

The Virginia Metropolitan Areas Study Commission came up with some thought-provoking words in a report early this week.

We agree, particularly with these points made by the commission, headed by Dr. T. Marshall Hahn Jr.:

"... The quality of Virginia's metropolitan areas must be dramatically improved. If solutions to the growing problems are not achieved while they are of manageable dimensions, ultimate solution may become impossible."

Settling Suspicion

For quite some time, a few individuals, press reports and rumors put Mr. Richard S. Holland, highway commissioner, in the middle of a controversy involving that nebulous phrase, "conflict of interest."

It is a phrase which sharply questions the integrity of a public official. Since each man has his own definition of what the phrase means, it can at times be a vicious tool for a person's enemies.

In the case of Mr. Holland, public suspicions were aroused in regard to the integrity of Virginia's highway operations, as well as the individual.

"It should not be assumed, however, that a large area will necessarily solve problems more effectively than a small area, or that by making two localities into one locality any magic will occur. A local government can be too large as well as too small."

We particularly, particularly like that last sentence. Virginia Beach is an emerging city of the future, and cooperation with out sister cities is better than consolidation. No more bigness, please.

Counselor V. R. Shackelford's recent report on an investigation he made into the Holland case (see Sun Report on this page for excerpts), should settle the suspicions. It backs up the confidence Mr. Holland's friends had in him—a confidence which the Sun shared.

During the controversy, the commissioner continued his appointed duties—looking out for southeastern Virginia and its highway needs. The needs are readily apparent and will change as growth continues.

Mr. Holland is now doing his task with restored public confidence and support.

Plaza Bills Pop

There has been fuss of late about some unusually high April bills received by a handful of homeowners in Princess Anne Plaza from Vecpo.

The way we read it, a meter reader goosed by under-estimating, at his own risk, for the three previous months. Or perhaps we should say ex-meter reader, since Vecpo's top executive says the reader is no longer reading for Vecpo.

The fuss made a lot of grist for the news mill, opportunity for politicians and a lot of verbal voltage fired in Vecpo's direction.

We hope billing improves.

Wonder what would have happened if the hapless homeowners, when they received their reportedly low gas bills prior to April, would have queried their neighbors then about the bills that didn't seem right?

If ours seemed too low, we would have called Vecpo to get the situation straight before our budget went zip, zowie, bam. But then we would have been happier, like the heating-oil dealers are today over the Vecpo incident.

Answer the Call

When fire threatens a home, business, woods or farm in our city, some men break out of their work, relaxation or fun to answer the call.

When disasters—whether by storm or other causes—occur within Virginia Beach's 300-plus square miles, some of the same men are on the scene again.

They are not the curious. Not the thrill seekers, or the tragedy chasers. They are the volunteer firemen—14 companies or departments in all.

While some have only fire fighting equipment, others operate rescue boats, ambulances and the like.

Thirteen of those volunteer units, as most of the city's residents know by now, are conducting a May-long drive for funds. They ask from each family at least a penny a day ($3.65 a year).

The fourteenth volunteer department is in Virginia Beach Borough which helps paid firemen in that resort borough. Those volunteers will have a fund drive in the near future, and the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad—an independent volunteer unit—also conducts its own drive later.

As for the 13 volunteer organizations which stretch from on Knotts Island to Chesapeake Beach on the north, and from Davis Corner on the west to Seatack on the east, they need your help now. Give it to them cheerfully, and you will sleep easier. Someday, if misfortune falls, you will be thankful they can help you.

About Mr. Wallace

Seems that cocky guy, George Wallace of Alabama, made a hit of sorts when he waved the flag (as we all should do at times) in prose in the Old Dominion's capitol city in recent days.

Hello, George. As you have noticed, Virginia's administration is well ahead on shifting from federal to state responsibility, and without serious racial strife.

letters to the editor

'Most Obliging'

Dear Editor:

On Sunday, May 7, during the thunderstorm, a large tree was blown across my house.

A gentleman from the Plaza Rescue Squad stopped by and surveyed the damage. He immediately called the Plaza Volunteer Fire Department in and within a matter of minutes, they had the tree down, neatly saved and stacked. They also placed a temporary patch over the hole in my roof. While these men were working, cutting down the tree, a policeman came to the front door to offer assistance. (He had heard the call on his radio).

I do not know the names of these gentlemen, but I wish to publicly thank them for their help and their hard work and kindness.

On several occasions previously, our family has had need of Plaza Rescue Squad's ambulance service and they were most obliging.

Above all, everyone should support their local rescue squad and fire department. These men are truly selfless. Sincerely, (Mrs.) Laurei B. Perry Incredible?

Dear Editor:

I read your paper with detachment and amusement... especially about the local politics.

The current campaign... charges, counter charges, etc... seems incredible. But I suppose it's all rather typical of small town politics.

To those like me, who are in this area because of the Navy and are looking forward to leaving after a few years, it makes no difference who wins. For we know it will really only matter to the candidates and their close friends.

But let them have their run.

Rick Hartman

On Democracy

Dear Editor:

The freedom of speech guaranteed to us by the Constitution of the United States is founded on an old and often quoted idea:

"I disagree with what you say, but I will defend to death your right to say it."

Several nights ago, on TV, I saw former Governor Wallace attempt to address a group of students at Dartmouth University. Most of them obviously wanted to hear what he had to say. But a handful of negro students shouted loudly and continuously, refusing to let him speak.

I recall when I attended the University of Pennsylvania some years ago, we were addressed by a speaker so ultra-liberal in his thinking, so extreme left in his ideology, and so forceful in his presentation, the net result was pure sedition.

Invited

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN welcomes letters to the editor. All will be printed when space permits. Each letter must be signed and include address of the writer, but only the name will be published. Letters are invited on all subjects.

Even so, we politely listened to what he had to say. He was never interrupted, shouted down, and no one cried out while he spoke.

Whether or not one agrees with Mr. Wallace is beside the point. If our democracy means anything at all he certainly is entitled to speak, and be courteously heard.

Although I am one of those who has long championed for the negro, I retain no sympathy whatever for anyone complaining about an inequality of rights, who at the same time, by force and intimidation, if you please, refuses to extend to others the very same rights for which he clamors.

The overzealous negro has much less to fear from the "old guard" right than he does from the patriotic independent who will oppose him wherever and whenever necessary to prevent his destroying our standards of democracy.

Mr. James D. Parker

Campaign 'Words' Fly

The campaign scrap among Democrats for the July 11 primary nominations picked up some steam in recent days, with key attention-getting words like "secret" and "charge" getting some play.

Richard R. Absalom, United candidate who wants John V. Fentress' job as Circuit Court clerk, said there should be laws to keep City Council from having "secret sessions" on zoning matters. Absalom did not mention Virginia Beach City Council William H. Phillips, who opposes his ex-boss, Revenue Commissioner Ivan D. Mapp, joined next day in Absalom's chorus.

Political Potpourri

Meanwhile, the scrap between City Treasurer V. A. Etheridge of the Uniteds and Howard R. Merrill of the Administration Team flared up with some replays and a new charge.

Merrill said investigation of a rumor "revealed" Etheridge, one of his deputies (C. E. Upton Jr. and E. T. Caton III, running for the State Senate on the United side, were involved in what was called the Mame Corporation in 1966, and it figured in a rezeoning.

Etheridge and Caton had Upton represent their interests in order to hide their involvement, Merrill charged.

Caton and Etheridge both denied having any personal interest in such a corporation.

Some other candidates broke into the press in recent days. Del. Willard J. Moody, of Portsmouth, running for one of three state senate seats also sought by Sen. William P. Kellam; Sen. William Hodges of Chesapeake and Caton, had a "kick-off" meeting in Portsmouth.

Joseph Gawrys, running for the House of Delegates, said he, Caton and B. R. Middleton (also of the Uniteds) favor giving retired military personnel a break on state income taxes.

Andre Evans, a United man running for commonwealth's attorney against the Administration's Owen B. Pickett, said he would like to see Virginia Beach grand juries meet every month, instead of once every two months. He claimed some persons charged with crimes are not getting a "speedy trial."

L. Charles Buringe, House of Delegates candidate on the Administration ticket with Kellam and Kenneth Whitehurst (House candidate) didn't mail in any press releases last week.

Paul Sutton, Administration man for city sergeant; John E. Marr, the incumbent, and Robert L. Harrington, independent, continued going about the city in their quest for votes.

Sun Report

Investigation Clears Holland of Charges

The State Highway Commission recently concluded an investigation of alleged conflict of interest on the part of Richard S. Holland, Suffolk District commissioner from Virginia Beach, and released voluminous reports to the press, with exhibits.

Here are quoted conclusions from the report which V. R. Shackelford Jr., counsel for a three-man committee named by the highway commission for the investigation, presented early this month:

"The investigation was requested by Mr. Holland after certain conflict of interest charges appeared in the press in the Norfolk-Virginia Beach area. The particular areas which have been investigated involve alleged dealings and stock ownership by Richard S. Holland in four corporations, Point-O-View, Inc., Toden Holding Corporation, Avalon Hills, Inc., and Sequoia Realty Corporation, and the business relationship between Richard S. Holland and E. V. Williams Co., Inc., and subsidiaries....

Relationships

"The relationship of Richard S. Holland with Toden Holding Corporation, Avalon Hills, Inc., and Sequoia Realty Corporation has been investigated, and the facts developed to date do not indicate any impropriety on the part of Mr. Holland....

"Mr. Holland was formerly a stockholder, director and officer of Toden Holding Corporation, but he sold his stock in this corporation to E. V. Williams Co., Inc. in 1964 in a normal business transaction which had no bearing on the affairs of the State Highway Department and which did not involve any conflict of interest on Mr. Holland's part. Since then he has not been a stockholder, director or officer of Toden Holding Corporation, and no evidence has been presented or found to indicate any business dealings between Mr. Holland and that company since he sold his stock....

The business relationship between Richard S. Holland and E. V. Williams Co., Inc., and its subsidiaries has also been investigated. E. V. Williams Co., Inc., is one of the largest road-building contractors in the Norfolk-Virginia Beach area and has its offices on South Military Highway... next to the offices of A. Wrenn & Sons, Inc., of which Mr. Holland is president. A. Wrenn & Sons, Inc., is in the business of selling truck bodies, hoists, air brakes and parts, and has for years dealt with road contractors in the Norfolk-Virginia Beach area.

Business Volume

"A breakdown of the volume of business between A. Wrenn & Sons, Inc. and E. V. Williams Co., Inc., and its subsidiaries was obtained from A. Wrenn & Sons, Inc., and from E. V. Williams Co., Inc., covering the years 1962-66 inclusive.... The figures furnished by these companies do not reflect anything other than normal business activities between the two companies.... The fact that after his appointment to the Highway Commission, he continued to sell to road contractors in the normal operation of his business does not, in my opinion, constitute a conflict of interest on his part....

"Mr. Holland became a member of the State Highway Commission on February 6, 1962. The Highway Department, as early as December 1959, had conducted studies of possible routes for a new highway between Norfolk and Virginia Beach, which had been made public and which had been given news coverage in the Norfolk newspapers.... All property values in the area were undoubtedly affected by this, but there is no evidence that the value of the Overholt farm was any more affected by this than other properties in the general area.... On the other hand, there is some evidence to the effect that the property acquired by Point O View, Inc., would have been just as valuable and possibly more valuable, if the toll road had been located in such a manner as to run near but not across the Overholt property....

Toll Road

"It would seem that Mr. Holland was indiscreet and showed a lack of good judgment in becoming involved in a closely held land development corporation with officers of a large road contracting organization, for the purpose of developing and selling a tract of land which would inevitably be affected by the building of the toll road. The fact that the exact location of the toll road had not been officially determined does not really alleviate the situation, as Mr. Holland must have known that the road would pass near, if not, through the property.

"Even though this may have been common knowledge, it might well appear in the eyes of the general public that Mr. Holland may have used inside information to his advantage and to the advantage of the corporation of which he was a stockholder. Actually, the evidence does not indicate that Mr. Holland used his position, or information peculiarly available to him as a member of the State Highway Commission, for his own benefit or that of any corporation in which he had an interest."

Committee View

The three-man committee, appointed by the State Highway Commission to make the investigation Holland requested, said in its report on Shackelford's report:

"Since receipt of the report the committee has considered the matter thoroughly and as a result of such consideration is of the opinion that Mr. Holland has not been guilty of any conflict of interest or violated the conflict of interest policy previously adopted by the Highway Commission on May 25, 1962, in his relationship with Toden Holding Corporation or Point O View, Inc., nor in a reported relationship with Avalon Hills, Inc., and Sequoia Realty Corporation."

The State Highway Commission closed the case.

Charm Can Be Business-Like

This Is How...

Mrs. Barbara Lewis instructs her class on the best way to get along with fellow employees.

"People today spend fortunes on decorating their offices, and they want employees to be bright and look nice too," explained Mrs. Barbara Lewis as the basis of a charm course being offered for the first time at Princess Anne Business College.

"Most people think of models when you say 'charm course,'" said Mrs. Lewis. "But these are business girls, not professional models, and charm is taught like any other course."

She said that the main purpose is to "take an average girl and make her good looking." The course, which uses four text books, includes social and business etiquette, basic makeup, wardrobe planning and fashion.

"Most of the students are right out of high school, and they don't have proper business wardrobes," Mrs. Lewis said.

"We stress fashion but in moderation—not faddish or in poor taste. We remind them that they will probably be interviewed by persons of their parents' generation."

H. A. Gard Takes New Job

Harry A. Gard, manager of Pembroke Mall offices of Seaboard Citizens National Bank since 1965, has joined Jimbo's Junior Peanut Co. in Edenton, N.C., as sales manager. He assumed his new duties May 1.

Gard has been active here with the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, serving on the board of directors as a member of the Chamber's Retail Trade and Contact Committees, and more recently, as chairman of the State Legislative Committee.

He has also served as president of the Virginia Beach Industrial Development Council; on the board of directors and as assistant treasurer of the Pembroke Mall Shopping Center Merchants Association; and as vice president of the Tidewater Chapter of the American Institute of Banking.

He has been a frequent guest lecturer at Norfolk and Virginia Beach high schools on the subject of personal finance.

A lieutenant commander in the Coast Guard Reserve, Gard is a member of the Naval Affairs Committee of the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States.

Annual Outing Will Be May 24

The deadline for reservations for the Chamber of Commerce Annual Outing is Friday, May 19.

The Outing, to be held at Aldo Farms Wednesday, May 24, at 4:30 p.m. will include horse racing, golf driving contest, horse shows, ball and pin casting contest, live entertainment and military displays plus a picnic buffet.

Scouts to Have Leader Training

An estimated 200 Boy Scouts will attend a junior leader training Saturday and Sunday, May 20-21, at an Oceana campsite.

A scout spokesman said this is the only junior leader training program scheduled this year. Registration closed May 13.

Agency To Open May 26

Construction of Virginia Beach's franchised Volkswagen dealership is nearing completion at 1877 Laskin Rd. Target date for the formal opening of the new agency is May 26, 1967.

The dealership, which will be known as Hilltop Volkswagen, Inc., promises to be one of the most modern facilities in Virginia Beach, devoted exclusively to serving the transportation requirements of area residents.

Situated on a 5-1/4-acre lot, the new business will be housed in a 15,000 square-foot structure. The building will feature a five-car, 1,400 square-foot showroom and a workshop equipped with 12 workbenches and hydraulic hoists. Administrative offices and the customer waiting area will be located on a 4,500 square-foot mezzanine.

Heading the new dealership is veteran automobile executive Harold Heischberger of Virginia Beach. Heischberger is married and the father of three children. The family lives at 4031 North Witchduck Rd.

Hospital Accredited

Norfolk General Hospital has received extended accreditation for three years from the Joint Commission on Accreditation.

Virginia Beach General Hospital, newest hospital in the area, recently received similar accreditation.

The accrediting commission, which requires certain standards, is comprised of the American College of Physicians, the American College of Surgeons, the American Hospital Association and the American Medical Association.

Association Picks Dr. Kahn

Dr. Howard D. Kahn, of 779 Oriole Dr., was selected as Optometrist of the Year in Virginia at the annual convention of the Virginia Optometric Association held recently at Roanoke.

Mrs. Lewis said the class also stresses proper posture and carriage—another problem area with teenage girls.

Girls are also taught how to get along with their fellow employees, and how to handle problems such as gossip and friction between employees.

Classes are held in a large room with mirrors covering two walls. Included is a set of stairs on which to practice posture. Classes are deliberately kept small so girls can receive individual attention.

Tenage girls also often have poor eating habits, Mrs. Lewis pointed out. The course covers practical nutrition so that students can learn proper eating habits, and overweight girls can lose weight gradually.

As Mrs. Lewis summed up the class, "You should see the before and after pictures."

City, C of C Awarded

The City of Virginia Beach and the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce received the Ocean Hwy Award's 20-Year Award at the group's 33rd annual meeting at Wrightsville Beach, N.C., recently.

Mrs. Laura Lambe, who directs the City of Virginia Beach advertising and public relations program, received an award on behalf of the City and Chamber of Commerce in recognition of twenty consecutive years of community-level support to the Ocean Hwy Association.

The 130 quarterly prize entries judged in the $5,000 Ocean Hwy Photo Contest included a third place prize winner submitted by John B. Gravatt of Virginia Beach. Gravatt's photo of Tryon Palace at New Bern, N.C. will enter the grand prize competition at the end of the 1967 contest.

Among those attending the annual meeting from Virginia Beach were: Henry N. Callahan, Richard S. Holland, Ed Joyner, Mrs. Laura Lambe, Mr. and Mrs. George Leary, Mrs. Julia Neils, Mrs. Lucy Trafton, Warren Thode, Miss Annetta Ware, Miss Gerrie Journell, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brinkman.

'What Is So Rare as a Day in May?'

A warm day, an enthusiastic crowd, bright costumes, music—what more is needed for a May Day celebration?

Woodstock Elementary School recently had a May Day program. They were not the first or the last school to have one this spring, but this was the first such celebration the school had had in several years.

Climax of the program, after the traditional May Pole dance and other entertainment, was the crowning of the May king and queen, John McCracken and Patti McCullough.

But the program did not end there. The school had a carnival the following day.

Cyclists to Precede Carolina 500 Event

At least 50 motorcyclers are expected to compete at the North Carolina Motor Speedway June 11 in Rockingham as a prelude to the 500-mile stock car race June 18.

that day and on June 15, 16 and 17, and also at 3:30 p.m. on the 17th. The Carolina 500 starts at 1 p.m. the 18th.

The motorcycle event will be a 100-lap affair on a .35-mile course inside the one-mile super speedway that has both the high banks and the infield.

"We know at least 20 to 25 riders from New England will be coming down," coordinator John Moose of the RAM said. "That's road racing country, and we expect entries from the Midwest and, possibly, the West Coast."

The program includes two eight-lap heats and a pair of 12-lap features in the amateur class, with two 10-lap heats and a pair of 20-lap features in the expert class. A pre-race show will be at 1 p.m., and motorcycle racing begins at 2 p.m.

For the Carolina 500 stock car competition, practice begins the morning of June 14. Time trials start at 1 p.m.

Age Corrected

The Virginia Beach Jaycee Junior Tennis Tournament will be for residents of the city who are 18 years old and under, rather than another age group indicated last week. The tournament will be June 1, at Bay Harbor Club, and the entry deadline is May 27. Dr. Jan Nibbelink has applications.

Rough Finale Ends Season

The Marlins of Bayside received a jolt from two sets of Maury Commodores last week, in two defeats by the Norfolk school.

On Friday, Maury dashed the hopes the Marlins held for a tournament berth in Eastern District baseball, defeating the Marlins, 11-2. Maury's Jack Baker pitched a six-hitter and struck out 12 batters to take the win. The loss dropped the Marlins to 5-7-1 record, eliminating them from tournament play.

Also last week the Marlins defeated Churchill, 3-1, on Tuesday. The Marlins made all their runs in the seventh, with George Thomas the winning pitcher. The Maury loss ended Bayside's third baseball season.

Maury also ended Bayside's scholastic track schedule on a sour note last week, defeating them, 98 1/2-32 1/2. Maury set a school record in the Mile Relay (3:27.2) and took all but one first place for the win. After attending the Eastern District Meet at Foreman Field on Saturday, the Marlins have only the State Meet on May 19 and 20 to complete another track season.

Cox Wins Golf Title

The Cox High Golf Team clinched the 1-A Eastern Region Golf title Friday at Langley Air Force Base. The Falcons, coached by Elmer Barbour, literally ran away with the title beating the closest team by 15 strokes.

Sophomore Jimmy Ellis won the individual medalist title in a sudden death play-off. Ellis won the title with a par five on the 19th hole.

Ellis, Tom Pitkin-78, Bill Calfee-79, and Vern Burlage-91, gave the Cox team a 338 total score. Hampton, the Peninsula District Champion, finished second with a 338 total.

The State 1-A Tournament will be held at Disputanta this week-end. Cox, Hampton, and Granby will be the three teams representing the Eastern Region. The promising Cox golfers stand a good chance at State honors.

In baseball, the Falcons were defeated by Princess Anne 6-2 after 15 innings of play. Pitcher Jim Cherwa held out a valiant effort until the 15th inning. Up to this time, the teams were deadlocked at 2-2. With a man on base, Princess Anne's Bobby Lewis hit a home run over the

Getting Ready for Summer

New Now

It's paint up, fix up, spruce up time here at the Beach... the time when shop owners, hotel and apartment proprietors burn the midnight oil preparing for a new season.

Frantic last minute scurrying to meet the big opening-weekend deadline... a trick of the trade the old pros can accomplish with little more inconvenience than a before-dawn arisings... but to the newcomers to the Beach scene... a deadline they're fast approaching for the first time.

A few of the New Now enterprises already have hung out their 'Open for Business' shingles... a few others have yet to have the signs painted.

All will add still more color to what shows promise of being the most colorful season ever.

ART BY MEREDITH SEMBLER

Capt'n. John Smith's Historical Yacht Cruise, a summertime venture of hotel man Scott Sterling, will be launched on its first season this month.

The 53-foot Cabin Cruiser is scheduled to sail four times a day from its Laskin Road dock into the Broad Bay area, providing tourists with a water view of the great waterfront homes as well as the area's historical points of interest.

Shop to kick the summer season... in a location that provides its owner, Liz Fentress, with immediate built-in charm.

continued, and opening week sooner than planned, customers at Liz's Serendipity will rub elbows with Little Theater-goers. The shop located in Eden Alley, the quaint walk-in courtyard off 17th Street near Atlantic Avenue.

Serendipity shelves are aglow with an assortment of the unusual, from toys to ankle baubles... all things Mrs. Fentress said "just fell out of the boxes and jumped into place."

Serendipity.

How Sweet A Project

Women's Editor

Just when I think the world has gone to pot, along come strong signs that indicate that in today's psychedelic-minded society, some things, thank heaven, retain their own identifiable and easy to recognize characteristics.

Take a big bouquet of peonies, for instance. No possible amount of light and color manipulation could possibly improve their full-blown beauty. And, so far as I know, no one has tampered with their fragrance or dimensions. Particularly no one at Bayville Farms.

For years, some 25 to be exact, the local dairy has cultivated both their peonies and their customers with a massive distribution of peonies which their milk men deliver to customers on their routes. Hospitals and nursing homes also inherit annual bouquets.

Just how much good will is created by the peony program I hesitate to estimate. I just know that I, as a customer, have come to anticipate my pretty peonies with as much anxiety and pleasure as I do the two precious clumps of lily-of-the-valley I've coaxed into bloom under a clumsy fig tree. (I'm told they shouldn't bloom under those conditions, but they do.)

So it's a marvel.

So to me are the milk men to whom fall the additional work the peonies entail. How divine that a union hasn't swooped down on them with rules and regulations that would turn sour the whole sweet-smelling Bayville project.

Speaking for Bayville manager A. M. MacKay, his assistant said that, on the contrary, the drivers enjoy the opportunity of delivering the peonies to their customers.

"Their hours are such that most of the customers don't even know the names of the drivers, much less what they look like, but the letters they write in thanking the drivers really make the men happy.

"Every year we get so many letters of appreciation. One commander and his wife write annually.

"We try to get the flowers out around Mother's Day. It takes about a week or 10 days to deliver them all.

"Yes, I'm sure the drivers get as much satisfaction out of it as the customers do.

"We plan to keep Bayville blooming for a long time to come."

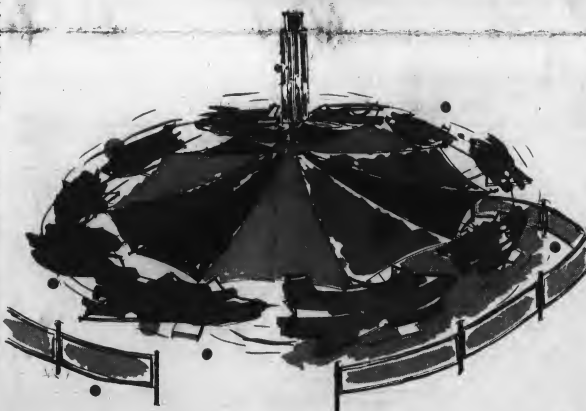

PEABODY'S WAREHOUSE

A large, spanking white building... its expanse of exterior wall broken up by large black line drawings of a Victorian-looking scoundrel... an after-dark brainchild of three enterprising young men who plan to open up shop for the first time May 19.

Peabody's Warehouse, a discotheque in an old automobile showroom at the corner of 21st and Pacific, was, last week, a hodge-podge of church pews, buckets of paint and 8,000 square feet of empty floor space.

This week owners Ed Ruffin, Michael Standing and Nabil Kassir hope to see the pews being sat in, the paint on all the walls and ceilings and the second floor's 8,000 square feet filled to capacity.

Washington Cathedral Picnic Tour

Alanton in Bloom Today

Virginia Beach has grown so rapidly that there is now an old area... and that old area is having an old-fashioned picnic garden tour.

Today, from 10:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., the public is invited to browse among the gardens in Old Alanton, where, in each garden, tables will be arranged so visitors may unpack their picnic baskets, spread the cloth and enjoy the beauty of countryside. At each site, iced tea will be served by the hostess.

This is the third consecutive year the Alanton gardens have been opened to the public, and the third year that area members of the National Cathedral Association have sent the tour proceeds to the Washington Cathedral to help build the great Gothic Cathedral in the District of Columbia. The association is made up of persons throughout the country interested in the national project.

The immediate goal of the National Cathedral Association in Southern Virginia is a memorial at the Cathedral in honor of the Rev. Robert Hunt who conducted the service at the cross at Cape Henry in April, 1607, the Anglican clergyman who built and served the first church at Jamestown from 1607 until his death a year later.

Admission to the garden tour is a contribution to the Cathedral.

The entrance to Alanton is on Route 615, one half mile north of Virginia Beach Hospital. Red arrows will mark the way from the Alanton entrance to the gardens.

Garden of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Agelasto Jr. 1500 McCullough Lane

This garden of five acres is at the south end of the larger of two islands in Alanton, and is about 20 years old. It commands beautiful views of the length of Linkhorn Bay. It contains a large collection of camellias and other shrubs, including a rhododendron which will be in bloom, as will climbing roses.

Garden of Mr. and Mrs. Saxon Hold Jr. 1418 Woodhouse Road

This garden was planned some 15 years ago and designed with great care. There are beautiful sweeps of lawn and wide borders of azaleas and shrubs. It has very fine specimens of trees, especially native cedar and pine. This garden goes down to the shore of a cove of Linkhorn Bay and to a cool and inviting boat dock.

Hospital Receives Art Gift From Cavalier Juniors

Cavalier Junior Women's Club last week presented a painting by area artist Ruth Peerless to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. Hospital administrator Earl Willis accepted the gift from club members Mrs. William D. Jones, Mrs. Asa B. Camp and Mrs. Robert McCall.

Ruth Laakso of the Studio Gallery here where the painting was purchased, assisted the women in their choice of appropriate art for the hospital. The chosen work, Mrs. Laakso said, was selected by the women for its sunny, yellow tones. She described the painting as a "happy" one.

Kempville Garden Clubbers celebrated the club's 13th birthday at a recent party and meeting in the home of Mrs. H. F. Tyler on Bowman Road. Mrs. Malcolm Todd spoke on basic principle of arrangements.

Princess Anne Business and Professional Women's Club of Virginia Beach will hear William J. Fannery, executive vice president of Norfolk Federal Savings and Loan Assn.,

A grooming new rocket for Seaside Amusement Park... a flying airplane with 10 cars to carry 20 small-sized passengers... due to arrive shortly after the first of June.

And there'll be a new, lower ceiling in the ballroom... for better acoustics, for a more intimate 1967 atmosphere.

New also will be a machine to make Slushies, the new icy in drink.

Not new since she's entering her 25th season, will be part manager Eleanor M. Duquet, who'll unlatch the park gates May 26.

speak on Reflections on the Mortgage Money Crisis at their May meeting.

The club recently donated $24 toward convention expenses for Princess Anne High School's delegate to the Future Business Leaders of America convention. The group also appointed a committee to select a girl student from First Colonial High School for the BPW's annual $200 scholarship award.

Marion Crosby Garden Clubbers, at their recent luncheon-meeting in the home of Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher in Chesapeake Colony, appointed Mrs. Malcolm H. Todd Jr. as decorator for their Christmas program. The house will be opened to the public, with proceeds earmarked for charity. Mrs. M. H. Keller will be co-chairman. The Tidewater District, Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs presented the Crosby Club first prize for planting the largest number of dogwood trees.

The Woman's Club of Chesapeake Beach held its final meeting of the year Tuesday at the Ocean Heath. A luncheon and fashion show followed the meeting.

The Week That Was

The yachting officers, wearing their club blazers, rallied 'round the flag after their installation last week at the Bay Harbor

A Conference....

The Most Rev. John J. Russell, Bishop of Richmond, joined members of the Catholic Daughters of America over the weekend, to speak with them and to pray with them.

Bishop Russell was guest speaker at the CDA banquet Saturday night, a highlight of the group's three-day conference in the Cavalier Hotel.

He was also chief celebrant at the Conference Mass held in the hotel ballroom Sunday morning, prior to the conference's closing.

Bishop Russell's talk Saturday night was on the necessity of changes in the church in keeping with the trend of today's suburban living. Bishop Russell elaborated on the church in today's world and the changes taking place, though not deviating from the fundamental structure of the church.

Changes in the church were further explored at a two-part panel, a feature of Saturday's day-long discussions. The panel, moderated by the Rev. John J. Foley, had as its general subject, The Church in the Modern World. Edmund Kollar, the Rev. Francis Quinn, and the Rev. John A. O'Connell.

Some 150 delegates from courts throughout the state attended the conference. Court Stella Maris No. 1881 (Virginia Beach) was host Court.

Other business included the presentation of achievement awards. Courts honored were Stella Maris, Norfolk, and Court Kavanaugh (Alexandria).

At the Mass Sunday, the Junior Catholic Daughters (Court St. Margaret Mary) were honor guard for Bishop Russell.

Mrs. Robert D. Jones (seated) of Chantilly, state regent with (from left) Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, vice state regent; Mrs. Charles D. Warren, local grand regent; and Mrs. Henry T. Brawley, general chairman of the conference.

Sun Review

'Streetcar' Moves Along

Tennessee Williams' powerful drama, "A Streetcar Named Desire," now playing at Wedgewood Dinner Theatre in Town, is generally accepted as a modern day theatrical classic. It is a story of life, with all the realistic nerve endings bared.

In the case of "Streetcar," that experience of realism may repulse some, please many others and provoke clear thinking in still others.

The Wedgewood production is a fine one overall with but one major exception.

Director Frank Staroba paces his cast nicely through a magnificent French Quarter of New Orleans set, designed by Virginia Beach native, Betty Oliver. Special artwork on a backdrop denoting the austerity of the Quarter is provided by Princess Anne High School student Mike Jones, already well on his way to becoming a noted artist.

Staroba keeps the rises and falls in emotional action and comedy relief from bogging down and the length is not a deterrent.

The action revolves around Blanche DuBois, ex-school-teacher, ex-wealthy landowner and ex-realistic human being. Having experienced a tragic marriage, loss of all wealth and property so important to her Mississippi upbringing, she sinks deeper and deeper into degradation.

As a last resort she comes to her younger sister, Stella, who is married to the sometimes violent, sometimes horribly cruel and always honestly realistic in an animalistic manner, Stanley Kowalski.

The play is the story of her eventual and inevitable collapse and the story of those who helped her and who helped her collapse.

Arden Staroba captures the role of Blanche to perfection. It is a complex role demanding many different moods. All are treated with care and beauty by Mrs. Staroba.

The less-developed role of Stella is handled with ease by Claudine Iddings. The conflict of her inner suffering for her sister and her desire to please her husband are placed in proper perspective by Mrs. Iddings.

She also treats the more earthy aspects of the role with beautiful care.

Civic Center's Coming Events

Coming events at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center will be led off by a military ball Friday night from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

The USS Vulcan will present a dinner dance, closed to the public, on Wednesday and Thursday, May 24 and 25, from 7 p.m. until 1 a.m.

The Union Kempsville High School junior/senior prom will be held at the Dome Friday, May 26, from 8-12 p.m.

But we must quarrel with the achievement. The characterization becomes almost a caricature at times, evoking nervous laughter from the audience where laughter is not intended. The characterization is too hard and brutal. We find it difficult to imagine that anyone that disgusting could find a wife like Stella, be a salesman or even exist in an urban society today. What Iddings has done with the role is good, but it needs toning down and the addition of a shade of human finesse.

The Wedgewood production can do more than add to the "Streetcar" legend, but it will, indeed, do that. It is a fine evening in the theatre, and Paul Iddings' controversial portrayal can do no more than enhance the legend even more.

Members and guests raised the flag at Bay Harbor Yacht Club last week...an annual event that, weather notwithstanding, launches the season for the skippers.

Mrs. Robert D. Jones (seated) of Chantilly, state regent with (from left) Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, vice state regent; Mrs. Charles D. Warren, local grand regent; and Mrs. Henry T. Brawley, general chairman of the conference.

The Most Rev. John J. Russell, Bishop of Richmond, joined members of the Catholic Daughters of America over the weekend, to speak with them and to pray with them.

Bishop Russell was guest speaker at the CDA banquet Saturday night, a highlight of the group's three-day conference in the Cavalier Hotel.

He was also chief celebrant at the Conference Mass held in the hotel ballroom Sunday morning, prior to the conference's closing.

Bishop Russell's talk Saturday night was on the necessity of changes in the church in keeping with the trend of today's suburbia living. Bishop Russell elaborated on the church in today's world and the changes taking place, though not deviating from the fundamental structure of the church.

Changes in the church were further explored at a two-part panel, a feature of Saturday's day-long discussions. The panel, moderated by the Rev. John J. Foley, had as its general subject, "The Church in the Modern World." Edmund Kollar, the Rev. Francis Quinn, and the Rev. John A. O'Connell.

Some 150 delegates from courts throughout the state attended the conference. Court Stella Maris No. 1881 (Virginia Beach) was host Court.

Other business included the presentation of achievement awards. Courts honored were Stella Maris, Norfolk, and Court Kavanaugh (Alexandria).

At the Mass Sunday, the Junior Catholic Daughters (Court St. Margaret Mary) were honor guard for Bishop Russell.

At Wedgewood

Sun Review

'Streetcar' Moves Along

Tennessee Williams' powerful drama, "A Streetcar Named Desire", now playing at Wedgewood Dinner Theatre in Toano, is generally accepted as a modern day theatrical classic. It is a story of life, with all the realistic nerve endings bared.

In the case of "Streetcar", that experience of realism may repulse some, please many others and provoke clear thinking in still others.

The Wedgewood production is a fine one overall with but one major exception.

Director Frank Staroba paces his cast nicely through a magnificent French Quarter of New Orleans set, designed by Virginia Beach native, Betty Oliver. Special artwork on a backdrop denoting the austerity of the Quarter is provided by Princess Anne High School student Mike Jones, already well on his way to becoming a noted artist.

Staroba keeps the rises and falls in emotional action and comedy relief from bogging down and the length is not a deterrent.

The action revolves around Blanche DuBois, ex-school-teacher, ex-wealthy landowner and ex-realistic human being. Having experienced a tragic marriage, loss of all wealth and property so important to her Mississippi upbringing, she sinks deeper and deeper into degradation.

As a last resort she comes to her younger sister, Stella, who is married to the sometimes violent, sometimes horribly cruel and always honestly realistic in an animalistic manner, Stanley Kowalski.

The play is the story of her eventual and inevitable collapse and the story of those who helped her and who helped her collapse.

Arden Staroba captures the role of Blanche to perfection. It is a complex role demanding many different moods. All are treated with care and beauty by Mrs. Staroba.

The less-developed role of Stella is handled with ease by Claudine Iddings. The conflict of her inner suffering for her sister and her desire to please her husband are placed in proper perspective by Mrs. Iddings.

She also treats the more earthy aspects of the role with beautiful care.

SCA Promotes Patriotism At a Variety of Programs

An effort to promote patriotism at Cox High School involved daily programs for the students under the sponsorship of the Student Co-operative Association.

"No one person was in charge," said Alex Newton, SCA president, "and it wasn't any one person's idea. It was a group thing."

According to Newton, SCA members wanted to inspire patriotism in all the students.

Daily flag raising programs were held in front of the school with the singing of the national anthem. One day Naval officers showed the students a film on Vietnam. A panel discussion by teachers and pupils on the subject "Is Patriotism Dead?" was another program.

One day was designated as "color day" when students were encouraged to wear clothing in red, white or blue. The Virginia Beach Singout group also performed.

Stop Before You Reach

Ever wake up, or at least about half awake, in the night with a splitting headache? Or a pain in the tummy? And stumble into the bathroom and reach for a bottle in the medicine cabinet. And gulp down a pill or two, or a spoonful of medicine?

Sure. All of us have. And we are risking serious trouble in taking medicine carelessly.

The medicine was prescribed by your physician, and he included specific orders for size and frequency of dose and how to take it. The American Medical Association reminds that there is a good, sound reason for these orders, and they're meant to be followed.

A few simple rules for taking medicine can help to avoid an accident that may make your minor discomfort a lot worse.

* Never take medicine in the dark. Be certain you can see the bottle or pill box, to make certain it's the right one.

* Read the directions carefully before taking. Those directions are there because they're needed.

* Don't increase the dosage or take more often than directed without checking with your doctor.

* If the label says "Shake well before using," it means what it says. Shake it.

* Don't take medicine prescribed for someone else. Just because it helped your husband's cough doesn't mean it's right for you.

* Keep medicine out of reach of children. The small child who is rushed to the hospital after eating a whole bottle of sugar-coated tablets is an all too common occurrence.

Home Loans Go; Questions Answered

The cut-off date for the World War II GI Home Loan program is July 25, 1967, William J. Powers, Manager of the Roanoke Veterans Administration Regional Office, said today.

That date is the absolute deadline for applications for VA guaranteed or insured GI Home Loans for veterans of World War II.

Powers said veterans of the Korean Conflict and for the Viet Nam era veterans are not affected by the W W II cut-off date. For Korean Conflict veterans, the absolute deadline is January 31, 1975.

For post Korean Conflict veterans the loan deadline formula is the same as the one for previous programs; 10 years after the date of discharge, plus one year for each three months active duty, but not in excess of 20 years from date of last discharge.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Below are authoritative answers by the Veterans Administration to some of the many current questions from former servicemen and their families. Further information on veterans benefits may be obtained at any VA office.

Q. I am considering selling the home I purchased with a G. I. home loan in 1962. Will permission from the Veterans Administration be required?

A. No. The only restriction that the VA places on you in buying a home with a G. I. mortgage is that the home be acquired with the definite intention that you live in it. If later circumstances are such that you cannot continue to use the property as your home, you are free to rent or sell the property as you please without permission. Be sure to get a release of liability.

Q. The Veterans Administration has encouraged me to convert my $10,000 National Service Life Insurance term policy to a permanent plan. Will you recommend the plan I should take?

A. Contact Representatives for the VA do not assume the role of insurance counselors.

Peace Officers Commemorated

Peace officers who were killed or disabled in the line of duty were recognized Monday on Peace Officers Memorial Day, proclaimed locally by Mayor Frank Dusch in connection with the national recognition day.

Peace Officers Memorial Day was permanently set by Congress in 1962 and is dedicated "to the memory of the many courageous federal, state and municipal peace officers who have been disabled in the line of duty. Peace Officers Memorial Day is intended to promote and increase public respect for the peace officers by reminding the public of the many sacrifices made by peace officers in the defense and preservation of lives and property."

The Memorial Day is formally recognized in 22 states, including Virginia, and in many cities.

They have the knowledge and training to completely explain the various plans available and furnish you with information necessary to enable you to make an informed decision.

Q. I plan to travel extensively next summer and will not have a permanent address where there is someone to take care of my VA compensation check. What can I do about it?

A. The VA will send your check direct to your bank for deposit if you submit a VA change of address form or a letter over your signature. Also, you will need to obtain from the VA two Power of Attorney forms, one to give your bank as the right to receive and deposit the checks to your account, and the other to be retained by you.

Cameras Focus on Women Today

Next time you drop a cartridge of film in your camera, snap the back shut and shoot a picture all in a matter of seconds, give a thought to the pioneer camera hobblists.

These camera buffs late in the 19th century had to have the patience of Job, the stamina of an ox and maybe a little bit of masochist instinct, too. And any woman who got involved in photography was regarded with awe, apprehension and some suspicion.

Next to getting a hand caught in the washing machine gear or being trampled by a runaway horse, one of the most painful experiences for everyone at the turn of the century was the family portrait.

It was almost always a massive project for the whole family. The portrait required a good half day's set up time, left the living room in shambles, the family with stiff necks and all concerned with a deep distaste for photography. And, the house reeked of magnesium flash powder for days.

Following the shooting, dad would retire to the pantry to begin the long process of developing, leaving another mess for mother to contend with.

Photography on the open road was just about as bad. After the camera and developing equipment was loaded in the family Hupmobile, there was little room left for luggage. "Let's pull off the road here so I can get this shot!" really meant "Do you and the children have something you want to do for the next few hours? I have to set up."

What brought photography from a pastime for the adventurous only to a consuming interest for many was the advent of the box camera.

These first cumbersome devices featured a pinhole for a lens and still used fragile photographic plates, rather than roll film, requiring the user to tote a supply for several shots in an accessory bag.

It wasn't until the 1920's that roll film was introduced literally keeping film supply within the camera and producing several photographs before a new roll had to be loaded.

Mass film processing was undertaken by professional developing firms and druggists became the middle men, serving as drop off points for film.

However, women still were not wooed by this now booming hobby. Box cameras were large bulky units, often carried in awkward leather bags. Threading film was as much like toying with an unruly coiled spring and the double exposure was all too common.

Color film and the 35mm miniature camera, loaded with gadgets, entered the market in the 1930's. To get good pictures with these cameras required a thorough study of light, lens settings, shutter speeds and an instruction manual conceived for the photo buff. By the time the shutterbug was ready to shoot, his subject's rose petal smile had turned into a pasty grin.

Photography got its first boost in years in 1964 with the advent of the instant load cartridge—both reels in one plastic container. This device eliminated film threading and coupled with a fixed focus camera, brought true simplicity to photography—no gadgets, confusing settings or double exposures.

A.U.W. To Meet

The Virginia Beach Branch of the American Assn. of University Women will meet at Eastern Shore Chapel, on May 24 at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will be a very important business meeting. The topic of study for the next two years will be chosen, Mrs. Joseph Sadler will report on the recent state convention, and final plans will be made for the covered dish supper to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Ray Shield in June.

The state convention of the American Assn. of University Women will be held at Virginia Beach next April. Mrs. James G. Kellam has been named general chairman for the convention. Additional chairmen will be named at the meeting.

The four topics of study under consideration for the next two years will be discussed by Mrs. F. Ray Shield, Mrs. Joseph B. Sadler, Mrs. E. Joseph Armbruster and Mrs. C. Bernard Brown.

Sun Short

Agriculture, tourism, commerce, military bases, some light industry and construction are main aspects of the economy of Virginia Beach.

Navy Plans

The U. S. Navy will have a "secret briefing" on Monday, May 22, for scientists attending a meeting on advanced marine vehicles at the Golden Triangle in Norfolk.

The three-day meeting is sponsored by the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics and the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers.

It Won't Be Long Now

There is no traffic on it yet, but on the left is the northbound lane of an Interstate 64 section being built in Virginia Beach generally west of Kempsville. In the background is a new overpass for Indian road, and the structure could be considered a gateway to Virginia Beach since it is practically at the Chesapeake city line. Interstate 64 is parallel and east of Military Highway in Virginia Beach and will tie in with the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

you can't kill a Peugeot

And who would want to?

We've been proving it ever since 1889. This year, for example, Peugeot won the East African Safari Rally, the roughest endurance test ever devised by man for automobile. Out of ninety cars to enter, only nine finished. (No wonder American Rodding Magazine calls Peugeot the world's toughest car!)

Fun? Peugeot practically invented it. This car handles effortlessly like the expensive sports jobs. Peugeot too, has rack and pinion steering. The most positive of all steering units. And, just for fun, think about the 25 miles per gallon you'll get, with or without automatic transmission.

TEAMWORK is our Strength ... and the secret of our progress

Webster defines teamwork as "... the work of a team with reference to coordination of effort and to collective efficiency."

No one person, no two persons, no three persons can do the job of properly administering progressive local government. It takes a TEAM... a team of men with experience who have PROVEN their devotion to progress and to serving the people.

It takes a TEAM that has had the support of the people, business and labor.

It takes a TEAM that has the know-how to get things done.

It takes a TEAM of men who can bring to bear invaluable contacts and influence throughout the state and nation on behalf of the City of Virginia Beach.

It takes a TEAM that is dedicated to the fulfillment of PROGRESS THROUGH TEAMWORK.

It takes a team like the ADMINISTRATION TEAM who have proven that they "Can do."

STAY WITH THE MEN THAT WILL WORK TOGETHER AS A TEAM. (Those who pull away from the team and who now pull against the team surely cannot promise you the teamwork that is so vital for continued progress.)

It takes an efficient, cooperative and completely dedicated team, responsive to the needs of the people. With the experienced leadership of the Administration Team which has served Virginia Beach so well in the past to provide guidance and direction, together with the new blood in the party to meet new challenges, and with YOUR support, the Administration Team will continue to bring progress to Virginia Beach.

A Parade Is A Parade...

It was parade day along the oceanfront boardwalk here, and an estimated 20,000 turned out for the Armed Forces Day event, one of several which traditionally launches the tourist season for oceanfront and bayfront areas of the city. Thousands more visited military bases having open houses.

The Sun's camera went to the parade, as well as the formal military ball the night before (see front of second section), for those who didn't make the scene.

When the parade ended, judges picked these winners:

Khediye Temple Shriners, best overall unit; Kellam High, best civilian band; Princess Anne High, runner-up band; Tidewater Association of Home Builders, best civilian float; Virginia Beach Jaycees, runner-up float; NAS Oceana, best military float; Ft. Boat Ramps a Possibility As Developer Gives Land

BY CAROLYN McALLEN

A gift of 10 acres of land on Long Creek to the city government may open the way for new public boat ramps in the Lynnhaven Bay area.

The land includes 1300 feet fronting on Long Creek north of Bay Island and near Seashore State Park. David I. Levine, land developer, gave the land deed to the city at this week's City Council meeting.

Council passed a resolution thanking Levine.

City Manager Russell Hatchett, who described Levine as a "public-spirited gentleman", said the land would be used for recreational purposes.

Harold Whitehurst, city recreation director, said he had not seen the land personally,

Mothers Organize For Tots

Mothers in the Diamond Springs-Gardenwood Park area have established a year-around Block Mothers Program to aid in protecting children from strangers.

The program, sponsored by the civic league in that area and endorsed by the police department, is similar to child-protection programs started earlier in the Arrowhead and Malibu areas.

Mothers in the Diamond Springs and Gardenwood Park subdivisions are meeting this Thursday to see a film and hear lectures by members of the police juvenile bureau, the Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Fire Department and the Animal Control Bureau.

Police consider the Block Mothers idea a successful deterrent to possible child molesters.

but thinks it has good possibilities for additional boat ramps "if the water is deep enough there." He said no definite plans have been made.

The Council approved on first reading a $1 million non-referendum bond issue to finance the building of new jetties at Rudee Inlet to eventually develop a sports fishing center, and to make some highway improvements.

City Council can issue $1 million in general obligation bonds annually without a referendum (plus $2 million in utility bonds), and Roger Scott, assistant city manager, said the city "probably" will sell bonds in a month or two.

The Council took under advisement a protest by Wilson Chaplin, owner of Trailer Park Homes, that trailer park owners are "wrongly taxed." Chaplin is asking that operators be taxed on the basis of gross income, rather than by trailer spaces. Clarence Henry, who operates Virginia Beach Trailer Village, also asked for tax "relief."

Hatchett said the Dredge Commission report on the Rudee Inlet - Back Bay Canal was not "complete enough to make a recommendation at this time." Action was deferred until the next Council meeting.

A resolution was passed praising Auxiliary Police Sgt. Norman Korel for "his heroic and effective action as a policeman" in subduing a man who was threatening Patrolman L. L. Thompson with a pistol on the evening of March 7.

Hatchett reported he is still negotiating with VEPCO on the purchase of their recently-vacated building at 18th Street and Arctic Avenue as a new home for the 2nd Police Precinct.

In other action the Council appropriated $6,300 as the City's share for Southeastern Tidewater Opportunity Program.

* Authorized the Navy to put a radio tower on the now under-construction Bayside Police Precinct building, since Navy shore patrolmen work closely with city policemen.

* Appropriated $20,000 for hospitalization for indigent persons for the remainder of the fiscal year. (The state will reimburse the City half of what is spent.)

* Passed an ordinance on first reading to allow play on pool tables, shuffleboards and pinball machines up to 1 a.m., to coincide with on-premises sale of beer and wine during Daylight Saving Time.

* Took final action on approving the city's $28 million fiscal budget which is effective July 1.

* Approved on second reading an increase in the consumers' Utility Tax from 10 to 15 percent, effective July 1. (Limits on the tax are being considered.)

* Voted again to sell $1 million in sewer and water bonds. The sale had been approved April 24, but the minutes of the Council meeting were not clear.

* Approved hiring a new probation officer at a salary of $5,364 a year, half of which will be paid by the state.

* Appropriated $1,250 to operate rubber-tired trains on the Boardwalk this summer.

Highway Deaths Over 1966 Level

By the time this week began, city police had counted up 17 traffic deaths in 13 fatal accidents on Virginia Beach's highways marking a sharp rise over eight fatalities by the same time in 1966.

Lt. C. R. Palley, who heads the police traffic bureau, said one triple-fatality and two double-fatality accidents figured in the death rise, and most of the deaths were on "back roads" in rural parts of the city.

In all but two cases, he said, the weather was dry and road traffic was light. Alcohol was a contributing factor in some of the accidents, he added.

Only two of the fatal accidents occurred on Virginia Beach Boulevard, and two others occurred on Shore Drive.

While there were an unusually high number of pedestrian deaths in the city last year, only one had been reported for 1967 by the start of this week.

Island Landing?

The Navy's A-6A Intruder may be a versatile craft, but this is too much to believe. Lt. Cmdr. Robert W. Morgan of Attack Squadron 35, based at NAS

Oceana, snapped the photo while the squadron was returning to the USS Enterprise from a recent bombing mission over North Vietnam. Flying the Intruder which appears to be perched on the Enterprise's island was Cmdr. Glenn E. Kollman, executive officer of the Oceana-based squadron.

Toll Road May Speed Growth

The opening of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway at the end of this year might open the door to another round of fast suburban growth in Virginia Beach, according to Sidney S. Kellam.

Speaking recently at the final pre-summer luncheon of the Virginia Beach Board of Realtors, Kellam said he does not know what will take place when the toll road opens.

"But if people can get to Norfolk quicker, they would rather live out here," he added, considering it worth $2.50 in tolls a week.

He told about 40 persons at the luncheon that realtors and their salesmen have an opportunity to be "ambassadors for the city" because they are the first to make a good, or bad impression on an estimated 1,000 people coming into Virginia Beach each month.

Looking ahead, he said that if the city government's plans for Rudee Inlet work out, Virginia Beach eventually will have "the greatest small boat harbor on the East Coast." He also reminded his listeners that agriculture is the largest industry in the city, with tourism second.

Kellam said Virginia Beach is so spread out that many people do not know what is going on outside their own neighborhoods, and "would be amazed" if they rode around and looked at the entire city.

Representing the People

It was only a matter of time in the judicial process before the U. S. Supreme Court would pass on the Virginia Beach councilmanic system.

And when it did this week, the Court's approval of the 7-4 plan underscored the wisdom of City Council in sticking by its 1965 decision to protect a minority (in this case rural voters) with due regard for the majority in the suburbs.

The plan at the outset was designed to meet, as much as possible, the earlier "one-man, one-vote" edict from the Supreme Court, and to keep one or two populous boroughs in Virginia Beach from making decisions harmful to the other boroughs. The people in each have easy access to a councilman.

Our city is one of the most diverse created in modern times, with agriculture, tourism, suburban living and a firm military presence providing a delicate mixture.

Such a diverse community requires something unusual in the way of local representation, if it is to remain independent and have the strength to play its predicted role in the future.

It is conceivable the representation system which the city's political leaders and legal counsel wrought from Irons of the past, after much public debate, will serve as a model for representation in Virginia and other states. A Supreme Court justice called it "valuable" in that respect.

While the 18-month debate over the merits (or weaknesses) of our city's new councilmanic system caused confusion at times, its strong point remained clear from the start for those who viewed it objectively in a legal and representative framework.

This was the election of all councilmen by voters throughout the city, after each candidate had chosen to seek either a borough - resident or city - resident seat. The result was an "at-large" election.

We do not contend the system under which today's 11 councilmen are serving is perfect. But it does provide a fixed method for governing our city for a reasonable period of time to eliminate chaos. It is a necessary fundamental for government.

Right now, the time runs to the next scheduled City Council election on 1970. If the system shows weak spots between now and then, we can consider improvement.

Meeting the Challenge

A library, much like a high school, or church, is a building block for the future and an essential part of community life—whether an educational, business, professional or other community.

Virginia Beach is fortunate in having within its borders, next to neighboring Norfolk, the present campus of Virginia Wesleyan College. And our city will be doubly fortunate when the college opens its proposed new library in two years.

Its completion hinges on the outcome of a $1 million fund

Men and Memories

Armed Forces Day is past, and Memorial Day is coming next Tuesday.

While there are commercial aspects to just about every holiday these days, we should all pause to ponder the meaning of each.

Our armed forces today are engaged in a battle which tests

We are confident the people of Virginia Beach, and thinking persons in the rest of the area the college serves, will meet the new challenge.

The library will complement Virginia Beach's expanding public library system (a new branch opening soon north of Aragona.)

the nation's strength of purpose and devotion to principles. Some of our friends and neighbors, much to our grief, are dying on the battlefield.

When Memorial Day comes, let us remember them and others who went before, whether in battle gear or in the ever-changing fabric of life and death at home.

'Good Planting'

The Virginia Beach Beautification Commission, less than two years old, has in its infancy helped change the roadways of our city, helped soften the hardness of business places with trees, shrubbery and flowers. It grew up fast, just as Virginia Beach is growing into a thriving independent city.

To the businessmen and others who have heeded the call for beauty from the commission and our city fathers, we say: "Thanks."

To those who have yet to heed the call: "Good planting."

Winning Titles

As the city's high schools prepare for graduation, they can look back on athletic as well as academic achievements. Princess Anne High won the Eastern District baseball crown—a tribute to Coach Norman Fields and the community league, little league and pony league programs which discover and develop future high school stars.

Cox High's golf team moved through two titles to state competition and came in third—a tribute to the city's fine golf courses.

Sign of Love

Dear Editor:

One of the most convincing signs of parental love for offspring is found in a parent's willingness to chasten the child when needed. The word chasten is used because it means, "to reform or refine."

This is never an easy task for a loving parent to perform. It is not easy to punish, with a fountain of love in one's heart. The only effective way is to carry through the painful operation, then end it with a fitting demonstration of true parental love. Never, however, convey the idea that the heavy hand of chastisement isn't loaded with determination to establish law and order.

Our governmental criminal code must adopt this plan of corrective measures if it ever hopes to curb the horrible "crime wave."

Beautification Ideas

Dear Editor:

Ideas recommended for the beautification and betterment of the Beach:

Drinking fountains, and shower accommodations on the beach proper (Clearwater, Fla. has both of these as well as most other resorts.)

In the spring and fall, the beach should be cleaned every day if one is to anticipate outsiders, such as Canadians, to make it attractive for them. A machine to do this work is used in other seaside resorts.

Insist on all cans to have tops at all times. Don't be weakened, but be insistent. This will greatly help keep the Beach clean of litter. Now when the wind blows and the cans have no tops, litter is spread all over.

Have a crew to arrest the litter bugs, and see they are punished. Unless this is done, a certain element is not going to pay any attention to all the signs, posters that have been put up. In my estimation, it is just a waste of time.

Insist on the owners of all vacant properties that they must keep their land free of litter. If necessary, have a law passed to enforce this.

To me as a daily walker—summer, winter, spring, and fall—these matters are of importance, and I have heard people from time to time talk about the conditions on the beach. In closing, may I say that more local people from all the developments in this area will come to the beach than will ever patronize all the parks, etc., that are now contemplated.

J. Malcolm Firth

Dogs on Beach

Dear Editor:

To the Council of the City of Virginia Beach I say, "Wow and gee thanks." If they didn't have to go to school, just think, the north end surfers will now be able to surf all winter (September 10-May 15) without fear of arrest. There's nothing like the winter heavies at tropical Virginia Beach!

And who wants summer surfing anyway when one can always watch the groovy-keen dog fights on the beach. Last summer the dog action was constant, which is more than I can say of the waves.

Perhaps Council can make this the year of enforcement and rid the beach of the canine multitudes. Last summer the one dog catcher provided couldn't begin to handle one block of north end beach. And the police officers who apprehended the criminals of the fiberglass couldn't do anything about the dogs. Who's guilty, the dogs or the owners?

Means of enforcement should be provided with the passage of a law. This might bring more respect for all law. It's a poor law that is not or can not be enforced.

Campaign Going Positive?

Pollticking for the July 11 Democratic primary at Sun prestime seemed to be taking on a more positive tone, but it was not clear whether it would last.

State Sen. William P. Kellam proposed studying the feasibility of a rapid-transit system between Norfolk and the Virginia Beach oceanfront, and a longer-range system, between Washington, D. C., and Virginia Beach.

Caton denied both charges, saying the council record shows he did not vote on the rezoning in question, and that he disclosed his interest at the time.

He said he sold property to the state at a profit of $9,010 one and a half years after its purchase, but repeated that he "never profited from information available to me by virtue of the office I have held or have I ever profited from business conducted with the city, state or federal government."

Richard R. Absalom, United man for clerk of court against incumbent John V. Pentress, of the Administration, said City Council minutes should be recorded by a court stenographer "or by mechanical means" to prevent human error.

B. R. Middleton, United candidate for the House of Delegates with Joseph Gavriss, spoke out for "excellence in education" after press reports that Norfolk State College might lose accreditation.

L. Charles Burlage, Administration candidate for the House with Kenneth N. Whitehurst Jr., advocated giving the State Department of Weights and Measures the responsibility of verifying the accuracy of electrical meters for homeowners and businesses.

It was still Kellam's proposal for mass-transit studies which drew the most attention from the standpoint of the city's future.

Kellam said the Administration Team has asked City Council and City Manager W. Russell Hatchett to seek federal grants for the mass-transit proposals.

Sun Report

City, Area Future Under Scrutiny

The Virginia Metropolitan Areas Study Commission will hold a public hearing at the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel at 10 a.m. on June 6. The commission is searching for ideas on how to effectively solve metropolitan problems.

This Sun Report offers quoted excerpts from an interim report (Metropolitan Virginia 1967: A Brief Assessment) recently released by the commission which Dr. T. Marshall Hahn Jr. heads.

'Slow and Uncertain'

"A review indicates local government in Virginia's metropolitan areas is good, if not outstanding. It is honest, efficient within present limitations, and administered by dedicated, sincere men and women. However, it should be recognized that no matter how capable and unselfish are local leaders, the solution of Twentieth Century urban problems is made increasingly difficult by the fragmentation of local responsibilities among the various governmental units in a single metropolitan area.

"Merely providing opportunities for local governments to combine and cooperate has resulted in a slow and uncertain process. It should not be assumed, however, that a large area will necessarily solve problems more effectively than a small area, or that by making two localities into one locality any magic will occur. A local government can be too large as well as too small.

'Fundamental Issues'

"The difficulties have been in matching the area and the representation with common problems which exist because a certain number of people are living within a certain physical area. These are the fundamental issues which today are facing Virginia's metropolitan areas and creating many of the dangerous stresses apparent in each of the six metropolitan areas.

"Certain problems recur in any examination of local government in Virginia's metropolitan areas. They should be noted preliminary to any discussion of the details of local government. One problem is the issue of annexation and the effect it has on intergovernmental relations. Another problem is the inadequacy of existing tax bases to meet the increasing demands placed on local governments.

'Serious and Pressing'

"Water and air pollution, water supplies, sanitation and transportation are considered to be serious and pressing problems that will rapidly intensify. Beautification, lack of library facilities, and lack of park and open space are other problems emerging frequently. These problems often exist because local governments fail to cooperate to meet mutual needs, because local governments lack the powers or the resources to solve expensive problems or because local governments when cooperating to meet mutual needs lack the total resources required to effectively deal with these problems."

"Virginia thus far has been more fortunate than most other states in avoiding the proliferation of governmental units through creation of special districts. However, the formation of special districts in Virginia is increasing. Soon too many basic services may lie outside the full control of the general governmental units for effective policy-making. If very many more special districts are created, governmental fragmentation will emerge as a serious and perhaps insurmountable metropolitan problem."

"The Norfolk-Portsmouth-Chesapeake-Virginia Beach area has the potential, thus far largely unrealized, for coping with its problems on an area-wide basis. There is no annexation problem; all four of the component units are cities with broad local powers. All four areas thus meet each other as co-equals. Both Chesapeake and Virginia Beach are new cities, and undoubtedly still are undergoing an initial "settling in" period politically and administratively. The local governments in the area have made significant strides toward intergovernmental cooperation, and apparently will continue to move in this direction."

'The State's Responsibility'

"The localities are legally and practically part of the State; their concerns and problems are State problems. This is even more true in metropolitan areas, where problems reach beyond local boundaries. There is no constitutional barrier to State participation in metropolitan and local problems. Indeed, it is clear that the purpose of a political subdivision, such as a city or county, is to perform a part of the State's responsibility to its citizens. With extensive shifts of population, economic changes, and radically new transportation and communications systems, there comes a growing interdependence of people, areas, and states. Within the state it is vitally necessary that adjustments be made to meet new circumstances. Units of government originally designed to meet governmental requirements of the 17th, 18th, and 19th centuries obviously must be modified to cope with problems of the 20th Century."

A Public Servant

It is ironic that Francis J. Gelger, who devoted his last five years to concern about the protection of others as regional coordinator of Civil Defense for the Hampton Roads area, should have met his untimely death in an automobile accident in Suffolk last week.

The fact he was in public service makes his passing a loss to our area as well as to his family and friends.

Construction Jam to Ease

E. H. Orange, state director of toll facilities, said Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway construction at London Bridge, where some traffic jams have developed on Virginia Beach Boulevard, is being rushed before the tourist flood really starts. Some motorists were unhappy and city police officers (like Patrolman D. E. Watson above) were busy in recent days as work on drainage lines interfered with traffic.

Orange said construction on the toll road during the summer will be minimal at the boulevard and Laskin Road interchange to ease traffic problems.

When the four-lane expressway is completed the end of this year, it is expected to draw most thru-traffic off congested sections of the boulevard, easing tension and allowing more room for shopping traffic.

Scholarship Awards

A number of Bayside High seniors collected scholarships at the recent awards assembly, as other students received various school honors and letters.

Scholarships presented and their recipients included:

Michael Griffith, $1,000 Rotary Club; Linda Rowan, $400 SCA; Letitia Eckhart, $400 Hicks Beauty Academy; Linda Dexter, $100 Bayside Future Teachers of America; Julia Lemon, $100 Iota Sigma Epsilon Tri-Hi-Y; Nancy Fincher, $100 Alpha Delta Kappa, and Tonya Carter, $200 Glenn Wilson Journalism Award.

Tim Early and Bob Ander received Navy ROTC scholarships, and Bruce Platz received an appointment to the U. S. Coast Guard Academy.

Kathy Kerr, valedictorian, was honored for being on the Tidewater Scholastic Achievement Team both semesters during the school year.

The National Junior Honor Society Award for outstanding citizenship went to Teddy Clemons, president-elect of the SCA.

The Future Teachers of America presented their first annual Teacher of the Year Award to B. J. Germershausen.

First Colonial SCA Officers

John Wolfe has been elected president of the Student Cooperative Association at First Colonial for the next school year.

Other new officers are Connie Jones, vice president; Jack H. Siverson, secretary; and Larry Van Nostrand, treasurer.

By Elgia Easter
VPI Co-op Ext. Service

When taking a soil sample, be sure to take several slices of soil to depth of about four inches before anything is done to the soil. The several soil slices should then be thoroughly mixed together and about a cupful of the mixture brought in for analysis at City Hall.

If you apply fertilizer or lime to the soil before you take the sample, it will throw the results off, and will make it very difficult to make any meaningful recommendation. Such a sample can produce an abnormally high salt concentration reading, in addition to giving untrue fertility readings.

Rowling was on the rifle team which took runner-up honors. Shooting with him were Lt. E. W. Hancock of FCPC, K. H. She-wier, ET2, of DASH, and R. G. Gemmell, MTC, of Guided Missiles School.

The runner-up team in pistol competition included Oberholz, Gemmell, Schneider and T. J. Kelly, FTC, of the Fleet Anti-Air Warfare Training Center.

Teams in the district competition were from as far away as Bainbridge, Md., and as near as NAS Oceana.

Hunting Limited to Bucks

The Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries has restricted deer shooting in the Dismal Swamp area in the fall of this year to bucks only. The season begins Oct. 1 and closes with Nov. 30, in that area.

In other recent action, the commission decided to allow shooting antlerless deer in Fluvanna County on opening day, and the 2-deer bag limit is unchanged.

Hunters are allowed to shoot only bucks during the regular two-week season in Pulaski, Wythe, Bland, Tazewell, Smyth, Washington, Russell, Dickenson, Scott, Lee and Southern Wise Counties in southwest Virginia.

One antlerless deer can be shot in most Northern Neck counties the first two weeks of the season, instead of only on opening day as last year.

A special Sika deer season was approved for the Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge on Assateague, with Oct. 11-14 dates for archers only, and archers and shotgunners on Oct. 20 and 21.

Cox Falcons Close Out Athletics

The Frank W. Cox High School spring athletic teams officially ended their respective seasons.

The Falcon golfers, consisting of Bill Calfee, Tom Pitkin, Jim Ellis, and Vern Burlage clinched the regular season golf title with a 11-0 record. After losing to Norview in the District tourney, they quickly bounced back to take the Regional tournament 15 strokes ahead of their closest competitor.

Last week-end, the golf team finished a close third in the State Golf Tournament behind favored Danville and Meadowbrook. Calfee's score enabled him to finish fifth among individual scorers.

The Cox baseball team was upset by Great Bridge 4-2 in the first round of the District Tournament. The Falcons were able to grab a tie for third in regular season standings, however. John Knight led the team in hitting, and Jim Oberwa finished with the best pitching record.

In track, Brian Magoon and Rick Binder both qualified for the state meet, but neither was able to place. Binder was high individual scorer on the team, scoring as many as 25 points in one meet. Magoon proved to be the outstanding trackman, with his specialty the two-mile.

.... A military ball a gala Friday night that brought together, in the Civic Center, Beach officials, military friends, Miss Virginia Beach and a big blaring band ... all celebrating the eve of Armed Forces Day.

.... Farther up the Beach ... the Virginia Beach Assembly annual spring dinner dance in the Cavalier Beach Club.

.... A delightfully warm May evening ... a night for ball gowns and dinner jackets ... a night to salute the military ... to launch the summer social season.

Thoughts Along The Way

BY JEANNE MAGEE TUCKER
Women's Editor

AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE ... headachy, frustrating.

How long can automobile insurers continue to make the rules that we, the drivers are forced to play by.

At issue at the present ... an almost 21-year-old girl ... unblemished (completely) driving record ... educated through junior college, responsible position, living with her family. Her sin against society? An American-made sports car, bought with her own hard-earned money ... not sitting in the driveway ... uninsured because there were no takers. Who questions the youngsters' rebellion against society?

COMPLETE CONFUSION at the site of construction on Virginia Beach Boulevard at London Bridge ... an almost head-on collision between two drivers confused as to where they were to go ... though a uniformed policeman stood nearby.

HOW COME no Beach restaurants specialize in salads for the working luncheon-eaters?

SWATHED in bandages ... beautification booster Jane Tucker of Bay Colony ... result of hand surgery.

Another booster, Kathryn Syer ... her leg on the mend after another break ... same leg.

WORTH SEEING ... the Kyle rose garden in old Alanton ... a collection of almost 500 bushes ... many offshoots of Mrs. Kyle's mother's rose collection.

The Broad Bay Sailing Association regatta this weekend at the Narrows.

WORTH SOME THOUGHT ... Hemlines ... now up ... but almost sure to drop in the not-too-distant future.

Wright Harrison, president of Virginia National Bank, and Mrs. Harrison, presently of Charlottesville, were weekend guests of the Richard F. Weltons of Bay Colony and guests at the Virginia Beach Assembly dinner dance. Shown here with Mr. Welton, the Harrisons soon will be permanent Beach residents.

Annual Commission Meeting

Boost Beautification, Veep Advises

An enthusiastic Beautification Commission vice president said Thursday that while the commission has quality, it needs quantity, and needs it badly.

Following closely a speech by soft-spoken Marvin Sutherland of Richmond, Joseph W. Viner boomed his remarks to members of the Beautification Commission gathered in the Cavalier Beach Club for their annual general meeting.

Viner told the members, "We need numbers. We need the garden clubs and the civic clubs. They ought to wake up and back us."

"I think we've only started our job here at the Beach, and unless we get help, we'll never finish it."

"We had a hard fight getting the support of the planning commission and the city manager, but we've got it now and if we can get the zoning commission to back us in our fight against unsightly billboards, it will help us greatly."

Continuing, Viner said the commission needs a crash program, something to awaken the community.

"Maybe crash isn't the right word, but we've got to get the public aroused."

He suggested that the commission invite presidents of each Virginia Beach garden club to meet with the commission; that they seek the support of civic clubs, getting them to take beautification assignments; that they form committees of garden clubwomen advisors to work with the commission in its beautification and anti-litter work.

Viner was one of several commission members and city officials who appeared on the program following guest speaker Marvin Sutherland of the Virginia Department of Conservation.

Sutherland spent the earlier part of the day touring the city, then presented to commission members a report of his tour, as well as suggestions for beautification and an outline of similar efforts in other Virginia cities.

"Your city," Sutherland said, "is so far advanced on beautification and city planning, that anything I say may well be repetitious."

"It was most gratifying to drive around and see the job that you've done here," Sutherland added.

Emphasizing the importance of long range planning and strong support of the city planning commission, Sutherland said, "You cannot lose sight of the population projections, watching carefully the proportion of land to housing."

"It is entirely conceivable that public ownership of land, while expensive, ought to be encouraged."

Sutherland touched on improving the appearance of vacant lots, sand and gravel pits and utility lines, advising commission members to promote and publicize their programs in order to stimulate the community's interest in beautification and city planning.

On the program also was Parks and Recreation Director Harold Whitehurst. Speaking briefly, Whitehurst repeated the remarks he'd made earlier in the day at the year-end luncheon meeting of the Virginia Council of Social Services in the Black Angus Restaurant.

Whitehurst, outlining for both groups Recreation's accomplishments to date and its plans for the future, stressed the urgency of land acquisition while the opportunity exists.

"We want to make Virginia Beach a real livable city," Whitehurst said. "Little Island and Redwing Park, for instance, (See Beautification Page 3B)

New Secretary Named

In other matters, the Beautification Commission:

* Elected and put to work immediately, Robert Wainwright as secretary replacing Robert Gay now with Veeco in Norfolk;

* Heard Mason Gamage, city planning director, discuss open space acquisition and the city's plan for land to meet the future needs of schools;

* Heard a report from commission member Sims Reed on beautification efforts of hotels and business sites. Reed also cited the commission's need for moral support throughout the community.

The commission currently lists a membership of approximately 375 persons.

Cape Henry Women Honor Their Woman of the Year

Mrs. Arthur B. James (right) receives Cape Henry's Woman of the Year award from last year's award winner, Mrs. E. Gilbert Keene.

Mrs. Arthur B. James, Cape Henry Women's Club Woman of the Year, was woman of the day at their recent meeting.

One of the highlights of the club's recent meeting in the Black Angus Restaurant, was the presentation of the Woman of the Year Award, which this year went to Mrs. James. Last year's award winner, Mrs. E. Gilbert Keene, made the presentation.

Clubs

Another highlight of the meeting was installation of the new officers. They are: Mrs. C. E. Upton Jr., president; Mrs. James L. Craig Jr., Mrs. Willard P. Whitehurst and Mrs. A. J. Cheuning III, vice presidents; Mrs. E. Gilbert Keene, secretary; and Mrs. V. Alfred Etheridge, treasurer. Mrs. B. Noll Fallwell is outgoing president. Mrs. Otis B. Gregg, President of the Tidewater District, Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, installed the new slate.

Tom Byers as Capt. Hook, Bruce McHenry as the Big Bad Wolf and Diana Bellamy as Peter Pan Rehearse.

Ambitious Class Produces

"Wonders of Storybook Land," an original adaptation by Bay-side High School Drama II class, will be presented Saturday at 10 a.m. at the school.

Members of the cast promoted the play last weekend by appearing in the Armed Forces Day parade on Atlantic Avenue.

Tickets are 10 cents, and refreshments will be served.

Diana Bellamy as Peter Pan in the parade was a hit with the youngsters.

The musical-fairy tale is being produced by the drama class for a grade. The class adapted it from a plot they found in a book.

Hugh Copeland is the teacher of the class.

Parliamentarian

Mrs. Roy D. Whitlock of Richmond, newly elected state president of the Virginia Association of Parliamentarians. Elected at the group's annual meeting in Williamsburg, Mrs. Whitlock succeeds Mrs. Kenneth Gimbert of the Beach. Announcement was made of the club's Literary Award for outstanding creative writing. Barry Lanier of Floyd E. Kellam High School, is this year's recipient.

The club voted to sponsor a Virginia Beach representative among the group of 30 going to the United Nations. They voted also to make a $10, contribution to the STOP program.

Charles Hardin of the Hardin School of Music presented a musical program after the luncheon.

Beautification

are both new areas that will contribute much to the city. Reservations for Redwing-already are piling up," he said.

"We're happy also about our summer playground program. We'll have 13,000 children registered at some 34 playgrounds this summer," he said. "We'll also have 48 lighted tennis courts ready for use this summer. In addition we plan to have several city high schools open several nights a week for the older youngsters," Whitehurst said.

"But," he added, "land acquisition is the most important factor that we should be considering at the present time."

Mrs. Reed Receives Award

Garden Club of Virginia Horticultural Certificate

Mrs. J. Davis Reed Jr., a member of the Princess Anne Garden Club, was one of 12 recipients of the Garden Club of Virginia certificates for "outstanding achievement in the field of horticulture."

Announcement of the 12 was made at the opening business session of the annual G.C.V. meeting held recently in Williamsburg.

Mrs. Edwin A. Harper, chairman of the horticulture committee, made the presentations.

What a Mess

A "Pow Wow" was sponsored recently at Thalia Elementary School by PAVAB District Boy Scouts to train Den Mothers and Pack Leaders.

The program for the day included such subjects as pack administration; skits, puppets and ceremonies; crafts; and games.

Activities included working with the materials the Cubs would use. (Mothers were allowed to take home whatever they made.)

D. C. Speaker

Dr. Dorothy Johnson, assistant superintendent of schools of Washington, D.C., speaks to members of the Delta Kappa Gamma at their recent district meeting in the Ocean Hearth Restaurant. Delta Kappa Gamma is an honorary educational sorority.

Corn Planting Vs. Blackbirds

While sweet corn is well out of the ground in some areas of Virginia Beach, J.E. Welch, a retired Navy admiral (on tractor above) has a problem. He was disking his field near NAS Oceana "for about the 12th time" last week. He said blackbirds have eaten the seed corn a number of times, and lately he has been carrying a .22-caliber rifle on the tractor. It is loaded with CB shot (an extremely light shot with little powder in the casing), and occasionally he stops disking, hauls out the rifle and fires in the direction of blackbirds on the ground. "It doesn't carry very far, and wouldn't kill him if I hit him," he said. "But it scares them, and a shotgun won't," Welch lives in the 8400 block of Oceanfront.

Having to w-w-warm up after a c-c-cold shower?

You need a flameless quick-recovery water heater.

With an electric water heater, you'll never have to take an ice-cold shower again. And wrap up in bath towels to get warm. You'll have hot water whenever you want it. On big laundry mornings as well as at the shower hour. Ask your VEPCO-authorized Live Better Electrically dealer or plumber about VEPCO's $40 installation allowance on a qualifying flameless quick-recovery water heater. Wouldn't you like ice-cold showers to be a thing of your past?

Sun Review

"Kind Sir" Is Fast-Paced

"Kind Sir," Virginia Beach Little Theatre's current production, is light comedy at its best.

Gwen Kiser, returning to the stage after an absence of four years, and Angela Walker almost steal the show from the other characters. The two complement each other as Owen Kiser plays Jane Kimball, an unmarried actress, and Angela Walker portrays her over-anxious but sometimes catty older sister, Margaret Munson. They set the fast pace of the play by Morman Krasna in which the older sister tries to find a husband for the younger.

The "victim," or suitor as the case may be, is Philip Clair, played by Geo Williams, who is single? married? separated? depending upon the act in the play and adding to the comedy. Williams is excellent as the

The role of the stuffy husband, Alfred Munson, is adequately filled by Mac MacManus who shows the proper indignation and concern at the proper time.

Fine comedy by play is brought in by Floss Lawson and Bob Furniss as the husband and wife maid and tailor, Annie and Carl Miller. Floss Lawson, especially, plays the know-it-all role to the hilt, with sly winks and pointed remarks.

Special mention should be given to the director Chichi Lively, for the excellent timing of the play. Perhaps the only criticism of that would be the long pause between the first and second scene.

The drawing room set by Neal Thomas is lovely as might be expected. Adding to the beauty of the room are dozens of red and yellow roses sent by Jane's suitors.

Costumes, mostly evening clothes, are varied and stylish. However, with all the costume changes the other characters have, it does seem that the maid could be given more than one dress before the last act.

The pursuit of Philip by Jane and Margaret, who is described by Jane as a "maternal white-slaver," is well-worth an evening out.

"Kind Sir" will play again Friday and Saturday nights at the Virginia Beach Little Theatre on Virginia Beach Blvd. between Atlantic and Pacific Avenues with curtain time at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are available at the box office after 3 p.m. daily.

Sun Review

Cavalier "Guys and Dolls" Is Tops

The Damon Runyan characters are just as unbelievable and heartwarming today as they were when "Guys and Dolls" was first a big hit in the early 1950's. Frank Loesser's unforgettable songs and the sparkling, witty dialogue of Jo Swerling and Abe Burrows are still fresh in the late 1960's, and the musical comedy "Guys and Dolls" was a classic the night it opened on Broadway.

All this added to excellent direction, fine orchestration, imaginative choreography, outstanding acting and singing and a fantastic set spell "success" for the current production at Cavalier Dinner Playhouse in Norfolk.

For his last venture at the theatre before going on for further study, director Tim Jones has assembled a well-balanced cast of "the cream of the crop" locally and professionally. He has pared down the script and cast to fit the small Cavalier stage, and has used a series of fluorescent backdrop settings to distinct advantage. The scene changes are all accomplished by the actors themselves in dim light, and they are done with split-second perfection.

The colorful sets are the work of Ron Le Blanc and Harrell Tice. With the colorful and bizarre costumes by Diane Leiderman, the staging of the musical numbers by Barbara Lane-Brown and the musical direction of Charles Costa, all that remains to be done is the acting, and there is not a weak link in the show.

Gene Galusha, as Sky Masterson, gambler who will bet on anything, turns in a brilliantly strong characterization of the bum who falls in love with a Salvation Army girl. His fine voice adds to his performance.

Bonnie Sparks, as Sgt. Sarah Brown, portrays both facets of her character well. She is near-perfect as the staid sergeant, but perhaps overdoes the radical change just a shade after too much rum. But it is her beautiful soprano voice that clinches it for her.

No stranger to Virginia Beach audiences, Jane Garrison plays Adelaide, singer-dancer in a third-rate club. Her portrayal of the dumb blond who has been engaged for 14 years is outstanding and deserves a great deal of praise.

Will Hicks plays Nathan Detroit, Adelaide's fiancé. As the inveterate crap-game operator who finally does the "right thing" by his long-time girlfriend, Hicks is amusing and a delight to watch.

Hank Mauro also turns in a fine performance as Nathan's sidekick, Nicely Nicely, as does Toby Stephens as another sidekick. An excellent cameo role, gambler Big Jule, is handled adeptly by Michael Smith.

The members of the small chorus, who play a number of difficult roles, deserve much credit for keeping up the good pacing of the show.

The addition of certain "imaginative" scenes is to be quarreled with, but did not take away measurably from the overall performance. The "ballet" number, performed with grace and ease is different from anything we have ever seen, but highly effective.

Cavalier's "Guys and Dolls" is a real must for Tidewater theatre-goers. It qualifies as one of the best, well-rounded productions of the season in all Tidewater theatres. JOSEPH LOWENTHAL, JR.

Inexperience, Disregard Cause Motor Mishaps

Deaths of motorcycle riders in the United States increased 41.3 per cent from 1964 to 1965, the current issue of the Virginia Health Bulletin reports.

The comparable figure for all motor vehicle occupants was 4 per cent.

Safety for the users of motorcycles and motorbikes is the subject of the State Department of Health's publication this month. The magazine says the situation can be improved if motorcycle riders will use safety equipment, "and if automobile drivers will assume their responsibilities toward cyclists as equal occupants of the road."

Inexperience is a major factor in motorcycle accidents, the Bulletin states—the typical victim is younger than 24, and a study of 123 injured riders showed 20 per cent were operating the vehicles for the first or second time. Seventy per cent had rented or borrowed the motorcycles.

Children below the legal driving age often are involved in accidents, the Bulletin states, and both youngsters and their parents tend to assume that operation of a small motorcycle, motorbike or motor scooter doesn't require a license.

The issue contains two pages of tips for safety to be used by motorbike drivers.
